Lothian Is Reported Asking 100 Destroyers, 3 Battleships, 6 Cruisers

Envoy Believed Seeking Deal That Might Give U. S. Bases in Pacific

By Frank R. Kelley
Copyright by New York Tribune Inc.

London, Nov. 25.—Aware that it cannot win this war if the lifeline of convoys, bringing munitions and food across the Atlantic, is cut by submarine, surface and air raiders, the British government would like to purchase, lease or borrow from the United States three battleships, six cruisers and 100 destroyers, it was learned today.

A memorandum, incorporating this outline of Great Britain's immediate naval requirements to protect her merchant fleet, is understood to have been taken back to Washington by the Marquess of Lothian, British Ambassador there, for the consideration of the United States Government.

It was believed in London that this memorandum, in addition to Britain's problem of financing war purchases from America, after her reserves of gold dollars and securities have been exhausted, was discussed by President Roosevelt and Lord Lothian at their conference in Washington this afternoon.

U. S. Has Many Old Destroyers

Under the transfer agreement with the United States, the British government already has obtained 50 over-age American destroyers in return for military bases on British possessions in the Western Hemisphere, but the task of protecting mercantile tonnage has reached such proportions that the British would like to augment their navy with a small battle fleet from the United States.

According to information here, the United States still has 103 over-age destroyers, constructed under the World War emergency program. The British say they could find trained crews for these and employ them in policing the Atlantic and the narrow seas around this island.

[The Navy Department disclosed last night that the American fleet includes 150 destroyers, 37 cruisers, and 15 battleships, in commission. Of the destroyers, 75 are classified as "overage," that is, more than 16 years old.

[Latest figures also show the Navy is "building" 170 more destroyers, 48 cruisers, and 17 battleships. The term "building" covers a naval construction program which will not be completed until 1945. How many of these warships are actually under construction the Administration Believed Viewing Plea for Financial Aid as 'Premature'

By George B. Bookman.
Post Staff Writer

Just back from London, Lord Lothian, the British Ambassador, declared yesterday after an 80-minute talk with President Roosevelt that to win the war Britain will need financial help next year as well as ships, planes and munitions.

He repeated the same request, in an interview with reporters, after an hour-long conference with Secretary of State Hull.

The Administration view, however—learned by The Post on high authority—is that the British request for financial aid is "premature," that the British should liquidate and spend some more of their estimated $9,000,000,000 in Western Hemisphere investments before receiving loans or grants of American dollars.

(This figure presumably includes Canada, Mexico, Brazil, Aregntina and other American countries in which Britain has heavy investments.)

When Lord Lothian stepped out of the President's office he volunteered to reporters, before being asked any questions:

"The President and I never mentioned finance at all."

Reported on War

He volunteered the same information after seeing Secretary Hull.

The Ambassador, who returned two days ago from a month's stay in England, left the President's office carrying a bulging dispatch case. He said he had given the Chief Executive a report on progress of the war.

"Is the outlook optimistic?" a newsman asked.

"Yes, it is optimistic provided we get some help from you," the Ambassador said.

He then listed the forms of aid which he said Britain will need in 1941: finance, ships, and planes and munitions.

Asked whether the term ships included warships, the envoy said he had used the word "ships."

The problem of credits is one for "the first half" of 1941, Lord Lothian said, but he asserted that "the President made no promises."

Roosevelt, Hull Confer

Lord Lothian's afternoon calls at the White House and State Department came as financial help for Britain appeared to be a dominant topic in Administration conferences.

President Roosevelt conferred for a half hour with Secretary Hull during the morning, shortly after holding a long interview with the Congressional leaders, Speaker Sam Rayburn, Majority Leader Barkley and Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina.

Barkley said afterward that he did not believe the matter of British loans or credits would be brought up in Congress during the remaining days of the present session.

The viewpoint of White House advisers, as disclosed to The Post, bore out Senator Barkley's statement.

These officials, calling British requests for financial help premature, pointed to investments that Britons have in the United States, Latin America and Canada, and said that a large share of these investments should be sold in exchange for dollars before Britain is granted

Chest Workers Rush to Send Drive Over Top

$2,000,000 Campaign Ends Today; $1,489,500 Of Quota Raised

Determined to reach their $2,000,000 goal Community Chest workers were making every effort last night to overcome the handicap of a holiday and five days of bad weather during their two-week campaign.

While admitting their task was a big one—they have reached 74.47 per cent of the total amount sought—they were confident Washington would not fail its underprivileged families.

Reports at yesterday's Chest luncheon in the Willard Hotel showed 145,580 contributions totaling $1,489,500.

Referring to appeals for war relief Chest President Coleman Jennings said:

"We have to respond to those appeals, for people on the other side of the water are suffering, but gifts must not be given at the expense of the Chest."

If contributors to war relief decrease their gifts to the Chest, he pointed out, "it is actually the poor people of Washington who are doing the giving."

Although aware "there must be a double burden," Jennings emphasized, "those who are privileged and able to give must accept the burden."

During the meeting, attended by approximately 700 volunteer solicitors, Maj. Chauncey G. Parker, jr., drive chairman, paid tribute to advertising, radio and newspaper publicity given without cost during the campaign. He also thanked the Willard Hotel management for free use of the ballroom for the daily luncheons and for the suite of

12 Axis Vessels Still in Tampico

Mexico City, Nov. 25 (AP).—Three German and nine Italian freighters were lying quietly in the Panuco River and Tampico harbor late today with no further evidence of loading activity such as was reported last night.

Observers had been expecting a wholesale dash to sea similar to that of November 15 when the crew scuttled one German ship.

While the 12 ships were loading last night Tampico observers reported seeing three United States destroyers not far offshore.

New York, Nov. 25.—The 5,135-ton Swedish freighter Anten, torpedoed by an enemy submarine on Saturday while sailing in British service, sent sent a third distress call today, reporting she was breaking up amidships. There were 13 still aboard.

The 5,218-ton British freighter Temple Inn radioed she was being attacked by a submarine 100 miles off Ireland.

Axis at Work In Key Plants, Dies Charges

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

As members of Congress called for legislation to prevent strikes in national defense plants, Chairman Dies of the House Committee on Un-American Activities yesterday charged that Communists and Nazis are at work "inside every important industry in the United States."

Renewing his feud with Attorney General Jackson, Representative Dies denounced the "deplorable weakness of our Government's methods of dealing with Fifth Columnists."

In a telegram to the White House from his home in Orange, Tex., Dies appealed to President Roosevelt to "bring about a coordination of the activities of the various departments engaged in ferreting out Fifth Column activities and agents in this country."

Statement Issued

In a public statement released at the Dies Committee offices here, the Texan alleged not only that Communists are closely identified with the strike at the Vultee Aircraft Corporation, but that at an unidentified "Southern California aircraft plant" key positions are held by a Nazi-inclined "clique of German-born employes."

Following a succession of angry attacks on the House floor against the strikes tying up the Vultee factory at Downey, Calif.; the New Kensington, Pa., plant of the Aluminum Corporation of America, and part of the West Coast shipping industry, Chairman Sumners of the Judiciary Committee called a meeting of his group today to consider the whole situation.

"We're meeting to see if there's anything we can do about it," Representative Sumners said last night. Earlier, on the floor, he told his colleagues that "those people responsible for the strikes are doing a dastardly thing" and should be given a "double dose" of "the kind of violence they understand."

"We have put up with that kind of cutthroats long enough," the Judiciary Committee chairman asserted. "They preach violence and force . . . Give them what they have been preaching and make them like it."

"Cooling-off" Plan

One member of Congress, who attended one of the informal meetings on the subject that were held in Representative Sumners' office during the day, suggested possible legislation might take the form of compulsory arbitration, a "cooling-off" period before a strike could be called, or a flat prohibition against strikes in defense industries.

Second Italian Base in Albania About to Fall; Bulgaria to Stay Out of Axis, Nazis Indicate

Turkey's Status Unchanged, Hitler Plans New Moves, Berlin Hears

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Nov. 25.—Bulgaria, long viewed as a likely convert to the Axis line-up, is staying out, for the present at least, informed Nazi sources indicated today.

This disclosure came with the surprise statement by these informants that the signatures of Hungary, Rumania and Slovakia to the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo pact ended the present series of additions.

Authorized quarters hinted, nevertheless, that Adolf Hitler's diplomatic maneuvers, which already have covered most of the continent, will continue.

"When will the next act be staged?" one official was asked.

"Just be patient," he retorted.

They added that the fact Bulgaria is not expected to join up at this time has nothing to do with developments in Turkey.

The Nazi informants said the second round of signatures to the Axis pact had been completed, the first having been the original signing by Germany, Italy and Japan, and the second the adherence of Hungary, Rumania and Slovakia the past week.

Furthermore, they said all reports of an early Bulgarian state visit had been of foreign, not German origin.

The belief was expressed in foreign diplomatic quarters here that Bulgaria's signature would seem untimely at a moment when the country is faced with a political crisis. (Sofia dispatches have indicated dissension within the Bulgarian government over the question of signing.)

Bulgaria Rejoices

Sofia, Nov. 25 (AP).—There was rejoicing in Bulgaria tonight over indications that this country will not be forced to sign up immediately with the Axis powers—a development which diplomatic circles took to mean that Soviet Russia did not yet see eye to eye with Germany on their respective spheres of influence.

The belief was expressed in official circles that Bulgaria had avoided being rushed into signing until after the Greek-Turkish-Russian situation became clarified.

This was based on an official German asertion that no Bulgarian statesmen were expected in Berlin in the near future. Only two days ago, Bulgarian Foreign Minister Ivan Popoff had been planning to visit Berlin, a high source disclosed.

"It now appears certain to us that Bulgaria will not be involved in war

Adm. Nomura, Friend of U.S., Named Ambassador by Tokyo

Abe Cabinet Member Is Known to Desire Better Relations

Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, Nov. 25.—Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, foreign minister in the short-lived Abe cabinet of 1939, has been chosen the next Ambassador to Washington, succeeding Kensuke Horinouchi, recently recalled.

Admiral Nomura is a straightforward seaman with moderate political views. His appointment indicates that Konoye cabinet desires to prevent Japan's relations with the United States from deteriorating further.

The appointment gives great satisfaction to all who want to avoid a break with the United States, and those Japanese who deplore the policy which aligned Japan with the Axis welcome it warmly.

Nomura said Japan's diplomacy toward America should follow the middle of the road—neither a so-called "strong policy" nor a "diplomacy of coquetry." The Japanese interpret this remark as meaning that neither threats nor a policy of courting the United States, while opposing England, will constitute Admiral Nomura's line of approach.

As foreign minister, Nomura made a sincere effort to diminish friction with America. His policy proved entirely abortive and his proposal to reopen the Yangtze to foreign trade aroused opposition

The Axis Alliance has not had the effect on the United States its authors expected and Nomura's appointment is an eleventh-hour effort to smooth over the bad impression the triple act created.

Invasion in Reverse

By the Associated Press

Athens (Tuesday), Nov. 26.—Greek troops advancing in most places along a 100-mile front in Albania have "overshot" Pogradetz, 25 miles north of Koritza, and have entered the outskirts of Argirocastro, main Italian base in southern Albania, it was reported today.

At the same time, Royal Air Force headquarters in Greece announced heavy daylight raids were carried out yesterday by R. A. F. bombers on Durazzo, described by the R. A. F. as the "only important port on the Albanian coast."

The R. A. F. said direct hits were scored on shipping, including two hits on a 10,000-ton ship.

Argirocastro About to Fall

The Greek forces pursuing the Italians across Albania were reported in advices from the front to be about to take Argirocastro. The entry into the southern Italian base, the last remaining to the Fascists in that sector, was reported yesterday, just four days following the capture of Koritza, northern base of Premier Mussolini's backfiring invasion of Greece.

A government spokesman said the Greeks were pushing ahead despite a lack of good roads and were capturing more equipment.

"The situation at the front is very satisfactory from the north sector to the south," he said. "The Italians are retreating. Our advance forces overshot Pogradetz." He didn't claim capture of Pogradetz.

"In the center sector we are advancing in conjunction with our troops of the southern sector, from which the news is good."

All Planes Return

Besides the Durazzo raid, the R. A. F. reported bombing "important military stores and motor transport columns" in the Tepelini area, north of Argirocastro.

"Three separate motor transport and mule columns, being rushed to the relief of the hard-pressed enemy forces north of Koritza, were thrown into complete confusion by low-level attacks carried out by our aircraft. All our aircraft returned safely."

Below the threatened southern base, a large number of Italians virtually have been isolated, the Greeks reported, in the fast-developing "full-fledged counteroffensive" which they declare is aimed at throwing the Fascists out of Albania altogether.

At this end of the curving 100-mile battlefront the Greeks said the Fascist troops were fighting fiercely against forces threatening to London, Nov. 25.—Hamburg was raided for the sixtieth time last night as R. A. F. heavy bombers cut through a thick cloud over the city to concentrate their attack on the Blohm and Voss shipyards, the most important shipbuilding center under private ownership in Germany.

Twice during the night, between 7 and 8 in the evening and at about 4 this morning, British planes hammered away at docks and buildings, causing "a good number of fires and explosions," according to the air ministry.

Bombers, unable to locate their Hamburg objectives, visited alternative targets at nearby Harburg, where fires and explosions were caused at the Nord Deutsche Chemical Works. Other targets last night included dockyards at Wilhelmshaven and Boulogne, a dockside warehouse at the Dutch port of Den Helder, anti-aircraft and searchlight positions and enemy airfields and seaplane bases.

Early Sunday morning British coastal command planes attacked the airport at Kristiansand, in Norway, and the harbor at the Hook of Holland, the air ministry announced.

Refugee Ship, 1,771 Aboard, Sunk at Haifa

Loss of Life Feared Heavy After Blast In Palestine Port

By the Associated Press

Haifa, Palestine, Nov. 25.—The refugee steamer Patria, packed to the gunwales with 1,771 homeless Jews, exploded and capsized in Haifa harbor today with an undetermined but possibly heavy loss of life.

The refugees, who had sought illegally to settle in Palestine, had been placed aboard for transportation to some other British colony for the duration of the war.

Cause of the explosion was not determined.

Many of those aboard managed to swim ashore, but an official announcement said that "some casualties" were feared.

The refugees had been aboard the ship since last Thursday, waiting to start their voyage as soon as authorities deemed conditions in the Mediterranean to be reasonably safe.

(Jewish immigration to Palestine was forbidden in June, 1939, when the British colonial secretary asserted there was an organized attempt to thwart the usual immigration quota law.)

The Patria was an 11,885-ton French freight and passenger vessel recently taken over by Britain.

The refugees, mostly from Austria, Slovakia, Bohemia, Hungary and Rumania, reached Haifa early in November. They had sailed from an unidentified Black Sea port.

British authorities were reported to have held their ships unseaworthy and arranged to transport the refugees elsewhere on the Patria.

Two Doctors Dissent

Premarital Blood Test Law Favored Here, Hearing Shows

General approval of the Health Department's bill requiring premarital examination for syphilis was indicated yesterday by a special committee appointed by the District Commissioners following an informal hearing.

Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech called a meeting of the committee for Sunday afternoon. The only major point in controversy, it appeared, is section 6, which would invalidate common law marriages.

Two physicians attacked the measure sponsored by Health Officer George C. Ruhland at the conclusion of the hearing, in which spokesmen for civic organizations approved the proposed legislation.

Dr. W. B. Hough and Dr. John E. Cavanagh, speaking as individuals, assailed the bill as inadequate and dangerous, chiefly because of the difficulty of determining in some cases whether or not a person has syphilis.

The legislation was indorsed by the Federation of Citizens Associations, the Federation of Civic Associations, the Board of Trade, the Medico-Chirurgical Society, which is the colored medical organization, and several citizens' associations.

The District Social Hygiene Society submitted a brief approving the bill and lauding Dr. Ruhland for adopting the best features of the laws of 30 States which have premarital test requirements. An

9,800 Searched In Bomb Scare

Boston, Nov. 25 (AP).—A bomb scare kept Boston Navy Yard on the alert for more than 12 hours today as 9,800 job-bound civilian workers were searched at the gates and scores of police and United States Marines poked through private automobiles.

Hours after the hunt for explosives began, police reported nothing of a suspicious nature had been uncovered and Navy officials began to regard their warning of trouble as a hoax. Police said the Navy's "tip" came from a man who previously had been a mental patient. He had said an attempt would be made by a Navy Yard workman to bring in a time bomb or a quantity of dynamite when he went to work.

Police reported the Navy's information was supplied by a yard workman who telephoned an officer at the yard after learning of the "plot" from a drinking companion.

Army Tanks Rout 'Enemy'

Fort Benning, Ga., Nov. 25.—The Army threw 250 roaring tanks into mimic battle here today in the first public, full-scale demonstration of one of its complete new armored divisions.

In the wake of an artillery onslaught and theoretical hail of aerial bombs, the tanks raced forward over fields and crashed woodland trees to overwhelm a simulated enemy force.

Brig. Gen. George S. Patten, division commander, told newsmen, "I'd hate to be in front of that power in wartime." The artillery preparation, in which blank shells were used, alone represented "15 minutes of hell."

Secretary Perkins' Resignation Denied

The White House said yesterday that Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, has not submitted any resignation "and the President has not discussed resignation with her." A published report that her resignation had been submitted drew forth the comment.

"I don't know anything about confirmation or any other phase of it."

Argirocastro to Fall In Hours, Greeks Say

back them up against the Adriatic coast.

Additional Greek columns were thrusting toward Premeti, east of Argirocastro, and on the central front the Italians were said to have abandoned their fortifications on Mount Ostrovitza.

On the northern front, where the Greeks have driven their deepest salient in the Pogradetz area, the Greeks declared the Italians were retreating so fast their cavalry was unable to catch up with them. Pogradetz is 25 miles north of Koritza and more than 30 miles inside Albania.

Coupled with the Greeks' proclaimed aim of wresting the whole of Albania from Mussolini was a possible plan for Greek-British seizure of Italy's strategic Dodecanese islands, lying between southeast Greece and Turkey.

An "expeditionary" army of Greek and British troops was reported massed on the Island of Crete, ready to spring the attack on the strongly fortified Dodecanese as soon as the British naval blockade could weaken the islands' base.

Casualties Called Small

Greek informants asserted, meanwhile, that casualties in both the Greek and Italian armies thus far have been comparatively small because of the rarity of large-scale battles.

Since the fighting started the Greeks have taken around 6,000 Italian prisoners, a neutral military observer estimated. About 1,000 arrived today in Athens.

(An exchange telegraph, British news agency, dispatch received in London from Athens said the capture of 8,000 more Italians was announced today in the Greek capital.)

Rear Guard Fights Fiercely

On the Epirus Front with the Greek Army, via Athens, Nov. 25 (U.P.).—Greek advance cavalry tonight battled an Italian rear guard attempting desperately to defend a retreating Fascist column as the main Greak southern army advanced steadily toward Italy's big Albanian base of Argirocastro.

Greek forces already have passed the town of Ciorgutsati, junction where the Santi Quarant Road runs westward off the main road, and are driving toward Argirocastro.

Three Italian columns lagging behind are in imminent danger of being cut off from the main Fascist body and captured.

An Italian rear guard is fighting Greek cavalry in an attempt to hold the Greeks back and permit a retreating Fascist column to reach fortified positions.

Italian Communique

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Nov. 25.—Italian troops on the Greek front, according to today's war communique, have been making "efficacious counterattacks." Meanwhile, Italian aviation was bombing Greek positions, "particularly along the Epirus coast," which is the sector where the Greeks claim to be advancing on Argirocastro.

These are the only references to the Greek campaign and since they follow two days in which it was stated the Italian troops have been maneuvering into new positions, it must be supposed that the counter-attacks in question are holding operations and rear-guard actions intended to protect the Italian movement.

There is no effort to hid the fact that a drastic realignment has been made necessary, but it is officially denied that material has been lost or large numbers of men captured by the Greeks. The only things the Greeks have captured, says the statement, are stakes for barbed wire, which could not be pulled up.

Greek Strategy Indicates Seizure of Dodecanese

ITALIAN INVASION OF GREECE MAY BACKFIRE—Map shows how Greeks may turn tables on "invading" Italians and seize Italy's strategic Dodecanese Islands. Greek strategy (1) in Albania is seen as a triple-pronged offensive (white arrows) to split Fascist forces and prevent escape either across sea or into Yugoslavia. Control of Albania (black area) would enable British fleet to make effective blockade (2) of aid by sea to Dodecanese naval and air base. A large force of British and Greeks are reported on Crete (3) ready to attack islands when they are sufficiently weakened by blockade. Success of plan would hamper any Axis movement in Near East

British Harass Italian Sea Lanes To Albania With Bombing Planes

Copyright by New York Times

Belgrade, Nov. 25.—British naval and aerial action in the south Adriatic is harassing Italian supply routes to Albania and inflicting steadily increasing losses, according to information received tonight from Yugoslavia's Adriatic coast.

Military experts at Belgrade deduced from the reports that British air raids on Italian troop transports and supply ships and British submarine activity off the Albanian coast was imperiling Italian aid to the hard-pressed troops retiring before the Greek onslaught.

Yugoslav fishermen returning tonight to Gruz, near Dubrovnik, on the south Adriatic coast, reported intense British aerial activity by light and heavy bombers over the waters along the route from Bari, Italy, to Durazzo, Albania. The crew of one trawler sighted two Italian armed merchantmen which apparently ran into trouble and possibly disaster late yesterday afternoon.

Vessels Believed Bombed

The two Italian vessels had barely cleared the horizon, steaming in a southeasterly direction beyond the Yugoslav trawler, when the fishermen heard a series of loud explosions resembling bombing or heavy gunfire, followed by two tremendous concussions.

The sky over the sea beyond the point at which the Italians had disappeared was lighted with two great flames, after which the sky reflected a red glow for nearly 15 minutes. The fishermen heard another loud explosion later.

Soon afterwards three bombers appeared from the southeast and flew low over the sea, one of the planes circling the trawler at a few hundred feet. The fishermen in the fading light identified the concentric circle markings of British bimotored bombers and ran up a Yugoslav ensign. The circling plane waggled its wings, rejoined the other two planes of the patrol and disappeared.

Two other British aerial patrols were sighted by the trawler this morning. As before, one of the planes descended and circled until the fishermen ran up their ensign, after which the plane returned to its patrol and again disappeared.

Slivovitz Is Broken Out

A British submarine halted and put a search party aboard another Yugoslav trawler late yesterday, according to another story told by seamen in the same port tonight.

"They halted us, first in English, then in Italian," said the seaman reporting the incident. 'They drew alongside and the submarine commander and five seamen came aboard. They looked us over, admired our fish and the British captain asked us how much we would take for selling the fish. Our captain told him. The British captain handed to our captain two one-pound notes, saying, 'We'll take the fish.'

"We all laughed, but the British commander was serious, so we sold him the fish—all of it. Then our captain brought out a bottle of slivovitz (the fierce Yugoslav prune brandy) and we all had a drink.

"We loaded the fish in the buckets they gave us. Then we all had another drink and they went back aboard their submarine."

The trawler returned to Gurz tonight and the captain, after exchanging his pound notes for dinars, bought the crew another bottle.

Nazis Intimate They Won't Aid Italians Now

Axis Political Drive Eastward Declared Complete, for Present

By Kirke L. Simpson
Associated Press Staff Writer

An informal but apparently authorized intimation has come from Berlin that Italy is to be left for the present to work out her own military detiny in her clash with the Greek-British Allies.

Just what it means is not clear. It may represent almost as serious a hitch in Hitler's diplomatic-political drive eastward in the Balkans as does the military setback Mussolini's armies have sustained in Greece.

German failure to extend the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo alliance to Bulgaria, Yugoslavia or Turkey would leave the conflict along the Greek-Albanian frontier isolated. It is only through Bulgaria or Yugoslavia that Nazi military power could be thrown quickly and effectively against the Greek flank.

Rome's Prestige at Stake

Yet the Berlin informant, even in the face of semiofficial Nazi press mutterings against Greece, holds that Hitler has completed for the present his Axis recruitment cycle. He did not, it was said, expect Bulgaria to follow Hungary, Rumania and Slovakia and join up with the alliance.

If that be true, it seems possible that Rome may have demanded a chance to retrieve the situation herself before Germany steps in to outflank Greece via Bulgaria. Mussolini's personal prestige with his own people and with German public opinion is at stake.

It may be that the precipitate Italian retreat all along the 100-mile battle front is an effort to draw the victory-flushed Greeks into a trap. Once they drive forward beyond the mountains of northern Greece and southern Albania, Italy's mechanized forces may be able to turn the tables.

It is a reasonable guess that the Greek high command and British liaison staffers are already concerned as to where to halt the pursuit. Their communications lines are lengthening. If they deploy into the sea level area of central and coastal Albania, they will risk sacrifice of the geographical factors that gave them their astounding initial victories.

Why Hitler Marks Time

It is also possible, however, that Berlin regards the neutrality of Bulgaria and Yugoslavia protecting the vital war resource of Rumanian oil from British bombing attack as too important to risk at this stage. That alone seems to provide a logical explanation of Hitler's tactics.

There are many symptoms that the Greek successes have stirred anti-Axis elements in both Bulgaria and Turkey to resistance of any internal move t knuckle to Berlin. From the first hour of the war, Berlin has striven by every means to avert conflict in the Balkans, internal move to knuckle to Berlin. ple the flow of oil or other resources she needs. A civil war in Bulgaria could spread into Rumania.

The Berlin attitude is hailed as at least a breathing spell for Bulgaria. Unless Italy can soon halt the Greek counteroffensive and regain the initiative, it seems impossible, however, that Berlin can long remain aloof from the conflict. That the Axis time table for winter war against Britain on the Mediterranean front is already upset is too obvious for argument.

this winter," said a high Bulgarian official.

Confer With Russian

King Boris and Premier Bogdan Philoff received Arkady A. Soboleff, secretary general of the Soviet foreign office, in sepaarte conferences today.

It was reported in government circles that the question of Bulgaria's position in the German-arranged "new order in Europe" was discussed.

Bulgaria's arguments against joining the Axis were generally believed inspired by the Russians, who still are not willing to concede that all the Balkans belong to the German Lebensraum (living space).

Philoff and Popoff were expected to make parliamentary addresses later in the week, outlining a pacific foreign policy and attempting to ease tension still further.

Before the Berlin statement that Bulgarian statesmen were not expected to visit there, the "war of nerves" in Bulgaria had reached a serious state.

Thousands of additional soldiers had been called quietly to the colors and scattered along all frontiers.

Reports circulated that Turkey had cut off postal communications with Bulgaria.

Expect Cabinet Shakeup

Berlin, Nov. 25 (INS).—German authorities tonight looked to a Bulgarian cabinet shakeup as an essential step to bring the realm of King Boris into the Axis, Berlin predicted reorganization of the cabinet in the "not distant future," as a result of which Boris will be able to "pursue adhesion to the new order in Europe actively."

Yugoslavia's immediate role in the Balkan setup remained uncertain, although reports persisted that governmental chiefs from Belgrade soon would take part in the "command appearances" in Germany.

Prints Addresses

Moscow, Nov. 25 (AP).—Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, today printed addresses made in the Bulgarian parliament saying that Bulgaria's relations with Soviet Russia "are now established on a sound political basis."

The newspaper printed a dispatch from Sofia reporting demands made in Parliament for settlement of Bulgaria's territorial claims on their Greek, Yugoslav and Rumanian neighbors.

Attack on Malta Sets Big Fires, Rome Reports

Machine-Gun Bullets Start Blazes Visible 50 Miles, Italy Says

By the Associated Press

Rome, Nov. 25.—A machine-gun attack by an Italian pursuit plane squadron on an airport at Malta, British mid-Mediterranean naval base, was reported by the high command today to have set fires visible in Sicily, more than 50 miles away.

Three planes on the field were set ablaze by the Fascist gunners, the communique said, and the fire spread quickly, causing several violent explosions. All the raiding planes returned, it said.

Alexandria Attacked

Besides the three British planes hit at Malta, the Italians said they shot down three more in scattered air fights.

The Italians also reported attacking the naval base at Alexandria, Egypt, and hitting port facilities.

One person was injured, the communique said, when an Italian "hospital displaying quite clearly the insignia of the Red Cross" was machine-gunned and bombed "from a low height" at Apollonia, in Egypt, and five were killed and two injured in a children's seaside camp at Derna.

Several were wounded and "light damage" was done in a British raid on Durazzo, it was acknowledged, and "enemy aircraft" bombed Tobruk and Dardia, "causing slight damage and wounding some in the latter locality."

R. A. F. Raid Desert Bases

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 25 (AP).—The Royal Air Force issued this communique today:

"In the western desert (Egypt), Derna, Appolonia, Tobruk and Bardia were raided at dawn. The barracks at Derna were heavily bombed, also at Appolonia, where a direct shot was observed in a barracks building. At Tobruk, bombs fell on military buildings, causing damage, while at Bardia one enemy aircraft was damaged. All our aircraft returned safely.

"In Italian East Africa, Assab was reattacked. Bombs were dropped very close to a ship in the harbor. Others caused a big blaze in the transport yard. The fire was visible for 50 miles. A subsequent raider dropped all its bonds into the fire, extending the blaze considerably. . . . Our aircraft carried out extensive reconnaissances over enemy territory. . . . All our aircraft returned to their bases safely."

Young Mother Attacked, Assailant Sought

Waynesboro, Va., Nov. 25 (AP).—Police said they questioned several Negroes today in connection with a reported criminal assault last night on the young wife of a Waynesboro businessman, mother of a 3-month-old baby, as she was returning alone to her home after attending a motion picture show.

The victim's husband said he was arranging to post a reward for information leading to arrest and conviction of the assailant. City Manager I. G. Vass took personal charge of the investigation and said tonight that every possible lead was being run down.

Police said the woman told them she was accosted by a man who grabbed her by the neck and dragged her into a vacant lot, that she lost consciousness in a brief but terrific struggle and regained consciousness to see her assailant fleeing.

Youth Convicted In Slaying Of Infant Son

A Montgomery County, Md., jury convicted James Barcus, colored, 22, of second degree murder last night in the death of his 19-month-old son.

He faces a maximum of 18 and a minimum of 5 years in prison for knocking the child's head on the ground in a fit of anger July 21.

Barcus' common law wife, Millie Frazier, 18, accused him of killing the baby when she refused to return to his home in Durwood, Md., with their child. The tragedy occurred in the front yard of the home of Jane Sewell, 21, colored, in a wooded section outside Lincoln Park, Md., where the Frazier girl had been staying with the child.

The trial opened yesterday morning in the circuit court at Rockville with State's Attorney Benjamin G. Wilkinson, jr., prosecuting.

Paraguayan Army, Cabinet Shaken Up

Asuncion, Paraguay, Nov. 25. (AP). President Morinigo, completing the term of the late President Marshal Jose Felix Estigarribia, took a firmer grip on Paraguay's government today through an unexpected shakeup in the cabinet and the army's key commands.

Minister of war and navy until President Estigarribia was killed in an airplane crash last September, Morinigo accepted the resignations of three cabinet men and five military commanders. Government authorities said the changes were made with the "complete support of the armed forces."

Mr. Butt to Quit At West Point

High Court Frees Colored Convict

Race Discrimination In Choice of Grand Juries Is Reason

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The Supreme Court yesterday unanimously set aside the conviction of a Houston, Tex., colored man, on grounds of racial discrimination in the selection of grand jurors in the county where he was convicted.

The opinion, written by Justice Hugo Black, said racial discrimination in selection of juries "not only violates our Constitution and the laws enacted under it but is at war with our basic concepts of a democratic society and a representative government."

The ruling will free Edgar Smith, 20, who had been convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment on a charge of criminal assault on a white woman. The time limit for a reindictment has expired.

It was the second ruling by Black—who was charged with former Ku Klux Klan connections at the time of his appointment to the court—which granted freedom to colored men. Black wrote the court opinion last February which freed four Florida Negroes from murder convictions because confessions were obtained through third - degree methods.

Finds Race Was Excluded

Black's ruling yesterday sustained Smith's contention that equal protection guarantees of the fourteenth amendment were denied him because Negroes in Harris County, Tex., were excluded from grand jury service on account of their race and color.

Black cited testimony on the Harris County Court records showing that only 5 of the 384 grand jurors who served from 1931 to 1938 were Negroes; that of 512 persons summoned for grand jury duty only 18 were Negroes; that of these 18 the names of 13 appeared as the last name on the 16-man jury list.

"Chance and accident alone could hardly have brought about the listing for grand jury service of so few Negroes from among the thousands shown by the undisputed evidence to possess the legal qualifications for jury service," Black said.

Amendment Cited

Juries should be bodies truly representative of the community and the fourteenth amendment requires "that equal protection to all must be given—not merely promised," his opinion said.

"What the fourteenth amendment prohibits is racial discrimination in the selection of grand juries.

"Where jury commissioners limit those from whom grand juries are selected to their own personal acquaintances, discrimination can arise from commissioners who know no Negroes as well as from commissioners who know but eliminate them. If there has been discrimination, whether accomplished ingeniously or ingenuously, the conviction cannot stand."

Other Decisions

Other rulings of the court:

Decided that the United States courts may not review a Federal Communications Commission order denying transfer of a radio station license.

Ruled that an individual who makes a gift of negotiable interest bond coupons is taxable on that interest when it matures.

Refused to review Georgia case restricting administration of unemployment compensation program.

Decided that a life insurance agent was liable for a tax on renewal commissions on policies sold although he had assigned the commissions to a corporate trustee.

Crash Victim's Wife Succumbs to Injuries

Waynesboro, Va., Nov. 25 (AP).—Mrs. Ellen Brown Fairchild, of Mendham, N. J., died in the Waynesboro Community Hospital Sunday of injuries received in a two-car crash near here on Armistice Day.

She was the wife of Col. Davis S. Fairchild, jr., United States Medical Corps, retired, who was killed in the accident. Mrs. Fairchild's body was to be sent to Clinton, Iowa, for burial.

The death brought to 22 the Augusta County traffic fatalities for 1940.

Boston Navy Yard Workers Searched for Explosives

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

MARINES KEEP SITUATION WELL IN HAND—Approximately 9,800 workers at the Boston Navy Yard were searched by marines yesterday for a time bomb or dynamite as they entered the yard. Police quoted a Navy Yard spokesman as saying "information has been received from a most authoritative source that an attempt would be made at 7 a. m. by a Navy Yard workman to bring in a time bomb or a quantity of dynamite"

Axis Active in U.S. Plants, Dies Says

has happened in this country for a long time is the strikes that are now in progress against the Government," shouted Representative Cox (Democrat), of Georgia, on the House floor. "The next most shameful thing is adjournment of this Congress from day to day without doing anything about it."

"I believe the responsibility is upon the Congress to act now to adopt legislation outlawing all strikes at all times against the Government and outlawing all strikes during an emergency, forcing labor disputes to be submitted to arbitration," the Georgian declared.

Urging Congress to "do something," Representative Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, asserted that "the Natoinal Labor Relations Act . . . protects the activities of labor unions . . . and time and again by its ukase has said to the employers of this country: 'You shall not discharge a Communist from your organization.'"

With a warning against too hasty action, Representative Voorhis (Democrat), of California, declared that attempts to curb might unjustly punish the rank and file of labor.

Two other Californians lashed out against the strikes. "It looks like an organized program—possibly a plot," said Representative Costello, and Republican Representative Leland Ford asserted that the C. I. O. had carried on "a program of communism" and sabotage.

"Disgraceful Situation"

In his telegram to President Roosevelt, Dies said the State Department was "cooperative" but the Department of Justice "is laboring under false impressions and giving credence to malicious rumors which have for their purpose the division of our forces."

Suggesting a conference "between all of us" to arrive at "a definite understanding that will avoid duplication of efforts," the Texan told the President: "To you I appeal for leadership in putting an end to this disgraceful situation and bringing about cooperation."

He said the F. B. I. "can perform splendid work within its field," but the Dies Committee "is the only agency of the Government that can obtain records under subpena and require suspected persons to testify under oath."

"Without this power," he said, "no agency of government can hope to effectively combat the insidious and well-organized forces of totalitarianism in the United States."

He declared that "there is plenty of work for all of us to do without indulging in unprofitable dispute and childish rivalries."

In the statement released from the committee's offices Dies charged that the "deplorable weakness" in the Government's methods of dealing with subversive activities "lies in the fact that our chief law-enforcement agency has known for some time that the Vultee strike was called and has been prolonged by Communists and yet that strike continues with irreparable damage to our national defense program."

Representative Dies said that Wyndham Mortimer, whom he described as "chief organizer of the C. I. O. in the aircraft industry on the West Coast" and "now the leader of the strike at Vultee," had been "positively identified" as a member of the Communist Party.

Committee evidence "indicates," said Dies, that Lewis Michener, "another leader of the Vultee strike" and alleged Communist, "has boasted that the Vultee strike is the first step of the Communist Party to test its strength in aircraft, and that the party intends to tie up aircraft production generally."

In the midst of the House discussion on the strikes, Representative Hoffman (Republican), of Michigan, asked passage of his bill to prevent unions from forcing membership on workers in defense plants.

The House "is in a competely totalitarian frame of mind," said Representative Voorhis.

Communist Link Denied

Los Angeles, Nov. 25 (U.P.).—Wyndham Mortimer, international representative of the United Auto Workers Union (C. I. O.), today denied he had ever been connected in any way with the Communist Party as charged in a statement issued in Washington by the Dies Committee.

George Forsburg, member of the Vultee Aircraft strike negotiating committee, named with Mortimer in the Dies statement along with L. H. Michener, and Louis Tournie, also denied any communistic connections.

"The whole thing is a complete fabrication so far as I am concerned," Mortimer said when the Dies statement was read to him.

"John P. Frey, head of the American Federation of Labor's metal trades division, went before the Dies Committee in 1938 and introduced what was supposed to be evidence that I was a Communist Party member.

"I denied it then and I deny it now."

Strike Continues

Downey, Calif., Nov. 25 (AP).—Negotiations for settlement of the nine-day-old strike at the Vultee Aircraft Corporation continued today with the union's international president sitting in.

No indication of progress was forthcoming.

The major points at issue were still the no-strike-under-any-circumstances and compulsory arbitration clauses which the company insists be included in a two-year contract and which the C.I.O United Automobile Workers Union has rejected.

Dubinsky Loses Fight on Suspension

A. F. of L. Council Voted Power to Ban Two or More Unions Uniting to Conspire In Dual Organization Movement

By the Associated Press

New Orleans, Nov. 25.—The American Federation of Labor tonight, after a bitter two-hour debate spearheaded by David Dubinsky, voted its executive council power to suspend two or more unions uniting to conspire against the organization.

Salary hikes also were voted—but after a protest—to President William Green and Secretary-treasurer George Meany, the former being raised from $12,000 to $20,000, and the later from $10,000 to $18,000.

The delegates additionally decided to make the the present 1 cent per capita tax two cents for one year. A 1-cent assessment, which Dubinsky charged was created in 1937 as a war chest against the Congress of Industrial Organizations, was abolished.

Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers, was defeated in his proposed amendment that any union suspended by the council be allowed to appear with full voting strength before the convention.

Dubinsky broke the storm over the convention's hitherto almost idyllic session when Tobin's committee submitted a proposal that:

The executive council be deprived of the right to suspend any single union, but be empowered to suspend two or more unions if they "unite and conspire to create and launch an organization for any purpose dual to the American Federation of Labor."

This report proposed further that such suspended unions be given the right to appeal from the council's action at the next general convention.

Dubinsky said that when his union returned to the A. F. L. after deserting the C. I. O., President William Green promised the executive council would be stripped of the power to suspend any union at all.

Nevertheless, Dubinsky said he was willing to agree to the council's power to suspend if the report to be acted upon by the convention contained the explanation that any suspended union, when tried by a convention, be allowed to make its appeal and use its full voting strength in the verdict.

Earlier in the day a British labor leader, appealing for "planes, planes and more planes," said German bombings have become so intense they are affecting our output," and added that American labor can defeat Germany "without firing a shot."

Sir Walter Citrine, executive secretary of the British Trades Union Congress, which is a counterpart of the American Federation of Labor, told the convention:

"I say to you something that no British statesman has yet said: Bombing is having an effect upon our output. Speed is of the essence now as never before because our output cannot keep upon full schedule because of the bombings."

"How long we can continue, depends not merely upon our will but also upon the will to hit back," he declared. "The only thing the Nazis understand is the power to make them suffer."

Appealing for speeded production of war supplies in this country, Sir Walter said: "American labor can conquer the Nazis without firing a shot. I want you to make your workshops the first line of defense for all democracy."

Although British labor in the recent emergency has relinquished the right to strike, Sir Walter said it is determined to prevent bureaucracy because "we are not going to have tinpot Hitlers built up in our constitution during the course of the struggle we are making against Hitler."

Denying that any aristocracy, whether of birth or wealth, has the right to rule, Sir Walter declared:

"In our country we have used the instrument of taxation to effect a very extensive redistribution of the wealth of the country. We have succeeded in putting the burdens on the backs of those the broadest to bear it."

There are only 1,000 people in Great Britain with yearly incomes exceeding $50,000, he said, and these people have an annual income approximating $900,000,000 a year.

Through taxes and death benefits, he declared, the government takes back $800,000,000 of the $900,000,000 income.

"Out of every $5 of income of the richest people of our country $4.37 is taken in taxation," he said.

Miss LeHand Has Self a Time, Set for 3d Term

President's 'Right Hand Man' Makes Rounds in New York

By Inez Robb.
International News Service Staff Writer

New York, Nov. 25.—Romantic citizens who picture life in the White House as a continuous bowl of cherries should talk with Marguerite LeHand, confidential secretary to President Roosevelt.

"I can stand another term if the President can," she said with something between a laugh and a sigh today in her suite at a New York hotel, just before her departure for Washington.

As the President's "right-hand man," Miss Le Hand has already lived eight years in the Executive Mansion. This tall, slim, extraordinarily pretty woman, who has been part and parcel of the Roosevelt clan for 20 years, says she can stand the dramatic, exciting and heavy responsibilities, the long and irregular hours and the all-night sessions during world crises if he can. And she believes he can stand anything.

Having Herself a Time

For 20 years, she has enjoyed the excitement and hubbub of life with one of the liveliest families in America.

But occasionally even a Presidential secretary likes to get away from the best job in the world. She has been enjoying a rare vacation in New York over the long Thanksgiving week-end. She has done all the things a woman loves to do in New York: shop, see the shows, dine with friends and tour the night clubs.

She did her own Christmas shopping here, but not the President's. Mr. Roosevelt intrusts his Christmas purchases to his wife, Miss LeHand said. All in all, Miss LeHand, who loves to dance and go to parties and who looks swell in evening clothes, has been having herself a time.

But she was eager to get back to work today.

Probably no secretarial job in the world is more important than hers. Miss LeHand, whom all the Roosevelts call "Missy," is privy to national and international secrets of the utmost import. But this woman with the rose leaf skin and complexion, the curly, prematurely gray hair and huge, deep blue eyes, is the woman who can keep a secret!

Miss LeHand First Called

"My work is very interesting," she said with a discreet and amused smile. And very hard, she might well have added, although she didn't. When she goes to bed at night in her pleasant suite on the third floor of the White House, Miss LeHand never has any assurance of an unbroken night's rest. If matters of tremendous import, either national or international, occur during the night, the President must be informed.

But the President is never called directly. The operator on the White House switchboard first calls Miss LeHand. If the message and the person calling warrant it, Miss LeHand then gives the White House operator permission to ring the phone in Mr. Roosevelt's room.

"Naturally, if the operator says 'Ambassador Kennedy calling from London' or 'Ambassador Bullitt on the wire,' I immediately have the operator ring the President. If the message is one of great importance, I simply get up, dress and stand by if I am needed."

MARGUERITE LE HAND

Personal Secretary Finds White House Life Is Exciting

At the time of the declaration of the European war a year ago last September, the President worked all night, and so did Miss Lehand. The following day, she now recalls in her gay way, Secretary Hull and Undersecretary Welles came to confer with the President at 4 p. m.

"Agreeable" to Work For

Miss Lehand nodded and politely said "Good morning, Mr. Secretary" to each. An assistant reminded her that it was late afternoon. When the two men left after seeing Mr. Roosevelt she murmured an apology.

"Did you really say 'good morning'?" asked Secretary Hull, glassy-eyed with fatigue. "I honestly wouldn't know!"

The President is "very agreeable" to work for, his confidential secretary says. She adds, with a sly smile, that she herself is a very talented speller.

All the President's personal and private mail, averaging 150 letters a day, is handled by this gracious, charming woman.

Of these 150 letters, the President never sees more than one-third to one-half. The efficient Miss LeHand answers the others without troubling the boss. Members of his family and close friends always address all personal letters to the President to Miss LeHand. Mrs. Roosevelt always writes in the corner "For F. D. R." Such letters go unopened to Mr. Roosevelt.

The vast bulk of the mail is sorted and opened by the regular White House staff, whose efficiency is greatly admired by the President's secretary.

After the recent election, Miss LeHand personally read between 7,000 and 8,000 telegrams sent to Mr. Roosevelt.

"I even read them after working hours," she said. "I was curious to see what people really felt. With the exception of a half dozen, they were all very friendly, even those from persons who said they had voted for Mr. Willkie. I was most impressed by this."

Every telegram and letter received by the President is answered if the secretariat can find an address.

Ordinarily, Miss LeHand starts work at 10 a. m. Her day should end at 6:30 p. m. At 7:30 p. m., she dines with the Roosevelt family. There are almost always a few guests, particularly if Mrs. Roosevelt is home.

When asked if dinners were always on time at the White House, Miss LeHand laughed aloud.

"Yes, indeed. Dinner is always on time, but very often we're not!"

'Enemy' Crushed By Tank Division

came the contention that the United States, rather than European nations, pioneered the latest method of aerial attack.

Lieut. William T. Ryder, of St. Louis, noted that the first recorded mass jump was made by 10 troopers in April, 1928, at Chanute Field, Ill. The Army did not develop the tactics further until after the Nazi invaders demonstrated their possibilities in the Netherlands.

Explaining that the parachute troopers are armed with pistols and grenades which could be used while drifting to the ground, he said he did not believe they would be "bothered much by farmers with pitchforks."

The same clouds and rain which prevented the participation of some two score bombers in the tank attack kept the parachute troopers on the ground.

The armored division demonstration was arranged by the War Department to display publicity the power of the new force, which was created in July on the pattern of the Nazi "panzer" divisions. It was given privately a week ago to Secretary Stimson and earlier to visiting Latin-American military officials.

3,000 Troops Take Part

A battalion attack a week ago by part of the First Division at Fort Knox, Ky., was on a relatively minor scale, compared with the Second Division's show in which more than 3,000 tank troopers, artillery and ground troops took part.

The tanks included nine new so-called medium tanks weighing 20-odd tons. After they had raced forward in iregular formation over a front of more than a half mile, an advance guard crept down the steep banks of Ochiltree Creek a mile distant, under heavy supporting fire to show how a stream crossing might be forced in wartime without waiting for engineers to build a bridge.

Nazis Claim Bristol Is a Blazing Ruin

Factories, Granaries, Gas Works Reported Demolished in Raids

By Percival Knauth
Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, Nov. 25.—Bristol, fourth large British industrial city to feel the full force of a concentrated German air attack, is today a blazing ruin, according to German claims.

German bombers last night, it is stated, roared unceasingly over that city just as they did over Coventry, Birmingham and Southampton. Their bombs, it is asserted here, blasted whole streets, shattering rows of houses which collapsed entirely from the force of explosions. The destructive power of these bombs, as described here, surpassed anything hitherto reported. Fires set by incendiary bombs were fed by ruins of falling buildings, their blazing tongues turning night into day, furnishing the clearest of visibility for the attacking swarms of planes.

This morning, it is stated here, there were 45 big fires raging among the ruins of that city. Later reports, allegedly brought in by German reconnaissance machines, describe large sections of Bristol being all but obscured by huge clouds of smoke through which the dull glow of fires can be seen. The southern parts of the harbor appear to be the worst hit, German reports state, while in the northwest part of the town 15 large fires are raging.

10 Factories Reported Ablaze

In the industrial section, it is stated, ten large factory halls measuring from 150 to 250 meters in length, are ablaze. Large and small fires are scattred in every part of the town. The gas works was reportedly destroyed.

Granaries and mills in the city, reportedly, are "blazing like tinder," fanned by a rising wind.

The attack lasted "several hours" according to German reports. How many planes participated remains unrevealed but during the night it is stated, "several hundred tons" of bombs were dropped by the attackers.

The British anti-aircraft guns, it is reported here, were firing accurately and heavily in the first stages of the raid but as squadron after squadron dropped its bombs, their fire became erratic and increasingly ineffective.

Southampton, and particularly Bristol, the Germans point out, are the most important supply centers for London. The bombardments which these two towns suffered in the last 48 hours, it is concluded, therefore, cannot fail to further affect life in the capital.

Weather Curtails Raids

Weather conditions over England today curtailed aerial activities, according to the latest German reports, which mention only scattered raids by single planes on London and southern England. No air battles were reported here.

Reichsmarshal Goering and Press Chief Dr. Otto Dietrich today invited neutral foreign air attaches and newspaper correspondents to make a tour of the Berlin railroad stations to observe the damages which the British allege to have inflicted in the raid on Berlin Saturday night.

After viewing the evidence, not only the correspondents but also the military air attaches were constrained to speculate over the basis upon which the British made their allegations.

For the Potsdamer Bahnof was definitely not hit by an explosive bomb. This correspondent coincidently was bidding a departing friend adieu at the Anhalter station when the air raid siren sounded and spent the brief period of the alarm above ground in the vicinity of that station, which is but a few hundred yards from the Potsdamer station. During the entire time he did not see a single saerchlight in the activity of battery firing or shell bursting, and did not hear a single plane.

There was, furthermore, neither at the Lehrter nor the Putlitzstrasse stations any evidence of damage which was then newly caused, nor were any windows in the vicinity broken.

Americans on Tour

This morning's tour was conducted by Dr. Dietrich and Lieut. Gen. Bodenschatz. The American air attache, Lieut. Col. Arthur Vannemann, and his assistant, Capt. W. R. Wolfinbarger, as well as United States Naval Air Attache Lieut. Comdr. Paul E. Pihl, made the inspection.

None within the city during Saturday's brief warning saw or heard anything of enemy planes over the German capital. The night was dark but clear, and searchlights or exploding shells would have been visible to watchers on the rooftops.

Neutral observers suspect also in that night darkness it would have been extremely difficult for Royal Air Force pilots to have located the Berlin stations without having first dropped parachute flares, none of which was reported to have been seen.

Andrews Succeeds Craigavon As Ulster's Prime Minister

By the Associated Press

Belfast, Nov. 25.—John Miller Andrews, 69-year-old deputy prime minister of Northern Ireland, was elevated to prime minister today to succeed Viscount Craigavon, who died last night.

Lord Craigavon, bitter foe of proposals for union of Southern Ireland (Erie) with Northern Ireland (Ulster), had been the first and only prime minister since the Ulster government was founded in 1921. His death was believed due to a heart attack.

Andrews has also opposed union proposals, but some observers expressed belief there now might be a remote possibility of a stronger move for unification.

Naval Base Deal Suggested

It has been suggested that under such a program the six British-controlled Ulster counties might be given to Eire in return for the leasing of Southern Ireland naval bases to Britain.

Lord Craigavon had insisted that Northern Ireland's separation from Eire must "remain forever."

Andrews was appointed after a three-hour cabinet session in which members said they were confronted with a "ticklish legal problem" because there was no precedent for selecting a successor for a prime minister who dies in office.

De Valera Expresses Grief

In Dublin, Eamon de Valera, prime minister of Eire, expressed sorrow on learning of the death of Viscount Craigavon.

"Notwithstanding the views he expressed, I always cherished the hope he would yet play a leading part in bringing about a reunion of our country," De Valera said. "I met him once and liked him personally. What a pity it is that he is dead while the thing he supported (partition of Ireland) lives."

U.S. Orders 200 Tanks to Go on Land or Water

Machines Will Do Anything Alligator Will, Except Lay Egg

By the Associated Press

Clearwater, Fla., Nov. 25.—A mechanical version of the Florida alligator, able to travel on land or water with equal ease, is one of the Navy's latest additions.

The Navy has ordered 200 of the "alligators"—amphibian tanks—from Donald Roebling, wealthy young Clearwater contractor whose ancestors also liked to build unusual things and acquired fame and fortune from suspension bridges.

The machines can do just about anything a real alligator can do except lay an egg.

Specifications of the ones Roebling will build for the Navy have not been disclosed, but two models he constructed for himself give some idea of what the Navy's machines will be like.

The Navy isn't telling either what the tanks will be used for but since the early models carried no armor or other combat equipment, it is expected they will be used for landings on difficult terrain where dock facilities are unavailable.

A Navy spokesman in Washington suggested the machines would be useful in landing operations or in crossing rivers when Marines or sailors were engaged in combat on land.

The novel feature of the "alligators" is that they depend on the same equipment for traction on land or water, and consequently are able to splash and crash through swampland and mud that is neither land nor sea. Traction is supplied through caterpillar treads equipped with extremely wide cleats that act as fins or paddles in mud and water but are close enough to provide fairly smooth transit on land.

Roebling built his first "alligator" in 1935. Compared with his later model it was a somewhat crude affair but effective.

The later model is an 8,000-pound job, 20 feet long and 8 feet wide. It does 25 miles an hour on land and 8½ in the water—and looks like a machine from Mars either place.

In tests the ponderous vehicle ran from land into water and back again as easily as its animal prototype. Roebling then tried it in mushy swampland where a land vehicle would bog down and a boat couldn't run. The alligator wallowed along without hesitating. Logs, seaweed, grass, slime—none had any effect. Trees up to 8 inches in diameter were battered down.

"No one raid could destroy more than a part of the shipyards," said the air ministry in explanation of the many attacks on this objective. "There is much work for our bombers to do."

Medium British bombers have pounded the Rhenania Ossage oil refineries in the Grassbrook area of Hamburg and the Altona gas works. Although a good many bombs were dropped on these targets, the ministry said clouds again made it difficult to get a "complete picture" of the damage.

French Coast Shelled

By the Associated Press

London, Nov. 25.—British bombers completing a week-end of trip-hammer blows from Berlin to Turin, Italy, blasted the Nazi-held French coast for more than an hour. The Boulogne area bore the brunt.

Taking up where the flaks left off, British coastal batteries threw a screaming barrage across the Channel this morning and again tonight and the coast of Boulogne to Cap Gris Nez was alight with exploding shells.

The Germans took up the challenge both times and plumped shells into the Dover area, seeking to silence the British guns and perhaps attempting to hit a British convoy which passed through the Channel just before dusk.

Uneasiness Over Nazi Activity

London, Nov. 25 (U.P.)—Uneasiness over German activity along the coast of France was reflected tonight in the comment of one spokesman who said:

"We don't know what it portends. We wish we did."

Through censorship and military secrecy filtered the impression that persistent attacks on French harbors were to blast bases from which German submarines put out to attack British convoys. The German-held base at Lorient on the Brittany coast had been mentioned particularly in that respect.

6,750 New Defense Homes Approved

Col. Westbrook, Clark Forman Get Key Housing Posts

By Edward Ryan

Two veteran Government works administrators have been shifted to key assignments in the national defense housing program, it was learned yesterday following an announcement that President Roosevelt had approved preparations for building 6,750 more dwellings.

One of these building projects will be the construction of 650 family dwellings at Indianhead, Md., the National Defense Commission announced.

Clark Foreman, director of the power division in the Public Works Administration since 1935, has been named a special assistant to handle defense housing business for Federal Works Administrator Carmody. His appointment, Carmody announced, takes effect immediately.

Also assigned to Carmody's staff, it was learned, is Col. Lawrence Westbrook, assistant WPA commissioner, who has started to work full-time as housing consultant. Westbrook, named to his present WPA post a month ago, is former chairman of the national WPA advisory board and in the early days of relief work he directed the Government's rural community rehabilitation program.

Housing Authority to Help

Announcement of Foreman's appointment included an official statement that the United States Housing Authority would share with the Public Building Administration the job of defense housing.

There had been earlier reports that USHA, although it is already building several thousand "defense homes" with its own funds, might be sidetracked from a later share in the work.

Officials said, however, that no decision had been made as to how the various works agencies would divide the new housing work listed yesterday as having received the President's approval.

This approval was reported by Charles F. Palmer, housing coordinator for the National Defense Commission.

Palmer said that the President, under the recent $150,000,000 Lanham housing bill, had found that an acute shortage of housing, which would impede the national defense program, "exists or impends" in 11 defense centers.

Ten Other Centers Listed

These centers, in addition to Indianhead, with the numbers of dwellings estimated as necessary for each, were:

Jacksonville, Fla., 300; Pensacola, Fla., 100; Charleston, S. C., 600; Philadelphia and Camden, N. J., 1,000 dwellings for the two adjacent cities; New London, Conn., 300; Boston, 1,050; Vallejo, Calif., 950; Bremerton, Wash., 800, Island Oahu, Hawaii, 1,000.

On recommendation of Palmer, President Roosevelt found that these housing needs would not be filled by private capital. As a result of these findings, officials pointed out, Carmody can start immediately with construction of the homes, with funds from the Lanham bill.

No estimate had been made, officials said, of what would be the total cost of the 6,750 dwellings. The Lanham bill fixes $3,500 as the maximum average cost per dwelling unit on pojects for which it authorizes funds. If the actual construction costs hit this average, the total cost of the homes would be about $23,500,000.

Palmer also announced the appointments of Philip Norton, of Los Angeles, and Morton Bodfish, of Chicago, to the defense housing organization.

Norton will act as special housing consultant for the housing of defense workers through local private enterprise in the area west of the Mississippi River, Palmer said. He also will aid in establishing systems of registering housing vacancies in vital defense areas.

Bodfish was appointed as a dollar-a-year consultant, Palmer said, to deal with problems concerning the financing of homes with private capital.

Lothian Reported Seeking Battleships

Navy Department refused to divulge.—Editor's note.]

The memorandum taken to Washington by Lord Lothian does not suggest, it was understood, any price which this country would be willing to pay for increased naval aid, such as bases in the Pacific or Malayan waters, but it has been drawn up as a talking point.

The British would be willing to grant facilities for bases in any of their farflung possessions, but they hope that the United States will regard the proposition as a security measure for the Americas, with the character of an investment, rather than a bargain.

In addition to increasing protection for convoys, the British hope to obtain merchant tonnage from the United States of new or obsolete bottoms. It was said the special mission from the British ministry of shipping, which has examined the prospects of purchasing more tonnage from America, has spent or is about to spend a total of $100,000,000 and is prepared if necessary to double this figure.

The mission is interested particularly in contracting for cargo vessels of the fast C-2 and C-3 types, laid down under the Maritime Commission's program for the American Merchant Marine. These ships, of approximately 10,000 tons have a speed of 15½ knots, which the British deem sufficient to outrun any U-boat in service today.

The British desire for three American battleships and six cruisers is based on an evaluation of sea power throughout the world. The British feel that the United States could easily spare six cruisers from 56 they say were in commission at theoutbreak of war.

As for battleships, Britain had 14 of her own and 2 sailed into British ports by their French crews, the Paris and the Courbet, or more than 22,189 tons and of World War vintage. Thus, Britain has world supremacy in capital ships, with a total of 16, and 5 more of the new George V class are being completed or are in commission. Three from the United States would enable her to take risks that she cannot afford to face now.

Taranto Feat Frees Ships

The British calculate that the transfer of three capital ships would still leave the United States with 12, three more than Japan can put into the Pacific at the moment, thus preserving American superiority in Far Eastern waters.

Britain's victory over the Italian fleet at Taranto has had the effect of releasing capital ships from the Mediterranean for duty elsewhere. The British claim that one battleship of the Littorio class and two of the Cavour class were put out of action, but the Germans are reported to have completed two 35,000 tonners, the Tirpitz and the Bismarck, which, with the 26,000-ton Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, give the Nazi a potential battle fleet of four. The Scharnohorst was said to have been "pinked" by the battle cruiser Renown off Norway in April and the Gneisenau, according to unsubstantiated accounts, was struck during the invasion of Norway.

Whether Germany has three capital ships or four, the British are in no mood to be complacent. Some of their own capital ships are "immobilized" in the Mediterranean, while in the Atlantic the admiralty must provide against two contingencies:

First, that the Germans may use their battle fleet as a means to cover an invasion of Britain, and second, that the enemy may deploy its heavy ships, singly or in pairs, for raids and necessitating corresponding reinforcements for convoy escorts.

The naval correspondent of The Yorkshire Post wrote today: "German sea power is very much alive at the present time and offers to this country a challenge which cannot be ignored. To speak of it as having been destroyed in the Norwegian campaign is indicative of wishful thinking, in which no country, dependent as ours it on its command of the sea, can afford to indulge."

The current issue of the Economist puts the British naval and shipping position succinctly in a special article, which said:

"We cannot afford indefinitely to lose ships and cargoes at the present rate. As in 1917, the final answer to the attempt to starve us out and to prevent raw materials and munitions from reaching our shores must be found by the navy, in conjunction with the air force."

The Economis points out that since the fall of France the average weekly loss of British, Allied and neutral shipping has been 90,000 tons, equivalent to 4,680,000 gross tons a year against an actual loss of 2,856,000 tons in the first year of the war.

Shipbuilding Capacity

Before the war Britain's potential shipbuilding capacity was estimated at 2,000,000 tons, although some placed it as high as 3,000,000 tons. From empire shipyards Britain can expect no more than the 300,000 tons a year produced in 1919.

"We shall therefore," the Economist says, "have to rely chiefly on the United States." The paper recalls that in 1919 the American shipyards turned out 3,579,800 tons, the highest total ever reached by any country.

The Economist does not expect new tonnage from the United States until 1942 under the Ministry of Shipping's purchasing program. But the paper points out, "the American government still has about 50 cargo vessels laid up which it may be willing to lease to this country."

"In addition," it adds, "the United States Maritime Commission might conceivably encourage American shipowners to sell us obsolete but serviceable tonnage equal to the tonnage of the new vessels it will receive from the shipyards, whose output may reach 500,000 gross tons this year, but considerably more in 1941. By this means the commission may be able to solve the problem of the disposal of obsolete tonnage . . . While assisting us in the replacement of our losses pending the expansion of shipbuilding facilities in America.

Wheel of Progress Extols Cox Bill To Forbid Strikes

Representative Cox (Democrat), of Georgia, was commended for proposing legislation to prohibit strikes in national defense industries last night by the Wheel of Progress, meeting at its headquarters in the Washington Hotel.

In another resolution the organization called on Congress to create a board of national defense with full powers to direct a program of total preparedness.

Adoption of the resolutions followed talks by R. J. C. Dorsey, Washington lawyer, who told of subversive activities in the United States, and Lucia Ramsey Maxwell, author and first vice president of the Wheel, who condemned strikes in factories working on defense orders.

American financial help.

It has been estimated that Britons have long and short term investments in the United States totaling $2,800,000,000, in many types of manufacturing and distribution enterprises. More than half is in readily marketable stocks and bonds.

British holdings in Latin America, government experts said yesterday, are probably in the neighborhood of $4,000,000,000. The largest share is in Argentina, where the British own many railroads and utilities, but there are also heavy British holdings in Chile and Brazil.

In Canada, Britain has investments estimated at $2,685,000,000. The largest share is in railroads, but there are important sums in manufacturing, mining, public utilities and government bonds.

Further, White House advisers point out that Canada has an estimated $1,070,000,000 invested in the United States, which could be sold in exchange for dollars to spend on war supplies.

One thought in the mind of officials who explain this view is that, if Britain sells out these investments before borrowing money here, the United States at the end of the war will be the owner of much rich property in its own part of the world which is now in British hands.

The Administration view, it was further explained, is that public opinion in the United States is not ready for repeal of the Johnson Act, which bars loans to foreign nations in default to the United States, or for amendment of the Neutrality Act, which forbids loans to belligerent nations.

It was pointed out by high officials, meanwhile, that Britain could be extended financial aid that would not be forbidden by the Johnson Act or the Neutrality Act.

The law does not forbid outright gifts of money to Britain, officials said, nor does it bar "deals," such as trading American financial aid for British West Indian colonies.

Lord Lothian said in this regard, after seeing Secretary Hull, that the question of the West Indian islands had not been discussed.

Meanwhile, Chairman Walter F. George of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee arranged to sound out Administration views on possible further steps in aid of Britain at State Department and White House conferences.

Committee to Meet

Preliminary to the first postelection meeting of his Senate committee tomorrow, George will call on Secretary of State Hull this morning and later will confer with the President.

In general agreement with the Administration aid policy already laid down, George was withholding specific commitments on other steps that might be taken until he receives the "general picture" from Hull and Mr. Roosevelt.

Attention of the Foreign Relations Committee will be given tomorrow at its first meeting under the chairmanship of the Georgia Senator to a resolution for an investigation of the credit resources of Great Britain in the United States, including British property holdings. It was introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota.

George expressed belief that this information, if and when needed, could be obtained from the Treasury Department.

On the King resolution, to allow the United States to lend money or extend credit forbidden by the Johnson Act, the Foreign Relations Committee was expected to either refer the resolution to the State Department with a request for recommendation—a course considered doubtful at this time—or temporarily "pass over" the resolution, postponing action.

Lacking a specific Administration request, the latter course appeared likely. Senator Johnson (Republican), of California, author of the Johnson Act, and ranking minority committee member, probably will ask that action be deferred.

Hull yesterday would not express an opinion on whether some form of aid would be possible without revision of the Johnson Act and the Neutrality Act. He said, however, that the whole question of financial aid to Britain would have to be considered by Governmental and Congressional authorities, to establish a basic policy, before details could be discussed.

During the day, the President conferred with Dr. Raul Prebisch, head of an Argentine economic mission that has come to Washington reportedly in quest of a $100,000,000 loan. The mission chief said he had not discussed the Argentine export problem with the President. He described his visit as just a "courtesy call."

Averring that morale in Great Britain is high, Lord Lothian told newsmen that the Royal Air Force gained mastery of the skies during daylight hours in September, but that night bombings "present a problem."

The Labor Party "is now in an ascendancy it has never had before," he said, adding that "you can't do anything in England against public opinion."

His countrymen, the envoy said, were determined to bring the era of bombing to an end and create a world which would provide every man a job, as an inherent right.

In answer to statements attributed to Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, "democracy is dead" in Britain, Lord Lothian declared he had never seen "a more democratic country" in his life.

War Cost Rises

Glasgow, Scotland, Nov. 25 (A.P.)—Describing this as the most costly war the world ever has known, Sir Kingslye Wood, chancellor of the exchequer, said today that Britain's average daily war expenditures had risen from £5,300,000 ($21,200,000) for the first year to £9,100,000 ($36,400,000) for the first 77 days of the second year.

Sir Kingsley, speaking at the opening of War Weapons Week in Glasgow, said the rise in expenditures was a cause for gratification "provided always that the increase means output and not merely senseless increases in prices of wages or wasteful use of resources."

The chancellor explained that new and expensive weapons had resulted in the big increase of war costs.

"An airplane costs something like seven times as much as it did between 1914 and 1918," he said.

Referring to losses suffered by the Italian air force in the Battle of Britain, Sir Kingsley asserted that "an inferior airplane, as the Italians are discovering to their cost, is largely money thrown away."

Pointing out that taxation in Britain "already has reached very considerable proportions," Sir Kingsley said that the gap between income and expenditure must be bridged by the people "saving every pound and every penny to the point of real sacrifice."

He declared that the response of the British people to the war savings campaign had "confounded the gloomy prophets . . . and we can look forward to the future with confidence and hope."

Plane Engine Research Plant To Be Built at Cleveland

U. S. to Spend $8,400,000 on Laboratory; 100 Specialists to Be Moved From Langley; Operations Slated to Begin in Year

The National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics yesterday announced that the Cleveland Municipal Airport will be the site of its engine research laboratory for testing the huge power plants which will drive America's big planes of the future.

Cleveland was chosen because it offers the necessary room for buildings, test stands, long runways for testing planes in flight and facilities for personnel, John F. Victory, secretary of the committee, declared.

The Government will spend $8,400,000 on the laboratory, and expectations are that it will be in partial operation within a year. Approximately 100 trained engineers, physicists, mechanics and riggers will be moved from Langley Field, Va., site of the committee's largest laboratory, to Cleveland as rapidly as equipment becomes available, and 200 additional workers will be added to the highly specialized force as they are needed.

Plans for the buildings, on which bids are now being received, call for a large-scale wind tunnel and at least three test stands on which engines of 3,000 or more horsepower can be tested to determine their maximum power output.

At present, in addition to the Langley Field group of laboratories, the committee is completing the Joseph S. Ames Laboratory at Moffett Field, Calif., to provide nearby facilities for West Coast airplane manufacturers, and the United States Army Air Crops is rushing to completion new testing facilities at Wright Field, W. Lewis, research

Dr. George W. Lewis, research director of the NACA, declared that "although America's airplane engines are at present as good as those of any other nation, there is great room for improvement."

The magnitude of America's aircraft program during the next few years necessitates "greatly increased concentration on research," he added.

The War Department yesterday gave the Remington Arms Co. of Bridgeport, Conn., a $73,575,261 contract to procure the equipment for a small arms ammunition plant near Lake City, Mo., and operate it for an unspecified period.

Officials said the contract covered production of ammunition for rifles, semi-automatic rifles and machine guns.

After completion, officials said, title to the plant and equipment would remain with the Government.

Location of the plant, conformed with the Government's announced policy of placing new munitions factories in the interior, where they would be most difficult for enemy bombers to reach.

Old Ship to Become Transport

New York, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—The 35-year old liner America, seized in 1917 from Germany, arrived today at the Bethlehem shipyards in Brooklyn for final outfitting as a United States Army transport.

The 21,329-ton vessel has been laid up in Chesapeake Bay since 1931 when she was taken out of the Transatlantic service. The America left Baltimore Friday after reconditioning as part of the national defense program.

Law May Prevent Christmas Gift of Bomber to British

Burbank, Calif., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Neutrality laws may make it necessary for the 20,000 employes of the Lockheed and Vega aircraft plants to give the British cash instead of a proposed $100,000 Hudson bomber for a Christmas present.

E. J. Morgan, employe spokesman, said the original plan was for the men to donate two hours' working time each, with the companies furnishing materials.

Robert E. Gross, president of Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, said tonight, however, a different plan may be necessary to meet neutrality law requirements. He indicated the company would do its share.

Morgan said: "The British are responsible for many of us working and we think a Christmas gift would be a fine thing."

Pictures Disclose Taranto Damage

Aerial Photographs Show Battleships Battered, Listing

By Robert P. Post
Copyright by New York Times

London, Nov. 25.—Four pictures released in London today show the damage done the Italian fleet in Taranto Harbor by planes of the fleet air arm.

These pictures were taken by Royal Air Force bomber reconnaissance planes on November 14, two days after the attack took place.

One picture shows an Italian battleship of the Littorio class—probably the Vittorio Veneto, of 35,000 tons. She is badly down by the head—probably with her deck just awash at the bows. There is a tanker alongside, presumably pumping, and there is a big Italian submarine on the other side, presumably to supply the power for the pumping.

The next picture shows one of the Cavour class battleships, all four of which were in the harbor at the time. She must have been gravely hit, for she is heeled over until all the starboard rail is under water. Most of the stern is submerged also. There are no signs of activity about her.

The third picture shows another battleship of the Cavour class. She, too, is down by the head in the water, which is so shallow that the bow must be on the bottom. She is surrounded on three sides by torpedo nets. There are some boats clustered about her as she lies heeled over. Presumably the Italians in the picture are making efforts to tow her off.

The fourth picture shows the inner harbor. There, two Trente class cruisers are surrounded by oil. This is the only evidence in this photograph which shows that they have been damaged. Presumably they have been, since a large amount of oil is showing.

One of the pictures also shows activity around still another battleship of the Cavour class, which may mean damage. The interior of the harbor is crowded with Italian war vessels.

20 Ships Quit Harbor

There were actually six battleships, ten cruisers, 27 destroyers, a number of submarines, motor torpedo boats, one seaplane carrier and ships of a train in the harbor when the raid was made. Three battleships, eight cruisers and nine destroyers departed soon after the raid.

Pending a closer examination of the pictures and the reports of the pilots the British have decided that they certainly damaged two Cavours and one Littorio battleship and may have damaged another Cavour, two trente class cruisers and the Bolzano which was also in the inner harbor. In view of this damage there may have been further injury to lighter vessels.

District Selects to Get Big Send-Off

ing the World War.

Two members of the board, John Callan O'Loughlin and John Locher, were out of the city, and will be sworn in on their return. The other eight took the oath of office in the quarters of Gen. Cox at the armory.

They were, besides Leahy and Godwin, Dr. James A. Gannon, C. Herbert Marshall, James A. Cobb, Cecil Owen, Dr. W. C. Moore and Dr. George C. Havenner. The oath was administered by Capt. C. Tinsley Garnett.

Gen. Cox told the board members that selectees who felt that they had been wrongly classified would come to them for final decision. Under the terms of the Selective Service Act, he said, the board may expend $270 for office help. Offices have been established on the fifth floor of the District Building.

No Appeals Pending

At present there are no appeal cases awaiting action. Of the 51 men who will be inducted tomorrow and Thursday, 48 are volunteers, and no appeals have been noted.

A change was made yesterday in the induction schedule. Instead of starting their routine after the 10 a. m. ceremonies, the selectees will meet at 7:30 a. m. at the induction center, at 458 Indiana Avenue Northwest, and go through most of the routine before the 10 a. m. send-off.

From the induction center, the men will be taken to Walter Reed Hospital for a physical examination After this and other routine steps are completed, they will be taken to Fort Meade to begin their year's training.

Thirty-two of the 51 will go through the mill tomorrow. The other 19 will follow Thursday.

Inaugurating a series of broadcasts explaining selective service to the people, Dr. Dykstra declared last night that the successful operation of the draft in the past two months had given the lie to those who "preach the doctrine that democracies are soft and supine."

"To such doctrinaires," Dykstra said, "the American people have just now given their answer forcefully, dramatically and unequivocally. The inauguration of Selective Service and its successful operation to date are a convincing demonstration that a democracy can act once it is aroused."

He said the draft would give the American people a new conception of democracy, one which regards sacrifice and duty as important to the democratic process as "opportunities, benefits and privileges." Selectives, he added, will learn discipline, respect for American traditions, and tolerance in their year of service.

277 Selectives—Vanguard Of 1,000—Arrive at Ft. Meade

By train and bus, 277 men from Pennsylvania and Maryland rolled into Fort George G. Meade, Md., last night, first of 1,100 to be started on their Army careers this week in the Third Corps Area.

They were among 1,932 called into service throughout the country yesterday by the Selective Service Act. Before the week is out, 16,387 young men will have entered reception centers in each of the nine corps areas.

There, as at Meade, they will be given medical check-ups immediately upon arrival. Then, if they reach camp at night, as all those now at Fort Meade did, they will be sent to barracks. Early the next day they will be started on the routine of qualification and ability tests, be uniformed, and be given elementary military instruction until assigned to training centers.

Last night's 227 men reached Fort Meade in four contingents, 100 men from Philadelphia, 80 from Harrisburg, 35 from Baltimore and 62 from Pittsburgh. Today 284 men will arrive at Meade and tomorrow and Thursday the District's first contingents will be received.

Of these, 32 from Washington will arrive tomorrow and 19 Thursday. With Thursday's Washington contingent will be 21 men from Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, Maryland, and 16 from Arlington County and Alexandria, Va. The total number expected Wednesday is 283, Thursday, 144; and Friday, 132, a total of 1,100 for the week.

Present tentative schedules call for clearance of all 1,000 by December 6. The greatest number of men expected to be at the center on any one day is 824. First selectees to be shipped to training centers will leave Fort Meade tomorrow, just as the first District selectees arrive.

Requisitions for selected men already have been received at Meade from centers at Fort Belvoir, Va. (Engineers); Fort Holabird, Md. (Quartermaster Corps); Fort Monroe, Va. (Coast Artillery); Carlisle Barracks, Pa. (Medical Corps), and Adgewood Arsenal, Md. (Medical Corps.).

Colorado Senator Assails Draft Act

Denver, Nov. 25 (AP).—Calling the Selective Service Act "one of the most wasteful and extravagant measures ever enacted by Congress," Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado, declared tonight that $5,000,000 to be spent training draftees for one year would "provide little or no defense."

In a radio address, Senator Johnson said conscription training would be sufficient only to make foot soldiers out of selectees and observed:

"You cannot stop a 20-ton tank moving 60 miles an hour with a bayonet, nor bring down a bomber 5 miles in the air with a Springfield rifle."

Senator Johnson contended that conscription training was building the Nation's "fourth line" of defense before the first three—in order, the Navy, the Air Corps, and motorized military forces.

Japan Reported Preparing Attack East of Chungking

Lashio, Burma, Nov. 25 (U.P.)—The Japanese are massing a large field army in Hankow for a drive against the main positions of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek's armies east of Chungking, a well-informed European authority said here today.

The assembling of men and equipment for this army, according to the informant, who reached Lashio from the Yangtse Valley by way of the Burma Road, explains recent Japanese naval activity along the South China coast and on the lower and central Yangtze River.

Launching of the Japanese attack, he believed, would follow Japan's recognition of the Nanking regime headed by former Premier Wang Ching-Wei as the "national government of China."

Nazis Wall Off 500,000 Jews In Pole Capital

Passes Are Necessary To Enter or Leave Ghetto at Warsaw

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Nov. 25.—Approximately 500,000 Jews will begin tomorrow a new life behind an 8-foot concrete wall built by Germans to enclose the Ghetto of Warsaw, dispatches from the former Polish capital reported tonight.

By German decree, all Jews in Warsaw have been required to take up residence in the Ghetto, which lies in the central district of the city, and it has become overcrowded, with as many as seven persons living in one room in some buildings.

The Germans built the wall last winter, saying the action was not anti-Semitic but simply a health measure to protect Poles and Jews alike from the pestilences likely to follow total war.

They left 18 entrances open—but effective tomorrow all persons who wish to enter or leave must have a special pass. This applies also to any gentle Pole wishing to enter the district temporarily.

The Jews have been busy taking their belongings and their business properties within the wall.

The German decree also brought about a wave of frantic purchases outside the ghetto in an effort to stock up on things which may not be procured within.

The wall, unusual in modern times, surrounds 100 or more city blocks and closes off 200 streets and even street car lines.

The Warschauer Zeitung (Warsaw Times) reports from Radom that another ghetto has been founded there and the Jewish population ordered to take up residence within it.

The same paper reports that use of the main postoffice in Krakow has been denied to Jews and that they must go to a suburban branch.

Lothian's Appeal Is 'Beggar's Cry For Help,' Nazis Say

Berlin, Nov. 25.—Remarks of Lord Lothian, the British ambassador to the United States, to the American press on his return to the United States from a visit in London were editorially interpreted by the German press as the "cry for help of a beggar."

That cry, it is emphasized here, is a positive indication of the effects of the German counter-blockade on British financial reserves and tonnage.

Such an appeal for help from America, the press here declares, indicates further that the British realize they will be "starved out long before the year, 1944, in which the English offensive is scheduled to begin; that the delivering possibilities of America are restricted to the natural boundaries of that country's industrial capacity as well as the American armament requirements."

Rain—and Maybe Snow, Colder Predicted Today

Increasing cloudiness and cooler temperatures today will be accompanied by rain and possibly mixed with snow tonight, the Weather Bureau predicted last night.

A maximum temperature of 44 degrees is expected to fall to about 30 during the day. Yesterday's high temperature was 45, at 3 p. m.; the lowest was 38, at 6 a. m.

Rain and slightly warmer temperatures are forecast for tomorrow.

Nazi, Belgrade, Greek Envoys See Saracoglu

By the Associated Press

Ankara, Nov. 25.—In a busy round of interviews, Turkey's Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu today conferred with German Ambassador von Papen for the second time since that envoy returned from Berlin and talked also with the Greek and Yugoslav ambassadors.

No official comment was available after any of the conversations, but it was known they dealt with the threatened spread of the Balkan war.

It was the second time in three days Von Papen had seen Saracoglu.

The military attache of the German Embassy left Istanbul by plane for Berlin yesterday. It was reported unofficially he carried confidential memoranda on the results of the first Von Papen-Saracoglu talk.

The official Ankara radio said tonight that Italy, whose attack on Greece it classed as a "debacle," was seeking Bulgarian aid. The radio added that "Bulgaria is hesitating and it is clear that German and Soviet interests in Bulgaria have not been reconciled."

The commentator said Yugoslavia was greatly encouraged by Greek successes and "it seems Yugoslavia now means to resist."

Two Canadian Fliers Die as Planes Collide

London, Ontario, Nov. 25 (AP).—Two Royal Canadian Air Force men, Lewis Duff, 23, sixth-ranking Canadian tennis player, who learned much of his game at the University of Miami, Florida, and John Higginbotham, 23, of South Orange, N. J., were killed today in the collision of their training planes near here. Both were classed as leading aircraftsmen.

British Industry Hard-Hit By New German Air Strategy

By Edward W. Beattie, jr.
United Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 25.—The new German air strategy which has swung the weight of the offensive to the Industrial Midlands has hurt but not crippled the thousand-and-one industrial processes which go to make up the modern war machine.

Nobody outside a few officials knows to what extent industry has been hit, and if he did know he would not be permitted to tell. The consensus in well-informed quarters is that while the damage has been serious, it is not critical.

In the present state of defense against night bombing, no city either in England or Germany, is immune. The defenses of the Midlands are stated to be at least as strong, in proportion to the size of the objectives, as those of London—or presumably those of Berlin, Hamburg and the Ruhr.

England, as a last resort, could move essential industrial production overseas, out of range of present bombers. Without the wholesale transfer of its industrial plant deep into Russia, with the almost insuperable obstacles involved, Germany could not put its factories out of the reach of British bombers operating from bases in England and the Mediterranean.

Two years ago, when the "shadow" system for the munitions industry was first put into effect, there was widespread criticism over the fact that new factories had been built close to old industrial concentrations, instead of on isolated sites, where they would be hard to find and hit.

Since then there has been improvement in the construction policy. Not only are the new factories scattered, but in no case is one factory the sole supplier of any essential weapon or part.

Another factor tending to diminish the shock of German air attacks is the German bombing technique, which relies on a tremendous weight of explosives dropped from a great height, over a comparatively wide area, to accomplish what the R. A. F. tries to do by carefully specialized low-level attacks.

According to well-informed air circles in London, the Germans have been flying just as high in the Midlands as they ever did here, and in some cases bombed on moonlight nights from 18,000 to 20,000 feet. It is claimed that British attacks on Germany have been carried out from a height of 5,000 to 8,000 feet, and occasionally, only a few hundred feet, with corresponding dividends in results.

Coventry took a worse beating than any town in England in a bombing which was distinguished above all others by its ferocity. Over a comparatively small city, the Germans dropped enough high explosives to create an approximation of Guernica, in Spain, or Rotterdam, in Holland. Although the damage elsewhere outside London has been serious, there is no indication that it was anywhere on a scale proportionate to Coventry.

There are several instances where important factories badly hit in the last few months are now back on schedule, or close to it. There are others where the damage at first appeared so great that it would be easier to rebuild elsewhere, but which shortly will be able to resume on part time, and eventually reach full prdouction.

The war in its present stage is as much one of production strangulation as a starvation blockade. No one denies the gravity of the German U-boat and airplane attacks on Atlantic convoys. But the British blockade, it is claimed, is even more serious for Germany.

Mexico Orders Almazan Guarded

Defeated General Arrives Today On 'Peace' Mission

By the Associated Press

Mexico City, Nov. 25.—The expected arrival tomorrow of Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan, who long refused to concede the election of Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho as President, aroused misgivings tonight amid preparations for the inauguration December 1 of Gen. Avila Camacho.

Officially, the government took no precautions, but secret police sources said Almazan and his followers would be kept under constant surveillance until the purpose of his announced "peace" mission could be determined. There was no official word as to the whereabouts of Almazan tonight, since it was said he had not yet crossed the Mexican border.

A brother in Baltimore announced last week that Almazan wanted to "avoid any possibility of a revolution" in Mexico and was "disposed to do all that was humanly possible to do in order that the will of the Mexican people was respected. . . ."

Followers Confused

The brother said Almazan and his family entrained for Mexico November 22.

Almazan's followers here appeared confused as to his actual purpose in returning.

(The National Broadcasting Co. announced in New York that two broadcasts of the inaugural ceremonies would be made December 1. Shortwave transmission also will be made to South America.

(The first broadcast covering the actual inauguration will be broadcast over the N. B. C. red network from 12 to 12:30 p. m. (E. S. T.). The second, to be heard from 11 p. m. to midnight (E. S. T.) over the blue network, will feature an address by Vice President-elect Henry A. Wallace, named by President Roosevelt as his special representative with the rank of ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary.)

Wallace at Laredo

Laredo, Tex., Nov. 25 (AP).—Vice President-elect Henry A. Wallace arrived here today by automobile en route to Mexico for the Presidential inauguration.

With Mr. and Mrs. Wallace were J. D. LeCron, his secretary, and Mrs. LeCron.

Impressive welcoming ceremonies were arranged for his visit which was described by Ambassador Francisco Castillo Najera as a "red-letter" event in Mexican-United States relationships.

Najera, Mexican Ambassador to the United States, arrived early today, like Wallace, delayed by the high water in East Texas.

Wallace declared he hoped his visit would "cement the good relationship between Mexico and the United States on a firm foundation, and I hope also it will help to increase one of Mexico's chief industries—tourists."

Wallace declined to comment when asked if he would discuss in Mexico pending matters between the two countries, such as agrarian claims and oil expropriation and added after the Mexican inauguration "my chief job will be to learn as much Spanish as possible."

Philippine Officer Sentenced to 15 Years

Manila, Nov. 25 (AP).—Convicted by a general court-martial on a charge of conspiring to sell military information, Capt. Rufo Romero, of the Philippine Scouts, was sentenced today to 15 years' imprisonment at hard labor and ordered dishonorably discharged.

Romero, a West Point graduate, had been charged with removing maps from Fort McKinley here for the purpose of selling them.

Gentlemen prefer BONDS and they're most partial to this foursome...
THE BEST, of course, is none too good for your friends during the holidays. So in selecting the finest bonded whiskies, most men choose from the four brands shown here. They are America's "Fourmost" whiskies—rich in prestige, mellowed by fame and wonderfully fine. In gay Christmas cartons, they make ideal gifts, and when served to Yuletide guests, they bespeak good cheer and hospitality. For each is marked by a rare flavor all its very own, and among bonded ryes and bourbons none can equal these four in popularity.

Old Overholt and Mount Vernon are straight rye whiskies; Old Grand-Dad and Old Taylor, Kentucky straight bourbon whiskies—all bottled in bond at full 100 proof.

Only A Technicality

It is unfortunate that President Roosevelt's proclamation of Pan American Day has excited hurt feelings south of the Rio Grande. But Rio de Janeiro, apparently, is hurt. Dispatches from Brazil say that the press there bitterly opposes celebrating the anniversary of the Wright brothers' first flight, holding that the Brazilian Santos Dumont flew an airplane before they did.

The dispute is an old one. In 1934, when an effort was made to return the original Wright plane from England, and install it in the Smithsonian, a Brazilian newspaper attacked a proposed placard for the exhibit with the contention that "the honor of the first airplane flight with motor, carrying a man, belongs to Santos Dumont." In 1939, the Brazilian National Aeronautics Council asked the government not to take part in celebrations of other "first flights."

The wording of most of the Brazilian protests indicates that the dispute revolves around a technicality—maybe nothing more formidable than the interpretation of the term "airplane." Santos Dumont conducted brilliant and highly publicized experiments with dirigibles at Paris from 1898 to 1904. These are described in the revised version of his autobiography, published in 1904, which makes no mention of any attempts to a fly a machine like the one we call the airplane. The Wrights made their flight in 1903 on lonely Killdevil Hill, and the press took little notice, but witnesses were present. Santos Dumont's initial flight in a similar machine, in 1906, is the first recorded by the International Aeronautical Association, but this organization had not been established when the Wrights took to the air.

Many persons besides the Wrights and Santos Dumont made practical contributions to the invention of the airplane. They all deserve credit with Santos Dumont and the Wrights. Since a misunderstanding persists, perhaps it would be well to follow Brazilian suggestions that an international commission determine who flew first in any given type of machine. But since Pan American Aviation Day presumably is an occasion for solidarity and good will, its sponsors would be wise to consult representatives of other nations on a generally satisfactory date to honor all the pioneers of the air.

Fall Of Megalopolis

There used to be a story about an old Scotswoman who was renowned throughout several parishes for her singular kindliness of heart and her ability to discover redeeming traits in seemingly depraved and wholly unregenerate persons. "I do believe," said a neighbor, exasperated by her excess of Christian charity, "ye wuid hae a guid wuird aboot the devil himseel'." The old woman reflected a moment and replied, "Weel, tha' do say he's verra indoostrious."

In something of the same spirit, no doubt, Mr. Frank Lloyd Wright, the famous father of functional architecture, comes forward with a kind word for total warfare, with its bombardment of great cities, the callous destruction of ancient monuments and the pitiless slaughter of civilian populations. Mr. Wright points out that this particular modern evil is doing away with another and possibly greater evil of the industrial age—the metropolis. "At least," he says, "it will give the architects a chance to start all over again."

Mr. Wright is now exhibiting in New York a model of the kind of city he thinks should replace the overgrown and untenable European metropolises of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Among various other advantages, Mr. Wright's city is said to be so nearly bombproof that it would scarcely be worth while for an enemy to attack it.

"Concentration of population," declared Mr. Wright, "is murder—whether in peacetime or war." As to the truth of this, so far as it relates to war, there can be only one opinion. What Mr. Wright means by "murder in peacetime" is not so clear, but possibly he means the comparative sterility of modern urban populations. It has long been noticed that numerous metropolitan families become extinct within a few generations and that the population is replenished by a continuous immigration from the towns and rural areas. These, according to some historians, are tendencies which have characterized many past civilizations in their periods of decline.

The process of centralization of industry, and consequently of population, has been in evidence since the industrial revolution and has gradually created the vast sprawling cities of today, with their well-nigh insoluble problems of housing, sanitation, food supply, policing and traffic regulation. All students of these problems have recognized that sooner or later, by one means or another, the process must be reversed. In late Roman times statutes were passed over a period of generations to reverse the centralizing tendency, but with little success. In Europe within a few months, the destruction of cities, and the exigencies of defense, seem to have prepared the way for solution of what otherwise might have been the problem of successive generations.

Greek Chances

The wars in Europe from the very beginning have been much too important to entrust to the generals and the admirals. And so the strategic possibilities of any given military situation must always be qualified by sundry caveats. In the Greco-Italian war, for instance, the Greek back is more likely to be stabbed by a third party than broken by Mussolini. There are several candidates for this unenviable role. Germany may move through Rumania and Bulgaria against Greek Macedonia; Bulgaria may seize the opportunity of driving due south to the Aegean; even Yugoslavia, incredibly enough, is said to be wondering what she might pick up in Greece. However, the gallant Hellenes, a little nation with an immortal name, seem to be ignoring these chances (perhaps because of the help on land as well as from sea and air from the British) by pushing into Albania in what is described in Athens communiques as "a full-fledged offensive."

Operations so far are restricted to central and southern Albania. But here sizable gains have been scored in throwing the Duce's legions back toward the Adriatic and the Ionian Seas. The kilted troops of King George VII are now well astride the frontier road running inside the Albanian side of the wild and rugged boundary. In central Albania the Italian right wing at the start of the war was based at Koritza, whence Il Duce (counting, as the Russians did in Finland, on late-season surprise) hoped to get through the mountains to Florina. This would have put the Italians onto the flat and rolling Macedonian countryside en route to the key port of the Aegean at Salonika. But the attack found the alert Greeks ready with a riposte that eventually gave them Koritza itself. The Greeks have continued to drive the Italians north along the mountain artery from Koritza, and are said to have "reached" Pogradec. At Pogradec the Greeks would be well on the road to the Albanian capital at Tirana.

If this is true, and the reports from Athens seem to have been very accurate so far, the fighting Greeks have done a pretty good job. Twenty-five miles of rugged country separates Pogradec from Koritza, and this has been covered in two days. That's good for marching, let alone fighting, and seems to imply that, even if the Italian right wing isn't in a rout, they're in pretty much of a flight.

On the southern front the Greeks also report a spectacular success. Here the Italian left wing attempted an invasion over the Pindus Mountains into Epirus, with Janina as the objective. Thence the Italians would have debouched onto the rich plain of Thessaly, famous in military annals for Brutus' stand. But the Italians never got to the junction. Waiting for them was a mousetrap, and in they walked, with the Greeks, atop the heights on either side, waiting to deal with them. The maneuver was similar to the fatal blunder of the British land forces in central Norway. When the Greeks fell on the Italians, the Fascisti had to make as hurried a retreat as they did at Koritza.

The Greeks have kept going in southern as in central Albania. And the Italians, over a front stretching from the Ionian Sea to Permet, are so far back that their southern, or left wing, base at Argirocastro is reported in danger. On the heights surrounding Argirocastro are the Greeks, and it looks as if the Italians, faced with Greek penetration along the coast to the rear of this Italian left wing base may have to abandon it—and maybe, also, the adjacent Albanian port opposite Corfu renamed after Mussolini's daughter, Porto Edda. At any rate, the Greeks are still on a coastal move north toward Porto Edda.

Whatever the British may have thought at the start about the possibilities of Greek resistance, they are now enthusiastically giving the Hellenes their full cooperation. The "full-fledged offensive" is spoken of as Greco-British, and veterans from Dunkerque are being ferried across the Mediterranean in one transport after another. There's even talk of a Greco-British offensive off the opposite coast of Greece—an operation suited to the amphibious instincts of both allies—against Italy's Dodecanese Islands. How Byron, who died that Greece might live, would have rejoiced to see the Hellenes in martial league with his own countrymen in a cause "to keep truth articulate."

Neither the one ally nor the other seems to be holding its hand from fear of a back-stab at Macedonia; rather, it is spurring them both on, for the stakes of this war in Greece are the control of the eastern Mediterranean, and in that mighty conflict Nelson's advice might be best: "The boldest measures are the safest."

A Gentleman Of Japan

Just as news comes out of Japan, from the trustworthy pen of Wilfred Fleisher, that the "new structure in Japan" may take the form of a revival of the pre-1868 shogunate, the death is reported of a man who was an official in these far-off days of the shogunate. He is Prince Kimmoochi Saionji, the last of Japan's elder statesmen, dead at the venerable age of 91.

Saionji, the adopted son of a line of 34 adopted sons, who was one of the remarkable men of our times, spent his last days sitting on the lid of ebullient Nippon. They used to call him the "wall of liberalism" around the Mikado. For he was the last of the group of great men upon whom successive emperors since the sovereign Meiji leaned in making either treaties or appointments. Their job had been to modernize Japan on a liberal pattern, and to keep it modernized. One by one they have passed away, leaving Saionji, the last vestige of Japan's feudal age, striving desperately to hold Japan from going back to it.

So Saionji, in fact, lived not a lifetime, but an era. Eighty years ago he was a page at the Kyoto court of the Mikado, but in those far-off days, the Mikado was immured in monkish seclusion, and the reins of power reposed with the clan of the decrepit Tokugama. This was the supreme feudal lord, or shogun. And it was with him, not with the Mikado's court, that Perry negotiated an entry for the outside world, in 1853.

This American knock at the hermit's door was what started the Japanese awakening. They realized they must modernize or be swallowed up. And to start with this meant an end to feudalism, and a restoration (the Japanese call it a renovation) of the Mikado to his rightful and theocratic prerogatives. Saionji, who was anything but martial, fought in those civil wars, clad, like Richard the Lionheart, in green armor, and preceded by "a banner of red cloth with the sun and moon blazoned on it." Naturally he fought on the side of his patron Emperor against the feudal barons.

Saionji's job after the restoration was to put Japan along the path leading to the introduction of parliamentary institutions. Thirty-five years ago he realized his dream by becoming prime minister of the first party government in Japan responsible to the Diet. The liberal Saionji abhorred military interference in the government process only a little less than Fascism, as witness the reason for the fall of his second government, which was his refusal to give the army another two divisions. In 1931, however, the militarists became too truculent to trifle with, and were aided and abetted by assassins. But the genius of Saionji, exerted always in the shadows behind the throne, was shown by the way he managed to preserve the parliamentary shell after the shooting was over.

Now the world Saionji built in Japan has almost crumbled away. Perhaps he saw the augury when his other world fell—France, where, after his service at arms, he sojourned long enough to become kin with the Gallic spirit. He was in Theophile Gautier's circle, wrote light verse in French, and kept up his addiction for French novels to the last. On this, his grand tour, incidentally, he called on President Grant. But the flaneur of his Latin Quarter days had become the "ivory statue" to Clemenceau when he appeared at the peace conference as Japan's chief delegate. His France gone, his Japan going, there was nothing to do but die when he saw coming a "new structure" which was so old that only he in Japan recognized its antiquity.

Typical Family

From the Dallas Morning News.

While quite a bit of guesswork and chance may be involved in picking a typical American family, it appears that the New York World's Fair made no mistake in awarding this designation to Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Leathers and their son and daughter, of Clarendon. This farm family was picked last summer by a chamber of commerce as typical of west Texas and, with 40 other families, lived for a time in the model cottages on the fairgrounds.

The Texans, chosen over the others as typical Americans, are getting another trip to New York, plus a 1941 automobile, complete house furnishings and many other gifts. Just what standard the New York newspapers used in selecting the Leathers family over the other 40 is not clear, but it is gratifying to have the honor come to Texas and to a group as intelligent and friendly in appearance as the four members of the Leathers family.

There is much room for disagreement as to what constitutes a typical American family. Judges in competitions tend to pick those that seem to be model families, yet a really typical family would not be a model one. We merely flatter ourselves when we assume that the best samples are typical. But such definitions are hardly important. For the present, it is enough to know that a happy quartet from the Texas plains are showing the world how typical Americans look, talk and behave.

Berlin Complains Of Greek Aggression

Letters To The Editor

Food Abroad

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Combating ex-President Hoover in his demands that we feed enslaved Europe is not an agreeable task. Yet the need is imperative.

Pacifists and isolationists have won a rather general acceptance of the creed that we cannot police the world. Can we then undertake to relieve the misery caused by the lack of police control?

It is an unworthy misuse of language to claim that "we" in any way "condemn" unfortunates to further misfortune if we decide according to common sense instead of emotion.

Full responsibility for the distress of the conquered lies upon the conquerors; and the present peril to our Nation is far too great for us to burden ourselves with any portion of Germany's responsibility.

There are two answers to the fatuous talk about "adequate guarantees" as to the distribution of relief abroad:—

1. Even though the conquerors were to keep any pledge they might make, we would still be aiding them by feeding their slaves.

2. Is there any known fact which would justify us in believing that any such pledge would be kept as against "Deutchland uber alles?"

Facing the terrible alternative of fighting on, or of accepting such mercy as Germany might be able and willing to grant, the conquered nations have made their choice.

Slowly but surely, such a terrible alternative is advancing toward us—closer, ever closer. Dare we give the bandits indirect aid, even under pleas of humanity? Between them and ourselves, the British defense line is pitifully thin.

Belgian relief last time was entirely different. Although invaded, Belgium fought on.

Let us prepare. Let us aid the unfortunates in Britain. But let us resist the Chamberlains who seek to distract our minds and our energies from our great need—meeting the German threat.

Would Declare War

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of November 21 you say, editorially:

"We cannot afford to let Great Britain go down by default. It is to our self-interest to do everything possible to assist her . . ."

Allow me to concur in your well-timed decision, and to add that the way to assist her is for the Congress to declare war against the Axis powers.

"Irrefutable" Logic?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is an old American custom to mouth pat phrases and decorate walls with embroidered platitudes. I have never seen any of these "gems" which has not bounced back, leaving slight impression.

However, several years ago in some book, I read one sentence, one statement quoted from a great man. I neither know nor desire to know the man's name. You are familiar with the classic reaction of the slapstick funny-man when he, feeling falsely secure, looks around to meet the "heavy" face-to-face. The comedian registers blissful non-recognition and turns away. Then the truth dawns upon his pan. He looks again—and jumps—feet into the air! You know? Well that illustrates my general reaction to the eleven words which first slowed my reading and then jumped out and hit me between the eyes.

I read and reread those words. For several days I wandered around in a sort of fog, mumbling to myself, trying to dismember that statement, trying to apply to it situations which would refute its irrefutable logic. Time and again I thought I could disprove it. But no. In the end I had to call it quits. And I'd welcome the opportunity to challenge your readers to do otherwise. Here it is: "There is no such thing as happiness, there is only calm."

So what?—So everything!

Urges Aid To Democracy-Loving Greece

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Sir Henry Maine said half a century ago: "There is nothing that moves in the world today which is not Greek in its origin." This is so true of law, politics, science, medicine, drama, that it would be carping to question it in other fields. Even in religion the debt to Greece is enormous. The New Testament, our Christian liturgies were first written in Greek; many of our hymns and prayers are outpouring of Greek fervor plus Greek intelligence, which has persisted through the ages.

Who invented democracy? A Greek named Solon about 600 years before Christ; wherefore his name is still applied journalistically to our legislators. Who first established a system of government by "Upper House" and "Lower House," with committees to prepare measures to be voted by representatives of the people? Athenians in the sixth and fifth centuries B. C. Who introduced dependable coinage, popular juries, boards of public works, consulates? The answer is always the same; associates of Solon and Pericles. Who at a later date made the first experiments in federation, forerunners of our United States? Greeks of the third century B. C.

So it's fitting that Greece should be the spearhead in defense of democracy and in support of world federation. In international affairs no jurist in Europe has played a more honorable part since the World War than the Greek, Nikolas Politis. For a little while they have had a dictator but he is a mild sort of dictator, just as slavery in old Greece was a very mild form of slavery.

The Greeks today as of old have an innate and orderly love of freedom and also a sense of humor. They even laughed at Alexander the Great when he put on airs; it's easy to see what they think of Mussolini. The notion widely held for a time that Metaxes and Benito would chum up together took no account of the Greek demos (community) which would fiercely oppose such an alliance.

This demos has survived every form of bondage to Romans, Franks, Turks. Every townsman and villager is a demotis, every town and village has its demarkhos (mayor). In the village near which I excavated in Crete, the demarkhos could neither read nor write—his nephew did that for him—but he was so wise, courteous, just, honest, dignified, I respected him more than I might many a mayor at home. The hundred villagers who worked for me, divided into a Council of the more experienced and an Assembly of newer recruits, decided by their own majority vote such questions as whether wine should be sold near the excavations—decided it in the negative, and all accepted the vedict.

Alert endurance is not a new characteristic of the Greek army. The men who fought at Marathon showed it. The men who raced to Salonika in 1912 ahead of Serbs and Bulgars displayed it. In an endurance test the Greeks seem able to live without food—I have seen them do it—on the strength they draw from clean mountain and sea air, supplemented (if it's not Holy Week) by cheese, olives, crusty bread and salad plants gathered along the rocky paths they climb so well.

I was a volunteer nurse with the Greek army 43 years ago at Volo, Vonitsa (55 miles due south of Iannina) and Lamia near Thermopylae, in the short war when Turks invaded Greece to punish insurrection in Crete. At that time Epirus, the province of the Ottoman Empire which extended southward to the Gulf of Arta. Vonitsa is a little village on the south shore of the Gulf of Arta, not far from Actium, where Antony and Cleopatra fled with their heavy galleys from the swift craft of Caesar's nephew, the future Emperor Augustus.

In the army hospitals I came to know the Greek soldiers as grateful, friendly patient, brave. They suffered more from learning they had been pawns of European diplomacy which required their retreat, than from their wounds. I remember overhearing two peasants whose soldier son was at the point of death saying to each other when they thought themselves alone: "The dishonor (atimia) is worse than death."

A marked feature of Greek intelligence is their resourcefulness. Through the ages, on land and sea and more especially in defense of their eastern capital, Constantinople, against sea attack by Saracens, the Greeks have used various forms of combustion known as "Greek fire." During their long revolution 1821-1831, which with some British help wrested their independence from the Turks, it happened more than once that Greek fire-ships brought destruction to Turkish fleets, and that Greeks blew themselves up rather than surrender. The Greek soldiers of today have mined the roads and bridges in the Italian line of advance and in this way hope to counterbalance the Italian advantage in bombing planes. Moreover Greek aviators are proving themselves daring and skillful, making the most of every machine they possess.

In the last year we have heard often that Britain is actually defending us from the dictators. It is true. But now there looms another truth. Little Greece is defending big Britain and therefore bigger U. S. Let's admit it and act accordingly, giving every bit of recognition, encouragement and material aid we can to David against blustering Goliath.

Company

DO YOU REMEMBER? In those days it wasn't guests that overturned the routine of our simple well-ordered existence, it was company. The distinguishing mark of campany was that it did not have to be invited, it just came. Nor did it ever, as friends often did, merely drop in for dinner. There was something solid and enduring about company. It came for a week or for a month, sometimes even for the entire winter. And this in the vernacular of the day was known as "making a visit."

Going down for the morning mail I would extract a letter from the box bearing a postmark unknown to me, but one which my mother instantly recognized.

"It's from your Aunt Eleanor," she would say, snatching the letter from my hand and eagerly tearing open the envelope, "and she's coming for a visit. Go and tell Christine."

Christine was the aristocrat who for the time being had condescended to do our housework. I cannot say that I ever enjoyed imparting the news of company to Christine. It wasn't that she ever outright objected to company. It was just the wicked little flip she could give a broom or the way she had, little short of savage, of carving up the meat as if already the company lay helpless under her knife.

In summer my mother always drove to the station herself to meet her guests, but in winter, when roads were icy and slippery, she had Charlie bring them in the hotel bus. Every town has at least one unique character and Charlie was ours. A few years before he had leapt into sudden fame by having a tilt with the temperance lecturer, Carrie Nation. Of course, Charlie knew nothing of Carrie or her aversion to tobacco. All that he knew was that one evening while driving a strange lady into town, she had suddenly tapped upon the front window demanding that he remove the cigar he was smoking, and refusing to go a step farther unless this were done.

Charlie was astounded. There was nothing he loved so much as a good cigar. To waste one was out of the question. What then was there to do except to allow the lady to get down and foot it into town, carrying her own valise?

The first of the winter visitors that Charlie brought to our house was my mother's Cousin Susie. Cousin Susie could always be singled out among the incoming passengers by the red feather or the bit of red tulle adorning her hat. "Any color so it's red," she would say when the milliner asked what trimming she would have, and this little flame had been a beacon to our Cousin John through 30 years of married life.

No other guest who ever came to our house shed such a glamour on it as Cousin Susie. After Cousin John's death she had spent much of her time abroad and all her talk was of Paris shops, the French plays she had seen, and the Russian princesses with whom she was accustomed to take tea in some Champs Elysees cafe. But my mother, knowing the size of Cousin Susie's income and the kind of threadbare pension in which she usually stayed, used to say that Cousin Susie's chatter was like the red feather on her hat; it directed your attention away from what was drab.

Quite different was Aunt Eleanor's arrival. Aunt Eleanor was one of those people who always enjoyed poor health. Hardly had she set foot in the house before she felt her blood pressure rising, her rheumatism growing worse, or a cold coming on. No wonder Christine entirely wore out a broom every time Aunt Eleanor came to stay.

As for us children, our interest could rise no higher than that inspired by Aunt Eleanor's array of medicine bottles and pill boxes. Stealing up to her room, we would stand spellbound before her table until, curiosity overcoming our fear, we would first smell, then bravely taste the contents of each bottle or box.

That we did not die from the effects of our curiosity was, I think, due to our sense of taste. If the stuff was bitter, very likely it was medicine, but if it was not, it was just something the doctor had given Aunt Eleanor. Thus, even before our parents knew, we had discovered that most of Aunt Eleanor's medicines were a sham, as were Aunt Eleanor's illnesses, as was Aunt Eleanor herself.

But the guest we all loved best was the Dean. The Dean was a friend of my father's who used occasionally to come down from the city to preach in our parish church, and after service he always came to our house to dinner.

How the Dean came to be a minister I do not know, for he just naturally loved adventure and had at his tongue's end the choicest collection of adventure stories we were ever likely to hear.

But whenever it was known the Dean was coming to dinner, our parents would caution us never to ask for a story while we were at the table, because of the habit the old gentleman had of becoming excited at his own tales and peppering his waistcoat all over with stray bits of food, which later caused him much annoyance and embarrassment.

"Dear me, Alice, could you lend me a sponge? I believe I have—er—dropped a bit of gravy. Yes, I have made a little spot on my vest."

Whereupon my mother, knowing well that what the Dean required was a systematic and thorough cleaning, would lead him out to Christine, after which he would return, his blue eyes twinkling, and sit down by the fire to resume his account of Stanley's journey through Africa or of the South Sea voyages of Capt. Cook.

But now, whenever I recall one of the Dean's stories, or the gay tilt of the red feather on Cousin Susie's hat, or Aunt Eleanor's imposing row of multi-colored bottles, I know that something went out of life when company went out of fashion.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Our Order And Their Disorder

FROM ALL the diplomatic spectacles of the past few months one conclusion is evident: the "new order" proclaimed by the Axis is merely a fancy name for the territory that the German army is able to occupy. The boundaries of this new order extend exactly as far but no farther, than the striking power of the German army; the duration of the new order will, therefore, be as long, but no longer, than the German army is able to be the mighty but localized force which it now is. In spite of fifth columns, in spite of the most persistent and elaborate propaganda, there is no single example of the voluntary participation of any nation in the new order. All that the fifth columns have ever done anywhere is to destroy the resistance of nations, and then deliver them bound and gagged to the conqueror. Never have they convinced any nation so that it consented freely to participation in the new order.

The history of Europe since the fall of France has shown clearly that the Axis can control and can administer only those lands which the German army can hold. Any territory which is out of reach of the German army is outside the new order, and any territory within the control of the German army is part of this new order only as long as the German army is in occupation.

THUS THERE IS no pretense, even in Berlin, that the Poles, the Czechs, the Danes, the Norwegians, the Dutch or the Belgians are in any sense willing members of the new order. It is plain beyond dispute that these peoples submit only because there is military occupation and only in so far as they are coerced. It is just about as plain that Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, and, of course, Greece, resist the new order as much as they can, as long as they dare, and that even when they must submit they wait only for the opportunity to rebel and become free again.

Certainly France is not a willing or a reliable member of the new order. In occupied France, the people submit and wait for the day of liberation; in unoccupied France the partisans of full cooperation with the Axis are obviously a small minority, almost a small conspiracy, who can carry out their purposes only by destroying the resistance of the French people. Outside of continental France there is loyalty to Marshal Petain and a sense of solidarity with his government, but the French Empire is not adhering to the new order, and waits for the day when its independence is once again secured.

Turkey and Egypt at one end of the Mediterranean, are certainly no part of the new order; the question for them is solely a military question, there being no doubt that their choice is with Britain and the free nations. At the other end of the Mediterranean, in Spain, there are partisans of the Axis but there is no shadow of doubt that the Spanish nation, if left free to choose, would choose not to participate in the Axis war or to come further under the domination of the Nazi power.

Then, there is Italy, a member of the Axis, but not an equal partner or any longer an independent state, dependent for victory and indeed for the survival of its empire and of the fascist regime upon Nazi Germany. Finally there is Russia, which, with all the ambiguities and evasions of its policy, is obviously not a whole-hearted or reliable collaborator in the new order that is being proclaimed from Berlin.

From one end of Europe to the other, among the partners, the vassals, the victims, the one paramount controlling fact is the German army. All else is secondary or it is diplomatic stage-management.

THERE IS, IN FACT, no new order in Europe. For the difference between a military occupation and an "order" is that the occupation ends when the army withdraws, whereas an order continues because it is based upon some acceptable principle, upon some substance of law which men recognize, upon some system of life to which they consent. There was once a Roman order in Europe. But before the Roman legions made their conquests there was a Rome dispensing the Roman law. There is no such thing as that in Germany; there is not in Germany today, as there was in ancient Rome, a law-giving and law-making authority to bind together the lands which the legions conquered.

There is no German senate, no German constitution, no German hereditary monarchy; there are only the decrees and improvisations of the Fuehrer, and because they are in no sense of the word laws, they have effect only where they can be imposed by force.

There was a medieval order in Europe, the order of Christendom, and it was an order because it was based on laws which all men, even the emperor and the kings and the feudal lords, recognized as superior to their own will. There was a modern order in Europe after the Congress of Vienna, based upon a system of treaties and a regime of public law which all civilized states acknowledged. There is an order today in this hemisphere because we and our neighbors recognize an established system of rights and duties which controls our acts. There is an order which embraces all the American nations and all the British peoples because we all acknowledge the same rules of public law and the same system of public morals.

Only when peoples live together and work together under acknowledged laws, is there law and order. When they are bound together by a military occupation or the continual threat of it, there is no order, and to call it an order is merely the hypocritical tribute which vice pays to virtue.

THIS SO-CALLED new order which we have heard so much about in recent months displays not one single attribute of an order—not custom, consent, legitimacy, legality, moral authority, or even a mere partnership of give and take. The nearest analogy to it is the temporary empire of Napoleon Bonaparte, and yet that empire at its zenith was more nearly like a new order than anything which Hitler has yet constructed.

In 1810, five years before its fall, Napoleon presided over an empire which, with its allies, embraced the whole of Europe, excepting only the Turkish Empire in the Balkan peninsula. He was the ruler of France, of course, and of Norway, Denmark, the Low Countries, Western Germany, Switzerland, Italy, Dalmatia and Spain. Prussia was subdued. Austria, then a very great power, was his ally. Russia was his ally. His relatives were kings in many countries. He had been crowned by the Pope, he had married an Austrian princess. Only England was his avowed enemy. Yet within a few years this imposing empire had collapsed. For the resistance of the English continued and then as Napoleon weakened, his allies turned against him, the conquered peoples rose against him, and his own people deposed him. Yet the order of Napoleon, though it was based on conquest, had at one time a degree of legitimacy and respectability, and of even popular consent in Europe, which Hitler's empire has never remotely approached. But it was not a true order, and therefore, it was destroyed by resistance, defection, and rebellion.

THE CHOICE is not between Hitler's order and the old order which he is seeking to destroy. The choice is between order and disorder. The elements of order, of any order that can persist, are in lawful authority. It resides now in the great coalition of the peoples, some now conquered, some now resisting gallantly, some now assisting the resistance—all destined in the end to become a coalition to restore order in the world. This lawful authority, be it of the Poles, the Dutch, the French, the British, or ourselves, is in their legitimate constitutions, their legal rulers, their rightful legislatures, their customs and usages.

The order which is now attacked is the order of these lawful authorities among all the peoples. The order which will emerge from this war is the order which these lawful authorities lawfully prescribe. No other order can be imagined, constructed or maintained; anything else is perpetual disorder because it extends no further than a cannon can shoot.

The Once Over

A New Worry

The other day a man on an auto trip, with his wife in the back seat, drove 200 miles before he discovered she was not in the car any more. It seems that while he was stopping at a gas station, the lady got out. He did not notice it. After getting gas, he drove off without any suspicion she was not in her accustomed spot in the rear seat.

Autoists have got to be more careful about little things like this.

It may not be important one way or the other whether you drive off from the gas station without the wife, but it is at least embarrassing. "The big difficulty," as Elmer Twitchell put it today, "is explaining!"

Elmer has left Mrs. Twitchell behind like this lots of times. He is an old hand at it. Half the time, when Elmer leaves New York for New England, he gets up around Springfield, Mass., before noticing that Mrs. Twitchell hasn't been with him since Cos Cob, Conn.

"How could that happen?" we demanded. "Doesn't Mrs. Twitchell keep up a running chatter from the back seat like most women, or are you deaf?"

"Oh, in the old days when she was in form she talked so much there was no chance of my driving two blocks without her and not knowing it," said Elmer. "But she ain't the talker she used to be. And I don't listen so well, either."

Mr. Twitchell insists that this case the other day isn't an isolated one. Hundreds of autoists have this experience every season, he argues, contending that something should be done about it.

"What do you think should be done?" we asked.

"Well, I dunno. It seems to me the automobile manufacturers could put some kind of an indicator on a car that would show when the wife was in it and when she was not. Maybe something that would automatically flash a red light when she left the tonneau suddenly for any purpose.

"How about a device that would keep a bell ringing, as at railroad crossings, whenever the weight of the car got below a certain figure?"

"Fine," said Elmer. "I'm sure Henry Ford will do something about it. But I think the filling station fellers should do their bit, too."

"What could they do?"

"Well, they ask you if they can check your oil, give you some water, clean the windshield and all that stuff. Why can't they be instructed to tip their hats to every driver who stops for gas and ask, 'I beg pardon, sir, but may we check on your wife?'"

Elmer had us there.

He was found in the gutter, bruised, battered and semiconscious. "What happened?" demanded the police. "I just gave a fellow every aid short of war," replied the victim.

The guest of honor at a dinner of the Vegetarian Society in New York the other night was a Dr. Pease.

The story of the month, in this department's opinion, was the North American Newspaper Alliance recital by John Cudahy, former United States Ambassador to Belgium, of the facts leading up to the surrender of King Leopold. Widely denounced as a coward and a traitor, King Leopold was the one heroic figure among the Belgium leaders, according to Mr. Cudahy.

He was the only leader who did not flee the country during the blitzkrieg, he stuck to his troops to the last and he surrendered only when anything else would have been fanaticism, says our Ambassador.

HI.—Ask me why I am leffing! Okay, it is because of the contention that an earlier Thanksgiving is a help to business. The result of Mr. Roosevelt's action is what? Two Thanksgivings, I have a store in Connecticut. Connecticut does not recognize the first Thanksgiving date, but its attempt to do business as usual is a floperoo. I keep open, but half the customers stay home in a sort of semiholiday mood. Then comes the official Connecticut Thanksgiving, and I stay home, too. Fix it so I can have two Christmas days, so I can go bankrupt. JAKE.

REPRESENTATIVE LYNDON JOHNSON
Messrs. Alsop and Kintner discuss the plan of certain party elements to associate him with the Democratic National Committee, "with some such title as 'director'"

Capital Parade

By Joseph Alsop and Robert Kintner

The Old Political Pattern

EMPIRES MAY FALL and continents tremble, but politics in Washington still goes on. What is more, the same patterns repeat themselves with unfailing regularity. For the past eight years, the President and the men around him have never ceased to struggle to increase their hold on the machinery of the Democratic Party organization. They are now having another try.

Representative Lyndon Johnson, of Texas, is the spearhead of the new advance. The plan is to associate him with the Democratic National Committee, with some such title as "director" which would give him a real voice in committee affairs. If the plan goes through, Johnson will serve on the committee as the spokesman of the New Deal point of view. Even in the President's third term, this point of view is accepted by few orthodox Democrats. It is certainly not shared by Committee Chairman Ed Flynn, biddable though he is when the President chooses to issue an order.

JOHNSON and John Nance Garner admirably typify the new and the old in the Democracy. The third term campaign caused the final break between the President and the old Democrats. The parting was pleasant enough. At the last Cabinet meeting Garner attended, shortly before the voting, he went up to the President all smiles, told him he had always known he would be re-elected, congratulated him on his victory, and explained he was making his compliment in advance because he would be out hunting when the returns came in.

A majority of the Cabinet members were eagerly eavesdropping. None received the vaguest impression that Garner would not go to the polls before taking to the woods. But on election day Garner ostentatiously failed to vote, a symbol of a good many others, he had at last rejected policies and personalities he had long submitted to solely for partisan reasons.

On the other hand, Garner's fellow Texan, Johnson, is one of the rare elective politicians who have taken both the New Deal and the New Dealers to their bosoms. In the house, he is an adherent of Speaker Sam Rayburn's, but even before Rayburn singled him out, Thomas G. Corcoran had made friends with him and sponsored him at the White House. Corcoran's liking for him also admitted him to the intimacy of the President's administrative assistant, James Rowe, and of many of the other younger New Dealers.

HE IS NOW a candidate for promotion because of his close work with the President during the campaign. It is not generally known, but owing to Speaker Rayburn's fears that the Republicans would ditch Wendell Willkie and concentrate on electing a majority in the House, the President became acutely anxious about the Democratic Congressional races. Johnson was chosen as the President's private agent to deal with the problem. He and Rayburn collected a special Congressional fund of about $60,000, chiefly from anti-Roosevelt Texas Democrats who would not give money to be spent on the President but were glad to finance Democratic House nominees. And this money was distributed by Johnson among the doubtful districts, and much other work was done, under the President's immediate supervision.

Johnson's association with the President gives him an initial advantage, for the President is likely to remember with pleasure the telephonic reports of victories all across the country which he received from Johnson throughout election night. There is a bitter feud between the Democratic National Committee personnel and the House leaders, who feel the committee never allows sufficient funds to support deserving Democratic Congressmen at the polls. Thus the House leadership will probably approve Johnson's advancement. Finally, he may also rely on the enthusiastic backing of many Cabinet officers, whose emotions toward Ed Flynn and his entourage are decidedly lurid.

THE FRICTION between Flynn and the Cabinet was another by-product of the campaign. When the contest started, the leading Cabinet members naturally expected to be asked to carry much of the burden of debate. Instead, they appear to have been treated as slightly shameful poor relations, of whom the less seen the better.

Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, for example, although commonly considered one of the big oratorical guns of the Administration, was only permitted to pop off in tank towns. Despite all his friends could do to obtain him a New York engagement, he was never allowed nearer to the city than Yonkers. Then Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes was commanded by the President to tour the Northwest, but saw his main speaking date personally canceled by Ed Flynn. Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau gritted his teeth and volunteered to speak, but was never offered a platform. And even Secretary of State Cordell Hull was omitted from the first list of campaign speakers submitted to the President. Consequently, if some of the Cabinet have their way, the lot of Chairman Flynn will not be a happy one.

Fair Enough

Poet's License

NOT MANY of my readers suspect that, in addition to my well-known knack of expressing petty irritation in terms of high-sounding moralistic scorn, I possess also an ability to create poetry of great confusion and charm. That is my fault, for these months have been crowded with shrill bickering with the New Deal, the gangsters of the labor rackets, the furriners of the Newspaper Guild and that always-provocative he-shrew Mr. Harold F. Ickes. Now I feel, however, that I owe it to myself to show something of my esthetic nature, but, as a preliminary, would like to explain that poetry is a great fake, at once the most pretentious and the least respectable method of literary expression.

The poet has a tremendous advantage over those who write in prose in that he works under no requirements to make any meaning clear. This explains why Kipling and Longfellow, for example, are regarded as hack, or naive, poets and their work doggerel. Thus Mr. George Ade was banging his old gray head against a reinforced concrete artistic absolute when he said that James Whitcomb Riley was "a genuine poet, even if people could understand him." A brave but futile remonstrance on behalf of an old friend. If it had been true Mr. Ade would not have felt the need to say it, and he said it only because he realized that, for all its beauty, Riley's work never could be certified as poetry because of the very fact that people can understand it.

NOW I FIND poetry quite easy and a pleasant relaxation from the toil of standard writing under what might be called straight commission rules. You start with no idea, write in all directions from a point some distance off center, and your work can ask no higher praise than the verdict that it doesn't seem to mean anything.

For instance:

NIGHT OVER YUGOSLAVIA.

Let cravens crawl when the bugles call
And war clouds lower near;
Let vultures fly in the tumbling sky,
What know the brave of fear?

For 'tis the Spartan breed that cries
From soul to soul o'er the centuries,
And all is lost when honor dies
For the hearth-fires burning dear.

So spring to arms 'mid war's alarms
And curs'd be he who quails,
When strong men fight to defend the right
And Sharon stalks the vales.

It is man's way to die in war
Undaunted yet, forevermore;
What else was valor given for
While freedom yet prevails?

STARTS NOWHERE, goes nowhere, means nothing, but resounds in a sort of way. In short, poetry.

Or this:

Last night, in the storm-wrack down the glade,
Where cowslips bloom in the gentle shade,
My soul went wandering, sore afraid
To drink the wine of fear.

While lightning flashed in the ebon sky,
Your hot lips murmured a gentle cry,
"My lover," and I knew 'twas I,
Alone at Cupid's bier.

And yet from the crucible of time
In ecstasy of love sublime
The shadows in eerie pantomime
They danced in measures drear.

Oh, say, when in the bosky swale
The kine are lowing, wan and pale,
My love sings sweet as the nightingale,
For you are ever near.

I could develop this demonstration if I had more space, but there are Mrs. R., the General and Ray to think of, and the desk probably will cut hell out of it as it is, which, to poetry, fortunately, makes no difference. But I just wanted you to know.

Government By Law

By Mark Sullivan

Congress Stands Against One-Man Rule

AT A TIME when throughout the world parliamentary government is in decline, when in country after country the legislative branch of government has completely disappeared, when even in England parliamentary government is voluntarily restricted, when the tendency toward one-man government and the extinction of legislative bodies is practically world-wide—at such a time it is poignantly desirable that the Congress of the United States should so conduct its work as to preserve its function, insure public respect and give no cause for diminution of its standing. It is poignantly desirable that Congress should give no faintest justification for any tendency in the United States to turn toward one-man government on the plea that it is more efficient than parliamentary government.

In Congress, the present legislative situation is simple. The House has practically nothing to do. The decision of the House to remain in session was made, very much to its credit, mainly in the spirit of remaining on guard. The House was willing to remain here chiefly in order that it might be available in any emergency that might arise. The House has no legislation pressing; there is no important bill that has been passed by the Senate and awaits House action.

IN THE SENATE, the situation is different. The willingness of the Senate to remain here includes among its reasons the same laudable purpose as the House, to be present in case emergency should arise. But the Senate has legislation to perform. There are before the Senate two measures which the House has passed.

The names of these measurs are the Walter-Logan bill and the Labor Act amendments. The bills are here named, only to identify them. Nothing is said at this time about the merits of the two measures. It is not necessary even to explain what the measures are. For the purpose of what is here said, these bills could be called the "X bill" and the "Y bill."

Whether the Senate should vote for these measures, or against them, is not the present question. The present question is solely whether the Senate should take these measures up—take them up, conduct the debate upon them with reasonable expedition, permit no obstruction that has only the purpose of obstruction, amend them if it is deemed desirable to amend them, and finally act upon the measures. What the final action should be, does not matter at this stage. What does matter is that the legislative branch of the Government of the United States should function. In the light of that necessity, the reasons for the Senate taking up these measures are imperative.

Both measures have been in the Senate a long time, substantially the whole time since the Congress began, in January, 1939. Both measures passed the House months ago, the Walter-Logan bill April 18, the Labor Act amendments June 7. Passage by the House was in both cases by large majorities, the Walter-Logan bill by 282 to 97, the Labor Act amendments by 254 to 134. These facts gave these two measures a standing which demands that the Senate take them up.

Of one bill, the Walter-Logan measure, it is said that if it is passed, the President will veto it. That would conform completely to the American mechanism of government. If the President vetoes it, Congress can pass it or not pass it over the veto—that again is according to the American system.

But, that the Senate should refrain from action merely because of an anticipated or threatened veto—that would not be according to the American system. That would be precisely the sort of deference by the legislative branch to the Executive which amounts to partial abdication of the legislative function, compromise of its status, and tends toward what unhappily has come to pass in other countries.

That there should be, within reasonable limits, consultation between Senate leaders and the President, to the end of arriving at a form of measure which the President would not feel called upon to veto—that, if kept within reasonable bounds, would be according to the American tradition about party government and party leadership. But if the leadership of the party controlling the Senate goes so far in deference to the Executive as to amount to supineness, then the Senate leadership would be faithless to its true trust, which is to the legislative branch of the Government—at a time when everywhere in the world parliamentary government desperately needs the devotion of all who owe it loyalty.

Again, about the Labor Act amendments, it is said they are no longer necessary—that since the House passed them, the condition that caused them has ceased to exist. It is said that recent changes in the personnel of the Labor Board assure a conduct of the board's function so improved that amendment of the law is no longer necessary.

To admit that would be to admit a classic perversion. It would deny that principle which says that government must be by laws not by men. The function of the Labor Board, as of every Government board or official, should be prescribed by law, not left to the discretion of men, possibly to be administered radically by radical men, conservatively by conservative men.

Montgomery Area Selectees to Get Warm Send-Off

Selectees from the Montgomery County area comprising Silver Spring, Takoma and Kensington will be given a warm send-off when they leave for Fort Meade Thursday morning.

Ceremonies have been arranged for 9 a. m. at the Jessup Blair Community House. Children from schools in the area are expected to be excused from early reporting so they can be present.

A community band will play and there will be speakers yet to be selected. Former United States Senator Blair Lee, who took part in similar ceremonies when the selectees of 1917 left Silver Spring for camp, will be present.

The ceremonies are being arranged by the Cissel-Saxon, Takoma and Kensington Posts of the American Legion.

Gallery Sponsors Plan Square Dance

The sponsors' committee of the Children's Art Gallery will give a square dance Tuesday night at Linthicum Hall, 3116 O Street Northwest.

Mrs. Slocum Kingsbury, president of the sponsors' committee, announced that Kendall Foss would be "caller" at the dance, with Alice Finckel at the piano.

Pennsylvanians to Dance

Members of the Pennsylvania State Society will hold their Thanksgiving dance today at 10 p. m. in the Shoreham Hotel, with the Sunset Skating Club of Washington among the featured guests.

A brief program will precede the dance, according to Representative Francis J. Myers, society president.

Spain to Double Munitions Acids

Copyright by New York Times

Madrid, Nov. 25.—Factories in Spain capable of making the acids used in high explosives have been instructed to double their output immediately, it was learned today. The entire production is being taken over by the government, although the factories hitherto have been largely engaged in making fertilizers, which are badly needed.

Meanwhile there is no reliable news concerning the decision taken by Gen. Franco after Foreign Minister Serrano Suner's second series of conferences with the Axis leaders. The British, however, are carrying on their commercial negotiations in the hope that appeasement is still possible.

KDKA to Celebrate Its 20th Birthday

Chairman James L. Fly of the Federal Communications Commission and Neville Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, will speak at the twentieth birthday party of the pioneer radio station, Pittsburgh's KDKA, at 7 p. m. today in the Hotel Willard.

The party is late because the actual anniversary, November 2, coincided with busy campaign days. Approximately 500 persons will be guests of the broadcasters.

Jay C. Flippen will be master of ceremonies and John Charles Thomas will sing.

'Y. Y.' Panel to Discuss District Child Welfare

Child welfare in Washington will be the subject of a panel descussion today at 12:15 p. m. at a meeting in the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K Streets Northwest, sponsored by the Council of Social Agencies' child welfare division.

Led by Mrs. Louis Ottenberg, the speakers will be Miss Patricia Morse, of the child welfare division; Miss Madorah Donahue, of the protective services unit; Paul Kirby, coordinator of child welfare services, and Conrad Van Hyning, principal assistant to the director of public welfare.

Silver Spring Club Will Meet Tomorrow

Health needs of Montgomery County, Md., will be explained by Mrs. Louise Gravelle at a meeting of the Current Comment Club of Silver Spring tomorrow at 8 p. m. at the home of Mrs. George Good, 1119 Ridge Road, Woodside.

Mrs. Gravelle will represent the Montgomery County Public Health Lay Council, which is conducting a campaign for a more adequate health program.

The club's charity work for Christmas will also be discussed.

P.-T.A. to Meet

Mrs. Thomas W. Pyle, of the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers, will address the Parent-Teacher Association of Montgomery Blair High School, Silver Spring, Md., tomorrow at 8 p. m. at the school, near Dale Drive.

Senate Meets in Pre-Civil War Setting— For the first time in 81 years, the Senate met yesterday in the old Supreme Court Chamber at the Capitol, as repairs were started on the roof over the regular Senate and House chambers. The last time the Senate met here was on January 4, 1859, after which the room served as a meeting place for the Supreme Court until the new court building was constructed. Senator William King, of Utah, President Pro Tem., is shown on the judges' bench at right. In center of picture is Majority Leader Barkley, leaning over table. Prince Georges Social Service League

By Barry Sullivan.

A helping hand through rough going is outstretched to families not receiving public relief by the Social Service League of Prince Georges County.

A nonsectarian family service agency, the league renders assistance to approximately 400 families annually. It works closely with Catholic philanthropic groups to avoid duplication of services.

Many of the families seeking assistance from the league are outside "categorical relief," Miss Mildred E. Alexander, the only permanent worker, explains.

"Our families have an employable member who is out of work," she points out, "or their incomes are insufficient for their minimum needs."

Especially in winter, Miss Alexander has found, are Prince Georges families in need of clothing for children in school.

Aid also is sought during periods of temporary unemployment caused by illness, seasonal stoppage of work and emergencies such as the provision of fuel in winter.

AT THE PRINCE GEORGES HEALTH CENTER, Mildred Alexander, worker of the Social Service League, observes, as Dr. Josephine Walworth examines, a seven-month-old child with the assistance of Nurse Violet Hanna

To keep in touch with the requirements of families in the various parts of Prince Georges County the league works through 26 volunteer groups. These make it their business to know the needs of families in their own neighborhoods.

The volunteers do services which are of the unsung variety. They take sick men, women and children to clinics for treatment, then take home again. They arrange for families to see Miss Alexander so their needs can be ascertained exactly and referred to the proper source of aid.

An important part of the league's work, and of all the Community Chest agencies, is the giving of advice and information on where to go for aid. Granting of relief is held to a minimum, since that has been assumed now by publicly supported agencies.

With its Chest contribution of approximately $6,500, the league handles seven general types of problems.

During the first six months of the present year, for example, it helped 24 families with major health problems, 69 suffering temporary unemployment through illness or job termination, 69 with marital difficulties, 6 nonresidents, 65 with part-time employment or insufficient income and 25 in which personality problems of an individual were a cause of discord or maladjustment.

Gargantuan Bomber Nears Completion

In final stages of construction today is the United States Army bomber, B-19—largest and most powerful airplane ever attempted

Will it fly and prove its worth? Aeronautical engineers at the Douglas Plant in Santa Monica, Calif., where it is being built, say it will. Its four motors develops 8,000 horsepower; its wing-spread is more than 210 feet; it's weight more than 140,000 pounds; its flying range is expected to be 7,000 miles.

True Love Develops Between Widow and Married Man, Who Has Been Unhappily Wed for 25 Years; He Is Ill From Conflict; Should He Ask Divorce?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a widow and for the past 15 years I have been associated in business with a married man. He has two married children and his wife is a good woman, but there has never been any real companionship or cooperation in their marriage. Instead, everything has always been done her way. Before either of us realized what was happening, we were in love—the first real love either of us had ever known. There has been no sordid affair; just a longing to be together, always.

The time has come when the man I love is desperately ill—with the illness that comes of frustration; of returning each evening to a home that, to him, is a prison. Yet, he feels that after living under the same roof with his wife for 25 years, it would be dishonorable of him not to stay with her to the end.

I would not want him to sever this bond for my sake,—much as I love him. But is he justified in continuing a way of life that,—if continued,— will soon mean disaster for him? Am I right in believing that the right solution, for him, is to obtain release from this prison sentence? I am trying to be fair, to think clearly, but perhaps my vision is clouded. Your opinions will be appreciated. L. I.

Man Cannot Evade The Summons of Duty

DEAR L. I.: Since this man whom you love has married children, I assume he must be, at the very least, a man of so-called "middle age"—either in his forties or fifties. If so, he was cradled in an era whose finest citizens believed, and taught their children to believe, that fidelity to Duty is the honorable man's minimum obligation to himself, his fellowmen and God. Or, as I once heard an older woman phrase it, "The performance of duty is the greatest human virtue. Love, joy, comfort—these things are of small importance when weighed against the worth of duty faithfully discharged."

Apparently the imprint of this stern and lofty creed has been stamped for all time upon your beloved's personality, or character. Therefore, while he may sicken in the service of distasteful duty,—and perhaps even hasten to his grave, to end his despair,—he is not the sort of character who would ever find any greater happiness in laying down his odious burden. He doesn't leave his wife because he cannot. The will-to-be-free doesn't exist in him. He is spiritually or psychologically bound by what he conceives to be a "sacred trust,"—which he voluntarily invited 25 years ago; pledging himself before God and man to be true to that trust until death dissolved the contract.

It is idle to question whether or not he is "justified in continuing a way of life that—if continued—will soon mean disaster for him." Because the results, for him, would be equally "disastrous," if he acted on some desperate impulse to betray his implicit sense of duty. And while, according to your latter-day code—which is more liberal in its concessions to the needs of the human spirit—it might be morally "right" to abandon a relationship that is a "white sepulcher," it is too late in his life to indoctrinate him with that belief.

For him, the mold is set and the die is cast. He will never feel honorably free, morally emancipated, from literal fidelity to the woman he took as his "lawfully wedded wife," unless released by "an act of God." So, if you are bringing any pressure to bear upon him, to waive his "prison sentence,"—arguing either his "rights" or needs or your hungry hopes, you are doing him a grievous disservice.

If he is physically sick, it is probably more from conflict than from frustration. The greatest service you could do him would be to ease his conflict, by giving him philosophical support in his belief that he should stay with his marriage to the end. If you comprehended his motives, indorsed his action, and sustained him—in his low moments—with loyal and inspiring and cheering comment on the "rightness" (for him) of his course, you would be doing much to relieve his soul-sickness. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Reducers Face No Risk With Balanced Diet

Low-Calorie Diets Offer Protective Elements in Abundance

By Ida Jean Kain

USELESS and unsafe reducing methods have been exposed—and a very good thing it is, too! You know now that fat cannot be melted down or rubbed off, and that bath powders, pastes and reducing creams are just so much fluff! And surely nobody is foolish enough to TAKE ANYTHING to reduce!

However, all this hue and cry against reducing aids has had an unexpected effect. There are some overweights who say they don't reduce for fear it might harm their health, so they keep right on overeating and piling on more fat.

If this is your alibi, you're the only one who can say just how sincerely you believe it will harm your health to take off a few pounds. But if you are concerned about your health you had better give a thought to the burden imposed by the fat.

No Risk to Health

There is not the slightest risk to health on a balanced reducing diet. The science of nutrition has shown us how to make a diet that is abundant in all the protective elements but low in calories. The emphasis on a good reducing diet is to supply liberally everything but calories. Since fat represents only a reserve of calories, nothing else must be left out of the reducer's menu.

But let's look at it from the other angle. When you go on a diet, good or bad, the body does not get along on less material, but instead of getting all the material from food intake, part is taken from body reserves. That's fine as far as calories are concerned, you have plenty to spare in the stored fat. Then by including adequate amounts of protein, minerals and vitamins, and using the stored calories for part of your energy needs, you are on a perfect diet. You will be just as well fed, or perhaps better fed, than when you are overeating.

In terms of food, the reducer needs a liberal amount of lean meat, fish or fowl; an egg, two glasses of skim milk, or one glass and a serving of cheese; fresh fruits and vegetables, and a small amount of whole grain bread and butter.

Cuts Calories in Half

Using skim milk in place of whole milk does not rob the reducer of any of the needed calcium or phosphorus, and it does cut the calories in half. It deletes the vitamin A, but to make up this loss the reducer should have one vitamin A concentrate daily. Just one Haliver Oil capsule, or Cod Liver Oil in concentrated form will supply all the vitamin A required.

The average American diet is low in vitamin B one, so our abundant diet for the reducer can include one milligram of thiamin chloride a day. This can be purchased at the drug store, and one tablet containing one milligram is sufficient. The vitamin concentrates plus the protective foods give the reducer a perfect diet. So let's not hear any more about anyone being afraid to go on a reducing diet for fear of impairing health.

A little exercise won't harm your health either. This does not mean you should jump into a strenuous program of calisthenics, but a little daily exercise to keep the muscles of the abdominal wall in good tone, the waistline supple and the circulation up and doing will help to keep you fit.

A Woman's WASHINGTON

Hood College Dean Says Her Students Don't 'Fasten Ferociously on Marriage or Career'

THE COLLEGE GIRL of today is practical about her future and ready for anything that comes along, believes Dean D. Bragdon of Hood College. In Washington last week to address alumnae of the school, she remarked that her students don't "fasten ferociously on either marriage or career." Even the girls who frankly expect to marry soon after graduation realize they may have to go to work some day and want professional training, she says. "Many of them plan to do volunteer work with a hospital board or an aid society. We have a student now who's actually taking courses in sociology and public speaking so she can do a good job as a volunteer."

ELIZABETH ANDREWS

As for the potential career girls, Dean Bragdon gives them credit for self-reliance in looking for their own job opportunities. "It interests me particularly to see how they think in terms of the whole group," she adds. "If one girl runs into something for which she is not fitted but for which a classmate might qualify, she passes the word along. The girls consider themselves not as individuals but as a group of people who want work."

Two women lunching at a G Street drug store were fascinated by their waitress' out-of-this world manner. She could listen to innumerable repetitions of their order without getting it straight; she mooned over them as they sipped their soup; she smiled oddly without apparent reason. As they rose to go she snapped out of it temporarily. "Don't mind me; I'm just excited," she said. "I put some money on a horse."

One South American who came to Washington for the Inter-American Commission meeting was astonished at the good behavior of American women. "We have been told that your women drink a good deal and usually are tight by 6 o'clock in the evening," she said. When she discovered the custom was not universal here, she decided the whole thing was part of an anti-American whispering campaign.

SPORTS DEPT.:—Two girls whom an unsympathetic observer might classify as "dizzy" watched the breath-taking Redskins-Bears game—out of the corner of their eyes. They stood when everyone else did, clapped when touchdowns were made and went through the rest of the motions, but their hearts were in the conversation they maintained until the end of the last quarter. As they joined the elated crowd leaving the stadium, one said listlessly, "Well, at least it's been the kind of a game you don't think you could go out on the field and do better yourself."

Give Draperies 'Decorator' Look

SO SMART they look, as if a decorator had made them—stunning chartreuse draperies, bordered with broad bands of bottle green and topped with a swag of the same hue, draped through festoon rings.

But you can easily stitch them up yourself—making them very modish indeed with fabric as well as color contrast. Effective to use crisp rayon moire for the swag and borders, sateen for the curtains themselves.

The professional looking swag you cut from a straight piece of fabric, slanting the ends. No lining is necessary. Just pass the ends through festoon rings at the corners of your windows and arrange in soft folds.

The moire borders are simply extra-wide false hems in disguise. Applying a false hem is much the same as sewing on a binding, except that the hem is stitched to the extreme edge of the curtain. A good trick to know if your material is too narrow and you want to add width!

Sateen side draperies will have more body, wear better when lined. With professional tips easy to do an expert job.

Whip up new draperies for any room in your house with the diagrams and step-by-step instructions in our 40-page booklet, "Make Your Own Curtains and Draperies." Tells how to cut and sew draperies and glass curtains of all kinds. Gives directions for valances, swags, cornices, ornamental tie-backs and hold-backs. Has decorator's suggestions for colors, fabrics, trimmings.

Send 15c in coins for our booklet, "Make Your Own Curtains and Draperies," to The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

HotelBaked Potatoes Are Easy to Prepare

Do you want to serve baked potatoes as luscious as those put out in hotels? Then ask your grocer for "bakers," wash them well and bake in a moderate oven for about an hour, or until they are soft when pressed lightly in a cloth. Never stick forks in baking potatoes.

When the potatoes are done, hold them in a cloth, and make inch crosses on the tops with sharp scissors or a knife. Press, still in the cloth, until the potatoes feel soft and part of the pulp comes out the top. Slip cubes of butter in the tops, sprinkle with salt and paprika, and reheat for several minutes in a moderate oven. Serve immediately.

The Gentler Sex

Off to the Wars

Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey, famous reformer, is ready to do her bit for Uncle Sam. The ever-alert president of the Do Something About It League has not only volunteered to serve as an army hostess but is organizing a corps of volunteer hostesses from among her friends.

Mrs. DeGoofey

"I feel it is most important that we have the right type of women to 'mother' our boys in the army camps," said Mrs. DeGoofey yesterday at her press conference. "By that I mean women who understand men and who are also attractive—in a purely impersonal way of course—to men.

"Now I have always gotten on famously with men—young men especially. Men always make a confidante of me and tell me their troubles. Men always feel at home with me. And I also feel that I am the type of women who uplifts and inspires men.

"Another reason men like me is that I am not a prude. I have a wonderful sense of humor and am always jolly and cheerful around them.

Good Clean Fun For the Boys

"What about your hostess corps?" asked an army and navy reporter. 'Have you had many enlistments?'

"'The rush has been so great,' was the reply, "that it has taken a squad of policemen to handle the applicants. However, I am selecting my corps members very carefully. For instance, a woman to qualify in my corps has to be what is popularly known as the 'life of the party.' That is, she must be good at organizing games, putting on charades and getting up stunt parties.

"She must also be able to lead community singing and folk dances. It is most important that we have more folk dancing in the army and I expect to petition the War Department to provide colorful folk costumes for the soldiers to wear in their folk dances.

"I am also requiring that the army hostesses I enlist be experts in putting on pageants. I hope to present a great many historical and symbolical pageants at the camps and to have the drafted men participate in these in costume. I also hope to promote esthetic and interpretive dancing among the recruits."

Mrs. DeGoofey said she was also organizing a corps of "poetesses" who would give readings of their own poetry at the army camps and who would organize poetry circles among the men in service.

Greek Dances to Liven Camp Life

"I myself," she said, "expect to conduct classes in choral speech, American folklore, nature study, music appreciation, scrapbook making, basket weaving and Byzantine art. I am also organizing a corps of entertainers from among the local debutantes and club women to visit the army camps and put on 'get together' nights. I have a group of Greek dancers from several colleges lined up, also some elocutionists, one-act play groups and innumerable sopranos, harpists and pianists.

"I am also busily engaged in writing a native American symphonic poem which I expect to have presented at the camps. In addition, I shall give book reviews for the boys and give talks on parliamentary law and the development of personality. I also have an illustrated lecture 'To Pike's Peak on a Burro,' consisting of movies I made last summer on my vacation."

"But Mrs. DeGoofey," protested an writer of light editorials, "I understand the government is accepting no more hostess applications."

"Oh, a little thing like that would never stop me," was the reply. "As a matter of fact, there is only one difficulty that is keeping my organization from getting started at once."

"What is that?" asked a pet editor.

"We simply cannot decide whether our uniforms should be a muted chart reuse tan or a muted tan chartreuse," was the reply.

Fashion Etiquette Changes Along Liberal Lines

Hollywood, Calif.—Fashion etiquette is as changeable as a woman's mind and just as unpredictable. What might have been taboo is in excellent taste today.

Grandma, for instance, would have been a fine target for gossip had she stirred from her home in a nightgown, but many Hollywood girls are going dancing in beautiful gowns too lovely for slumber. In printed, flowered, plaided and striped taffetas, satins and chiffons they make elegant dancing frocks.

And this year a girl may show a bare knee on the street and not have her manners criticized. She resembles a little girl with deliberately shortened skirt and two inches of knee exposed between skirt and heavy knee socks. This theme is Brenda Marshall's favorite for around the house. She's adopted it in peasant frocks in pastel shades with matching socks. And for the street Brenda has a Scotch plaid suit, above the knees, and heavy green socks.

According to Olivia de Haviland, it would have been considered cheap to wear anything but genuine jewelry in 1857, background year for "Santa Fe Trail," her latest picture.

Eye-Opening Exercises

Hollywood, Calif. — Priscilla Lane keeps trim and slim by doing high kicks and bends first thing in the morning to the rhythm of her musical metronome. Exercises, the star says, are more beneficial if done in perfect time.

Capitalites Speculate On Juliana's Visit

Program for Two-Day Stay of Dutch Princess a Matter for Much Discussion; White House Party Plans Not Completed

By Hope Ridings Miller

BACK HOME, after a gay week-end in New Haven, I made the usual rounds yesterday afternoon to see what Washington society currently has on its collective mind. Everybody seems to be speculating on the forthcoming visit of Princess Juliana, of the Netherlands and the program that will punctuate her two-day visit here next month.

Hope Ridings Miller

As the guest of President and Mrs. Roosevelt she will, of course, be entertained at an official party at the White House; but whether it will be a dinner, luncheon or tea, nobody yet is ready to tell. I have an idea she would be happy if her hosts made any party for her as simple and informal as possible, and left her plenty of time to drive about, without fanfare, to see the town.

There's a strong possibility that the Netherlands Minister and Mme. Loudon will give a tea for her Royal Highness, but if they do, chances are guests will be limited to officialdom. Certainly, that would be the simplest way to get around one of the most difficult problems connected with entertaining a princess in Washington, where shoals of social lights always are angling for a chance to bend a knee to royalty, and no legation is large enough to hold them all at one time.

Some of the newspaperwomen are hoping that Mrs. Roosevelt will invite the Princess to attend one of her press conferences, or at least to put in a brief appearance there, just as Great Britain's Queen did a couple of years ago. But there, again, I can't tell you anything definite until after the First Lady returns to Washington next week.

I understand the Princess recalls as among her happiest days those in which she shared a house with a group of other girls studying at the University of Leyden. She also has pleasant memories of the time she attended a Dutch summer camp for girls and was treated exactly like everybody else.

An accomplished linguist, the Princess speaks German, Italian, French and English . . . Her full name is Juliana Louise Emma Marie Wilhelmina, and her titles include those of the Duchess of Mecklenberg and the Princess of Lippe Biesterfeld . . . She has a great curiosity to see the shops of New York . . . Admiral de Vos, who will accompany the Princess on her trip, is a brother-in-law of Count van Rechteren Limpurg, counselor of the legation . . . The Princess' husband, Prince Bernhard, in addition to being aide-de-camp to Queen Wilhelmina, is chief of the Netherlands fighting forces.

Mention of the Dutch reminds me that many Washingtonians who remember Dr. Herman van Royen, former attache of the Netherlands Legation, are bristling with indignation over reports of his recent arrest in Holland. Instead of fleeing to England with the government he remained on in his native land, and like many other Dutch officials (he was head of the political department of the Netherlands foreign office) he has been taken into custody by the Germans in reprisal for the internment of Germans in the Dutch East Indies.

NOTE TO SANTA CLAUS: Almost any little girl or boy would be thrilled to find among gifts on Christmas morning a copy of Frances Carpenter's "Tales of a Swiss Grandmother," recently published. A Junior Literary Guild selection, this volume from the pen of a Washington woman includes 31 folk stories that the author has gathered in two extended trips to Switzerland in the past four years. The former Swiss Minister, Marc Peter, is most enthusiastic about the book, which he says has successfully captured the atmosphere of his native land.

Just how the author, who in private life is Mrs. William Chapin Huntington, manages to accomplish as much as she does, I don't know. Last year, one daughter, Joanna, made her debut; and this season another daughter, Edith, is coming out. Meanwhile, Mrs. Huntington has been active in the Society of Woman Geographers, of which she is president, and has finished this book, which looks as if it would be a full-time job for anybody. Incidentally, it's the fourth in a series written by Frances Carpenter. "Tales of a Basque Grandmother" was the first; "Tales of a Russian Grandmother," the second, and then "Tales of a Chinese Grandmother" came along as the third. Each is illustrated by an outstanding native artist. The current book has a frontispiece and fourteen full-page illustrations done by Ernest Bitler, whom Mrs. Huntington and her daughter, Joanna, visited in his studio in a remote Swiss valley two years ago.

FLASHBACK TO NEW HAVEN: Herbert Hoover, who sat with President Charles Seymour of Yale University at the Harvard-Yale game on Saturday, was entertained later at a dinner planned by Dr. and Mrs. Glenn Saxon. But the host couldn't be there. He was rushed off to the hospital for an appendectomy half an hour before time for the party . . . Practically every week-end visitor to New Haven wanted at least one glimpse inside Morey's, that famous photograph-lined hangout where students flock for meals, and stay to carve their initials on the tables . . . George Parmley Day, treasurer of Yale, is such a fascinating raconteur that he kept everybody spellbound at the dinner given by Dr. and Mrs. Wesley A. Sturges at the Faculty Club on Saturday night . . . A decade ago when I met his brother, the late Clarence Day, I was equally impressed with a similar twinkle of the eye and a flair for telling amusing stories . . . Mrs. Sturges, my New Haven hostess, has an idea for a program that should have radio directors making offers right and left. It's a refreshing variation of the question and answer angle and is educational without being too obvious about it . . . AND—this is positively my last reference to New Haven for a while—I found out before I'd been there an hour that calling the Yale Bowl "a stadium" is a mistake newcomers don't make twice.

Kitty Claude To Make Debut

Mrs. Harold Stark, wife of the Chief of Naval Operations, will be among those pouring tea when Miss Kitty Claude, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Abram Claude, is presented to society this afternoon at a tea dance at the Army and Navy Country Club.

Others presiding at the tea table will include Mrs. Emory S. Land, Miss Katherine T. Andrews, sister of Mrs. Claude, Mrs. Barron DuBois, Miss Carolyn Nash, Mrs. H. E. Kimmel, Mrs. C. Griscom Randle, Mrs. Walter McClaran, Mrs. Wallach Merriam, and Mrs. Edwin G. Kintner.

Assisting the debutante will be the Misses Muriel Maddox, Mary Lord Andrews, Coby Ranneft, Suzanne Slingluff, Lila Deyo, Nancy Strong, Peggy Gearing, Mary Ann Ferrandou, and Marion and Mary Theresa Norris.

Sonia Tomara Visiting Capital

Russian-born Sonia Tomara, famous correspondent, is spending a few days in Washington and is staying at the Lafayette. Yesterday she lunched with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lippmann, and in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Bulkley Griffin gathered a few friends for cocktails in her honor.

Today Miss Tomara, who was more or less continually under bombardment for many months while covering the war, will address members and guests at a luncheon today of the Women's National Press Club. The function will take place at the Willard at 1 o'clock.

The writer, a citizen of France, went abroad for a vacation a year ago last July, and when war broke out remained as a correspondent. She now is working for the city staff of the New York Herald Tribune, and is said to be writing a book about her experiences.

Donald Downses Hosts at Party In Virginia

Mrs. Russell Bennett And Mrs. Werlich Pour Tea During Afternoon

Downcrest—the pleasant home of Mr. an Mrs. Donald Downs in nearby Virginia—was the scene of a gay cocktail party yesterday afternoon between 5 and 7 o'clock.

In a simple black dress and a new pompadour hair-do, the hostess greeted well over 100 guests during the afternoon. Tea was to be had in the dining room and drinks were doled out in the downstairs bar—where most of th young set gathered.

Presiding at the tea table was Mrs. Russell Bennett, mother of Mrs. Downs, and Mrs. McCeney Werlich. Mrs. Bennett wore a scarf of Russian sables over her black frock. Aside from tea there were many delicacies to be had at the table centered with a huge bouquet of roses. There were smoked turkeys, cheese puffs and country ham but the hit of the afternoon was cheese cake.

Just to mention a few here and there . . . Mme. Fotitch, wife of the Yugoslav Minister, in a mink coat and fetching brown hat . . . Mrs. George Barnett, smart in tweeds chatting with Mrs. Buchanan Merryman . . . Mrs. Sydney Cloman . . . Mrs. Clifton Phillips in an unusual black frock with high collars and cuffs embroidered in gold . . . Mrs. Robert Guggenheim in a bright green gown, eton jacket of chincilla and huge muff of the same fur . . . Mr. and Mrs. Laurence V. Benet, Mrs. Daniel Stapleton and Mrs. Lydia Loring in animated conversation . . . Mrs. J. Lawrence Houghteling, in hunters green . . . Mrs. Thorpe Powell inspecting the bar . . . Fred Roy . . . Mrs. Henry Parsons Erwin . . . Mr. and Mrs. Louis Owley, and dozens more.

About the Town

with Dudley Harmon

WHEN James Penfield returns this week to his post as Consul in Greenland, he will really be getting away from it all for three solid months. Not until March will the next boat call there with mail, food and presents from solicitous Washington friends.

DUDLEY HARMON

Jim intends to while his leisure moments away during the long Greenland winter by learning to ski, playing bridge, and taking kayak lessons. In Godthwab, the capital, there's neither electricity nor running water. When Jim left for his Arctic post last summer, he was told to bring along a black tie, even though the only inhabitants, outside Greenlanders, were to be himself, Vice Consul George West and a few Danish officials. So far he has only donned the outfit once.

• • • •

WHILE Mr. West held down the desk at Godthwap last summer, his colleague traveled about the country for several months. As the interior is sheer ice, the only traveling is done by boat along the edges of the island.

Messrs. Penfield and West share a frame house and an Eskimo cook together. The trip to and from Greenland requires 11 days.

• • • •

THE Richard Sangers, Representative-elect and Mrs. Thomas Eliot, of Boston, and the James Rowes are really putting the ideal of national unity into practice. The Sangers (he has a job with the Republican National Committee), the Eliots (Tom is an ardent New Dealer) and the Rowes (Jim is one of the President's assistants) found themselves fellow passengers recently on the new liner America. The Sangers were en route to the island in the Caribbean Sea which they own with several others and which is run along the lines of an exclusive club. They invited the Eliots and the Rowes to join them there for a vacation and the two couples promptly accepted. Now Washington is wondering who is going to convert whom?

• • • •

BRIDES and Britishers were in the majority at the cocktail party given on Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Livingston Hartley. Guests of honor were the recently married Harry Villards, ando two other newly wed couples, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Bramwell and Mr. and Mrs. John Bailey, were also present.

Mr. Hartley heads the Washington division of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, and his guests on Sunday included Embassy staff members and one or two from the British Purchasing Commission.

Mrs. MacFarlane Reid, American wife of the Commander of the British Air Forces at Aden, was present. She is working hard for the British relief shop on Connecticut Avenue, where Christmas cards and other gifts may be purchased to help England.

• • • •

MR. AND MRS. Benjamin Thoron, next door neighbors, dropped in for a drink, and others glimpsed were Hugh Cumming, jr., Miss Dorothea Villard, Jacob Beam, recently assigned to duty at the State Department after six months in Berlin; Mrs. Stanley Woodward, the Counselor of the Swedish Legation and Mme. Wennerberg, the Escott Reids, of the Canadian Legation, and Llewellyn Thompson, of the State Department. Mr. Thompson has been assigned to Moscow and will leave in about three weeks from the West Coast for Vladivostok.

W. J. Ballinger Will Marry

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Radcliffe Whitehead, of Trenton, N. J., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Louise Whitehead, to Willis Jerome Ballinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Webster Ballinger, of this city.

The wedding will take place in December. Miss Whitehead attended New Jersey College for Women at New Brunswick.

The prospective bridegroom was graduated from Yale and took postgraduate work at Harvard. He is a member of Alpha Sigma Phi, Delta Sigma Rho and Phi Beta Kappa. Mr. Ballinger is economic adviser to the Federal Trade Commission.

Mrs. Phillips Here To Visit Mother At R Street Home

Mrs. Townsend Phillips, of New York, the former Elise Hill, has arrived to visit her mother, Mrs. Hiram Bingham, and former Senator Bingham at their home on R Street.

She will be here for about ten days and came especially to be present at the debut of her sister, Miss Kitty Hill, on Friday afternoon. Mr. Phillips will be kept in New York by business and won't be able to attend the party.

Following Friday's tea at their home, Mr. and Mrs. Bingham will give a dinner at the Metropolitan Club for Miss Hill. There will be 24 in the company.

W. N. Woodses Back With Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Woods and their daughter, Miss Kitty Woods, have returned to Washington after spending the week-end in Charlottesville, Va., with relatives, Mrs. Warner Wood and Mrs. Mary Miller Holt.

Among the parties they attended was a dinner at which Mrs. Philip George Walker was hostess. The guests included Countess Margaret Dixon, of Kentucky; Miss Isabel Page, Dudley Osborne, Peter Sanford, of Rochester, N. Y.; James Cox, of McLean, Va., and the son of the hostess, Henry Streit Walker.

Miss Woods and Miss Edith Hubbard attended the University of Virginia-University of North Carolina football game with Philip George Walker.

District Rule Dinner Topic Of B.P.W.C.

Elwood H. Seal, Rep. A. J. Kennedy And Sefton Darr Are Chief Speakers

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

The District Government was the subject of a discussion last night at the November dinner meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club, at the Admiral Club. Mrs. Grace Brown Stiles presented as the speakers Elwood H. Seal, former corporation counsel; Representative Ambrose J. Kennedy, of Maryland, author of what is popularly known as the "Kennedy-Seal bill" for reorganization of the District government, and Sefton Darr, former president of the D. C. Barr Association.

Following an explanation by Mr. Seal of the District Government as it now functions, under the organic act of 1878, Representative Kennedy outlined the changes proposed in his bill. These include setting up civil service; taking the District out from under the Federal budget; setting up a department of finance, with assessors, collectors and auditors; a department for all licensing and provision for an executive assistant to the Commissioners who would also serve as a budget officer to study department needs.

Mr. Darr offered District suffrage as a remedy for the whole situation. "The District ought to have its own Government, elected by the people," he said.

He recommended eliminating all plans for reorganization and leaving it in the hands of the people, with the election of a city council which would appoint a trained and competent city manager. This body would have power to fix and collect taxes, to spend money and to regulate the District except for the final jurisdiction, which would rest in the hands of Congress.

Dr. Florence Armstrong, president of the club, opened the meeting.

D. C. Federation Has Meeting

Mrs. Consuelo Seaone was guest speaker yesterday afternoon at the November meeting of the District Federation of Women's Clubs, speaking on "Isms." Mrs. Seaone, who is the wife of Col. Seaone, reviewed the background of communism, fascism and nazism, pointing out the differences which exist between the systems.

In the morning, Mrs. Thomas Faris, chairman of press relations for the federation, presented the club editors of the Washington newspapers, who discussed club publicity from the editor's standpoint.

Ithel Rita Caspar, gifted young pianist, was presented as guest soloist.

Zontians Hear Daisy Bancroft

Miss Daisy Bancroft, of the Philadelphia Zonta Club, last night addressed a group of local Zontians and their friends at the home of Miss Emma T. Hahm, telling of raising war relief funds for Britain.

Miss Bancroft was responsible for the idea of selling pencils for the benefit of the British War Relief Society, a plan by which $1,600 has been raised since April. On a visit to the six Canadian clubs, she made them a personal gift of a large number of the pencils to be sold, inscribed, "Help Zonta Service Write Right for Britain."

The Washington Club plans to cooperate in the pencil sale. The Zontians of this country and Canada already have provided money for one station wagon for Britain, convertible for hospital use, and $1,000 for food.

Woman's National Democratic Club Hears Rep. Norton

Speaking on the subject, "Twenty Years of Woman's Suffrage" at the luncheon meeting of the Women's National Democratic Club yesterday, Representative Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey, said that she believes the most outstanding service women have rendered since they received the vote, has been in the field of organization work and the great influence it had brought to those responsible for legislation.

Mrs. Norton, chairman of the House Committee on Labor, spoke from the vantage point of 16 years in Congress. She was introduced by Mrs. Claude Pepper, president of the club.

Women's Job Clinic Meets Tonight

The third meeting of the Women's Job Clinic will be held tonight at the George Washington University, in room 203, Building D, from 7:30 to 9:30. The clinic is under the auspices of the Women's Occupational Council. The chairman of the council, Dr. Marjorie Shearon, presides at each meeting and leads the discussion.

Two guest speakers will act as leaders at the clinic. Mrs. Helen E. Baker, chief of the stenographic section in the office of the executive director of the Social Security Board, will speak on some of the assets and liabilities of older women who are engaged in, or are seeking positions in clerical work.

The second speaker will be Earl H. Study, a member of the Society of Personnel Administrators. He is administrative assistant in the personnel office of the United States Office of Education, and is the officer assigned to recruitment of personnel for the national defense training program being carried out by the Office of Education. He will outline the technique to be followed in obtaining a civil service job in the Federal Government at the present time, and will discuss possible changes in Federal legislation affecting older workers.

Mizrachi Meeting

Tonight the Washington chapter of the Junior Mizrachi Women will hold its monthly social meeting at the home of Mrs. H. Goldsmith, 4510 Ellicott Street Northwest. Mrs. K. Benjamin will be cohostess. The opening prayer is to be read by Mrs. D. Dekelbaum. Reports on the educational institute and the convention will be part of the evening's program. Mrs. E. Pollock will sing.

Madame Chairman

THE VISIT of Lieut. Gen. H. Haraguchi in Washington last week and his thanks to Admiral Taylor for the rescue of his daughter, Mme. Teruko Inouye, from the wreck of the Vestris in 1928, were of particular interest to the World Fellowship Committee of the Y. W. C. A.

In the World Fellowship Cabinet at the administration building of the "Y. W." is a handsome memorial bowl, the gift of Mme. Inouye, who had it made on her return to Japan and presented it to the committee as a token of her gratitude for her rescue by a United States Naval vessel.

The bowl has on the outside a picture of Fuplama, the mountain which Mme. Inouye and her husband last glimpsed as they left their homeland. There are also the cherry blossoms, symbolizing their stay in Washington, the Statue of Liberty, as they sailed from New York Harbor, on their ill-fated voyage to Buenos Aires, then the crashing waves that destroyed the Vestris when her husband was lost. Inside the bowl is a cherry branch from which a single petal is floating away.

Mrs. William S. Culbertson was chairman of the local World Fellowship Committee, and Mrs. D. E. Yarnell, program chairman at the time the bowl was received. Mrs. Albert W. Atwood now heads the committee.

PANAMA GROUP TO MEET—The officers and board of the women's Auxiliary of the Panama Canal Society will give a tea tomorrow from 4 to 6 p. m. at the home of Mrs. William D. Wrightson. Those interested in Canal Zone days are invited to join the society.

The officers and board consist only of old timers who were on the Isthmus in construction days. They are: President, Mrs. Wrightson; first vice president, Mrs. Maurice Thatcher; second vice president, Mrs. T. M. Reynolds, Baltimore; secretary, Mrs. Harry Moore Payne; treasurer, Mrs. E. Charters Grimmnitz; chairman of board, Mrs. C. J. Severn, with Mrs. C. R. Chisholm, Mrs. H. E Spangler, Baltimore; Mrs. Hanna Monroe and Miss Nina Hansen, other members.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN ACTIVE—Many new members, who have joined the League of Republican Women during the past three weeks, were present yesterday afternoon at the weekly tea at headquarters, 1301 Seventeenth Street Northwest, given in honor of Mrs. William Howard Taft, widow of former President Taft, and mother of Senator Robert A. Taft.

There was no evidence of the Republican women feeling crushed by the recent Democratic victory but, on the contrary, a determination to carry on so as to be more effective in the future.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, president of the league, was present to greet the members and guests. The hostesses for the day were Mrs. Maurice H. Thatcher and rMs. Warren J. Haines.

HEADS UNION—Mrs. Ida W. Ramsey, who was president of the District W. C. T. U. for the maximum term permitted by the constitution, and retired from office this season, has not given up the duties of a W. C. T. U. president. She has been reelected as head of the Shepherd Park local union.

Serving with her are: Mrs. Florence W. Warner, vice president; Mrs. Charles E. Riordon, crorresponding secretary; Mrs. Margaret Bell, treasurer, and Mrs. C. E. Myers, recording secretary.

During the year this union has raised its apportionment of $25 for the District Union. It has also completed paying for a drinking fountain it has installed in the Northminster Presbyterian Church, at a cost of $75 as a memorial to Frances E. Willard, founder of the national organization.

W. B. Putnams Celebrate 25th Anniversary

More Than 200 Friends And Relatives Fete Woodridge Couple

In the presence of a large number of friends and relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred B. Putnam celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage last evening at their home in Woodridge.

Among those present were three persons who attended the wedding 25 years ago when Mrs. Putnam, the former Miss Martha Hitz, and Mr. Putnam were married in the Sherwood Presbyterian Church. Miss Mary C. Aitcheson, of Alexandria, attended Mrs. Putnam as maid of honor, Mrs. James S. Gutsell, of Leetown, W. Va., played the organ and E. Taylor Chewning was soloist.

The house was decorated with white chrysanthemums and snapdragons. Palms and ferns banked against the mantelpiece made an attractive background for the reception line, which consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Putnam, Miss Mary C. Aitcheson, Mrs. James S. Gutsell and E. Taylor Chewning. Mrs. Putnam wore a becoming gown of blue velvet with a shoulder corsage of white orchids.

Presiding at the table were Mrs. T. N. Beavers, Mrs. H. N. Dorman, Mrs. H. P. Firestone, Mrs. Dorr Green, Mrs. O. G. Hankins, Miss Anna Heider, Mrs. H. P. Heine, Mrs. W. J. Horner, Mrs. H. L. Mathews, Miss Louise Moore, Mrs. E. N. Norris and Mrs. Norman Shepard.

Assisting at the table were Miss Effie Baird, Mrs. Margaret Chaney, Mrs. W. B. Davis, Miss Florence Fritz, Miss Rita Harbers, Miss Grace Putnam and Mrs. W. J. Sando. Over 200 friends and relatives were present at the celebration. The out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Hayes R. Putnam, of Canton, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Myers, of Tyrone, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Horner, of Oberlin, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. James S. Gutsell, of Leetown, W. Va.

Britain Has Night Without Bombings

Bad Weather Blamed, But Many Fear Heavier Attacks Due

By Robert P. Post.
Copyright by New York Times

London (Tuesday), Nov. 26.—Up until midnight Monday and early Tuesday morning no German bombs were dropped on Britain. London's sirens were quiet and throughout the United Kingdom an uncanny peace prevailed.

There were a few raiders over western England earlier Monday evening, but apparently no bombs were dropped. It was difficult to figure out what it meant and at any moment the peace may be shattered. Most people here kept their fingers crossed.

One possible explanation for this quiet is that the Germans are finding out what the British found out last winter—that during winter months the heavy ground mist makes crashes almost certain when bombers return to their bases in France. Another possible explanation is that the Germans are resting and re-forming their squadrons for a particularly heavy assault either later in the night, tomorrow or the next day.

At any rate the people in London, missing their familiar evening wail, were not particularly optimistic. They have learned by the bitterest experience that a quiet night for them may mean that someboy else is catching it hot and heavy. This did not seem true at the moment, but it was certainly true Sunday night, when what the censor insists must be called "West of England" was heavily attacked.

Not a Difficult Guess

Everybody in England knows the name of the town. The German communique says it was Bristol. Your corresponent is allowed to cite the German ommunique but for the purposes of this story, the censor insists the bombed area must remain a "West of England Town" and United States readers can guess. It should not be difficult.

The same west of England town was visited again early last evening. The raiders may have been on a reconnaissance to see if some of the big fires they started Sunday night when, it will be remembered, the Germans claim they bombed Bristol, were still burning. Even if they were, they dropped a few incendiaries before departing.

Otherwise, last night's raids appear to be minor. The daylight raids yesterday were also. Several German bombers, operating singly or in small formations, crossed the south and southeast coasts. One small formation penetrated to the outskirts of London.

Two Messerschmidts dive-bombed houses and bungalows on a southeast coast town. They were part of the formation which came up the Thames Estuary but were turned back by Spitfires. In another part of England a private car, proceeding along a road, was unsuccessfully machine-gunned.

The west of England town—you must not forget the Germans say it was Bristol—had a bad time Sunday night. For several hours single planes arrived one after another. Incendiaries were followed by high explosives. An old peoples' home was hit—its inhabitants had been moved—as were two churches, a school, a theater, a cinema and shops.

It is a good guess that other places were also hit. The censor's insistance on confining releases to damage to these nonmilitary objectives is becoming ludicrous, though it is understandable in view of the importance of not telling the Germans just what industrial objectives they have bombed.

The death toll in the "western town" is probably fairly high, but the raid, it is emphasized, was not as intense as that on Coventry. It is estimated there were about 100 planes. The German communique says they rained hundreds of tons of bombs on Bristol.

The "west of England town" stood up against the raid in the best of fashion, it is reported. The people are in good spirits and the town's life is continuing. Some bombs were dropped in the outskirts of London Sunday night, with some casualties.

Temperance 'Needs a New Face,' DrysTold

Girl Leader Calls for Streamlined Attack On 'the Beer Barons'

Elders of the prohibition movement, at an Anti-Saloon League convention in Calvary Baptist Church here yesterday were advised by pretty 21-year-old Marjorie Ptacek, of Kansas, that temperance, "like the fortyish woman, needs a new face and a 1941 viewpoint."

The elder drys heard her urgings for a streamlined attack on the people their speakers refer to as "the beer barons."

Miss Ptacek, who is Youth Eudcational secretary of the Kansas United Dry Forces, declared a need for enlivening temperance speeches and reading materials. She urged that fire be fought with fire; if someone says it is stylish to drink "then set a style against drink," she said.

Cites Liquor Consumption

A note of gloom was thereafter given the convention by S. P. McNaught, Ohio State superintendent of the league, when he reported that $4,500,000, worth of intoxicants was drunk last year, a total of 14 gallons per person in the land.

He told of a beautiful and talented girl who liked a cocktail occasionally, but was indifferent to temperance. She heard of a temperance quiz contest offering the prize of a summer cruise on the Great Lakes. She won. And having so thoroughly digested all the facts and statistics on the evils of drink she refrained from drinking for good and spread the word to her college companions that one could have a good time though sober.

The quiz contests were broadly recommended as a temperance stimulation for the young.

The Rev. R. D. Dexheimer, Illinois State superintendent of the league, told how education against alcohol is given in the schools of his State, of how the economic, physiological, and safe driving implications are brought home to the students in illustrated lectures. The lectures, he said, are welcomed by the teachers and higher school authorities there. Urgings to the students are based on a plea for them to become good citizens, he explained.

The highlights of today's program will be a speech, "The Lamp of Experience," to be given by Bishop James Cannon, jr., at the 7:45 p. m. session. Bishop Cannon was a leader of the long campaign that ended with enactment of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Calls Liquor a '5th Column'

The 20 billion dollars spent for liquor in this country since prohibition would pay for the present national defense program "many times over," Alonzo L. Baker, of Los Angeles, field secretary of the Race Betterment Foundation, told the session of the league convention last night.

Calling liquor "America's fifth column," Baker declared that "we need a sober America during this war, and we'll need a sober nation in the hard times that will follow it."

Bishop Edwin H. Hughes of the District area of the Methodist Church, discussed "The Vocabulary of the Temperence Reform." He urged a "reawaking of the conscience of the church to the evils of liquor."

Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Reformation, discussed "The Church and American Democracy." Dr. Frank H. Throop, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, offered the invocation.

1,666 Workers On Tap to Build Warplanes

Survey Also Reveals Deficiency of Labor For Shipbuilding

A shortage of skilled workers for the expanded manufacture of aircraft, ships, munitions and arms under the defense program was indicated yesterday by a report on a Social Security Board survey.

Although 218,000 competent workers are available, mostly unemployed, only an estimated 1,666 could be employed in aircraft manufacturing, it was found.

Of the 218,000, only 2,297 were reported qualified for jobs in ship manufacture. The number available for the manufacture of munitions and ordnance was not announced.

The survey also showed a 9 per cent decrease since August 31 in workmen available for any of "more than 500 occupations essential to defense production."

In the District only one man was listed as possessing skill which could be utilized in aircraft manufacture. Thirteen were listed for Maryland and one in Virgmia.

Other totals for the country by occupations were 55,206 available for construction work, 9,515 for electrical goods manufacture, 75,900 for foundries and machine shops, 2,297 for the shipbuilding industry and 31,017 for work in transportation, communication or public utilities.

Half of the number of men qualified for aircraft manufacture were registered in California.

In the District 766 workers skilled in defense industries were registered. Of that number, 373 were qualified for construction work, 29 in the manufacture of electrical goods, 89 in shipbuilding, and 140 for transportation, communication and public utilities.

N. Y. Welcomes Wax Gordon Back By Call to Court

New York, Nov. 25 (AP).—A professed pauper, Waxey Gordon was back tonight on Broadway—a Broadway that has changed considerably since the lush days when he supplied its illicit alcohol, backed many of its shows, controlled its narcotic racket and was paid by its panderers.

Gordon, born Irving Wexler, came back from Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary quietly in contrast to the fanfare that saw him go seven years ago. He was rushed back here on his release five days ago, but no word leaked out until today when, in a routine court proceeding, he was ordered produced for examination in court.

Even Government officials had nothing to say about Gordon's release three years short of the ten to which he had been sentenced in 1933 for income tax evasion.

Court Issues Ruling on Divorce After Separation

When a couple has been voluntarily separated five years either person may obtain a divorce for this reason, no matter who originally deserted whom.

The United States Court of Appeals made this ruling yesterday in an opinion by Justice Henry W. Edgerton, declaring Thomas W. Parks entitled to a divorce. Mrs. Ethel M. Parks obtained a separate maintenance decree May 8, 1935, and since has received $14 a week alimony.

Neither took any further step until Parks asked for an absolute divorce May 6, 1938.

Senate and House Change Their Quarters Without Ado

Senators Convene in Old Supreme Court Chamber Where Reporters Adorn Horse-Hair Benches in Rear of Hall

Maybe it was because only a handful of spectators were admitted to both sessions, but the Senate and House yesterday convened in their temporary quarters without resort to oratory.

The Senate met in the old Supreme Court chamber, which once resounded to the words of Daniel Webster, John C. Calhoun, and others. But it went through its routine business as calmly as though it were in the same chamber it has used for 81 years.

Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, as president pro-tem, was almost lost in a big chair behind the massive desk where until five years ago the Supreme Court justices sat.

The Senators all had private chairs, but no desks, while the press and a handful of spectators sat on horse-hair benches in the rear of the small, dark chamber.

Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, felt so at home in the new quarters that he calmly read a newspaper during part of the proceedings.

A minority of the House members turned out for the first session in the brightly lighted Ways and Means Committee room of the new House Office Building.

Spectators sat almost alongside the members, while the press lolled at a table in the rear of the hall. The amplification proved so poor, however, that the newspaper reporters had to obtain copies of a few extemporaneous speeches after the House quit until Thursday.

Motion picture operators on the scene were miffed when they weren't allowed to take photographs while the House was in actual session.

Meanwhile, workmen under the direction of David Lynn, Capitol architect, were engaged in removing benches and desks from the Senate and House chambers and covering up the rostrums preparatory to building temporary trusses to reinforce the ceilings.

Italian Captive Says Colonel Shot 2 Soldiers Fleeing Greeks

Lieutenant Declares He Had to Surrender 'To Prevent Pure Slaughter;' Prisoners Described as Sorry Lot, Unfed for 3 Days

By the Associated Press

Athens, Nov. 25.—A captured Italian lieutenant's story that two men in his unit were shot by their colonel after the group retreated before the Greeks was told today to an Associated Press correspondent at the front.

The correspondent, sitting in Greek trenches, watched the lieutenant and 21 other Italians surrender.

This minor action took place 10 miles east of Argirocastro, Albania, toward which the Greeks are driving.

Fire Echoes All Day.

Here is the correspondent's story:

"All during the day, artillery and machine-gun fire echoed through numerous valleys in this region and Italian planes flew high overhead.

"The 22 prisoners were remnants of a 60-man unit. All others had been killed.

"Three more Italian companies were holding out on adjoining hills.

"The prisoners I saw taken were driven from their cover by artillery fire originating in the place where I sat. They came out of the bushes, holding their hands above their heads.

No Food in Three Days

"They were a sorry sight, ragged and hungry. The lieutenant said they had not eaten in three days.

"'I had to surrender to prevent pure slaughter,'" he said.

"'Two days ago I asked for reinforcements. They said they would send me some, but they never did. Finally I had to abandon the position. We retreated. The colonel in command a little behind the line shot two of us for it—just put them up against a tree and shot them. He turned us back with hand grenades and guns. We had no automatic weapons. We were outnumbered and lost.'"

"What I have seen today confirms that the Greeks are fighting like lions while the Italians, unwilling to give battle, are fleeing or surrendering all along the front.

Booty Clogs Roads

"Stories of booty left behind are not exaggerated. The amount is so great it literally clogs the roads. I counted as many as 23 Italian trucks, seven or eight tanks and motorcycles and bicycles by the hundreds over a distance of 30 miles.

"There is no regular front. The soldiers stay at their posts night and day. They eat and sleep where they are."

Albanians Resist Passively

Salonika, Nov. 25 (AP).—A 25-year-old Albanian who was wounded in guilding Greek troops through the Koritza sector declared today his countrymen had adopted "passive resistance" to hamper Italian operations against Greece.

"Open revolt is impossible because the Italians took arms from every Albanian house months ago," declared Ceinal Bay Ramb nt a hospital where he is recovering from a leg wound.

"The Italians did not mobilize us or make us fight because they were afraid the guns they would give us would be used against them," Bay Ramb said, adding that only a few hundred fought with the Italians.

He said Albanians did what they could "to sabotage the Italian war machine."

"At the start of the war, the Italians took everything—horses, chickens and cows included."

Doctor Tells How Chinese Control Ague

Williams Describes Antimalaria Work On Road to Burma

Dr. L. L. William, jr., senior surgeon of the United States Public Health Service, speaking yesterday at the National Institute of Health in Bethesda, Md., described his experiences in assisting the Chinese government to control malaria along the China-Burma Highway.

Dr. Williams, Dr. Bruce Mayne and Surgeon H. J. Bush were sent to China in the fall of 1939 and remained there six months teaching modern methods of malaria control.

Highway Built in Nine Months

Dr. Williams said the Chinese physicians whom they trained have organized a malaria control unit for the China-Burma Highway with headquarters at Chefang.

An amazing part of their trip, Dr. Williams said, was their journey over the 625-mile highway, built over a mountainous route in nine months with hard labor.

"More than half the coolies had no tools of any description," he said. "They grabbed up rocks and handfuls of earth and carried them in their bare hands to the fills and dropped them.

Great Gangs Employed

"After the raod via Nanning to Indo-China was cut and when the railroad from Indo-China was bombed, the road to Burma became increasingly important to the Chinese. Greater gangs of laborers were employed so that wash-outs and landslides would not block the road for more than 24 hours at a time.

"Many small groups were placed at dangerous points to clear the road after accidents. The labor gangs can live fairly well on the road only if they are kept free of malaria."

Premarital Blood Test Favored Here

additional provision recognizing certification from other States was suggested.

Dr. Cavanagh, who read a brief outlining his opposition to the bill, cited ten reasons for his objections, viz.: Compulsory health laws are never successful; Wassermann tests are not infallible; there are no standards of communicability for syphilis; lack of trained workers to carry out the law; 95 per cent of persons infected with syphilis show no gross clinical evidence of it; bill intended as blood test law; it would encourage insufficient treatment; it would tend to increase premarital and extra-marital sex relations; it constitutes an invasion of personal rights, and it would increase the financial burden of the community.

Dr. Hough's main objections were that determination of syphilis is often difficult and that treatment of persons not infected is dangerous and a false diagnois may have a harmful psychological effect on the person involved.

Pre-Natal Tests Next

The health department bill, Dr. Hough contended, would do more harm than good.

Health Officer Ruhland intimated that a pre-natal examination law might next be proposed as he sought to answer suggestions of civic spokesmen that the bill be broadened to bar marriage licenses to persons having any communicable disease.

Dr. Ruhland expressed the opinion that the pre-marital examination, while limited to syphilis, would encourage treatment for other diseases as well.

Sefton Darr, one of the committmittee, stated, however, that he believed laws far more effective than moral persuasion. He also expressed interest in a proposal of W. M. Green, of the Federation of Citizens Associations, that both parties in a contemplated marriage be informed of the findings of the tests.

The committee which conducted the hearing included, besides Keech and Darr, Mrs. Louis Ottenberg, Mrs. Edna W. Payton and Dr. Edgar P. Copeland.

Five Die in Va. Traffic Crashes Over Week-end

By the Associated Press

At least five persons were killed in Virginia week-end traffic accidents. Another was killed by a train.

The dead:

Melvin Thomas Bennett, 19, of Schoolfield, and Julius Hankins, 19, of Spray, N. C., whose necks were broken when their motorcycle crashed against a tree near Callands, Pittsylvania County, Saturday night.

Mildred Allen, 10, of Richmond, injured fatally Sunday in the collision of an automobile and a bus on Nine Mile Road, just outside the Richmond city limits. Fourteen other occupants of the auto and the bus were treated at a Richmond hospital.

H. E. Coffman, of Winchester, and M. T. Dame, of Clifton Forge, killed in the crash of two automobiles near Clifton Forge Saturday.

President May Skip Gridiron Dinner

The White House said yesterday that President Roosevelt might not attend the Gridiron dinner, semiannual newspapermen's frolic, scheduled for December 14.

Mr. Roosevelt has been a guest at all previous Gridiron dinners since he took office in March, 1933.

Stephen Early, White House press secretary, said the Gridiron Club had issued its customary invitation to the President, but "the President told them there were three things he had in mind. If any of the three things developed he wouldn't be able to attend this dinner."

Court Declares Taxi Driver's Rights Violated

Holds Police Entered His Home Illegally, Sets Conviction Aside

Fred Nueslein, 55-year-old taxi driver, today was free to seek restoration of the license taken from him a year ago when he was wrongly convicted of drunken driving.

The United States Court of Appeals yesterday set aside Nueslein's conviction by the Police Court in an opinion by Justice Fred Vinson, which broadly discussed the sanctity of civil liberties.

Justice Vinson declared "the vital constitutional policy of security in the home" against unlawful search and seizure to be more important than the punishment of all minor offenders.

Struck Parked Auto

Nueslein, who lives with his family at 209 Fourteenth Street Northeast, struck a parked automobile near Fourteenth and B Streets Northeast about 1:15 a. m. August 5, 1939. He parked his cab nearby and went home. Soon afterward, two policemen, without a search warrant, entered the house and went upstairs, where they talked to Nueslein. Nueslein said he had been driving the cab when the accident happened. The officers formed the opinion that he was intoxicated and arrested him. Nueslein admitted drinking a glass of beer.

When Nueslein was tried the officers were allowed to tell what he had said and he was convicted. His license was then revoked and his attorney, J. Robert Carey, says that as a result of the costs of the prosecution, Nueslein lost several other cabs he owned.

Attorney Carey told the Court of Appeals that Nueslein's statement was the only evidence to indicate that he had been driving the car and protested that this evidence was unlawfully obtained because the officers violated the Constitution when they entered the house without a warrant.

Justice Vinson, announcing that the court agreed, said in part:

Procedure Unwarranted

"This defendant may have driven a taxi while under the influence of an alcoholic beverage; at least, for some reason he wrinkled the fender of an unoccupied parked car, but the public interest in this case does not call for the rough and speedy conduct of officers tracking down a felon."

Elsewhere, Justice Vinson pointed out that Nueslein's admission was heard by the police only because they had unlawfully entered his house. He expressed doubt that the officers could have gotten a search warrant, in a lawful manner, if they had sought one before entering the house.

Attorney Carey said this was Nueslein's first trouble in more than 20 years as a cab driver in Washington. He planned to seek restoration of Nueslein's license, although the licensing board would have discretion to refuse, notwithstanding the Court of Appeals decision.

Grocery Conclave Welcomes Probe On Price Fixing

New York, Nov. 25 (AP).—A Federal investigation of alleged price-fixing and agreements on distribution of foodstuffs was launched today simultaneously with the opening of the annual convention of the Nation's leading grocers.

Spokesmen for the Associated Grocery Manufacturers of America said, "The association welcomes this investigation and will constructively collaborate in it."

In Federal Court, subpoenas calling for the production of records were issued on appliction of two Department of Justice agents who are investigating complaints against unnamed manufacturers and distributors of tin cans.

Fowler Hamilton, a special assistant to the Attorney General, is expected from Washington tomorrow to head an inquiry into prices charged for milk in the State. A third investigation into prices charged for fish, which the Government understands may be influenced by wholesalers' agreements, already is under way.

Committee Urges Change in Laws Limiting War Aid

New York, Nov. 25 (AP).—The Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies today urged Congress to "assume a larger share of responsibility, with the President," for aiding the Allies and to modify statutes restricting American cooperation with democratic nations at war.

The committee, of which William Allen White is chairman, urged "very greatly increased American arms production," a supply of American merchant vessels to Britain, all possible "material and financial help" to China, extension of embargoes on war materials for Japan, joint use of American and British pacific naval bases and joint protection by the two fleets of the Atlantic and Pacific.

The committee asked the President "to call a conference of all peoples who cherish freedom, including the governments in exile, for a reaffirmation of faith in a world of peace based upon justice and the security of nations."

Miss Cudmore, 66, Dies; Well Known In Art Galleries

Miss Mary A. Cudmore, 66, well known among amateur artists for her oil reproductions of famous masters, died yesterday at her home.

A familiar figure at the Corcoran Art Gallery, Miss Cudmore was proud of the fact that she had never had an art lesson. She was a native of Washington, educated in the public schools here, and in recent years made her home with her brother, James F. Cudmore, a retired Smithsonian Institution employe, who lives at 3220 Chevy Chase Parkway.

Funeral services will be at 9:30 a. m. Thursday at the Blessed Sacrament Catholic Church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Berliners Loathe Italy, Visitor Told

Air Raids Over Britain Unpopular With Luftwaffe, He Hears

By G. E. R. Gedye.
Copyright by New York Times

Istanbul, Nov. 25.—Some interesting details on present conditions in Germany were given to this correspondent yesterday by a Turkish business man who arrived here after a long residence in Berlin.

He said that the Berliners were at no pains to conceal their disgust with Italy and were asking:

"Why are we being drawn into this senseless attack on Greece? What have we ever got out of this Italian alliance anyway?"

The damage inflicted by Britain in constant air raids on rail centers, he said, is making itself uncomfortably felt, in spite of the requisitioning of all available rolling stock from the French railways.

The German railways continue despite disorganization, but signs of a coal shortage in Berlin and elsewhere are noticeable, owing to the great difficulties of moving coal from the constantly bombed Ruhr area.

For the same reason there is from time to time difficulty in securing wheat and fats. Good friends of his in the Luftwaffe told him that there was no longer spontaneous volunteering for air raids over Britain and the pilots have to take turns at this unpopular task, but curiously enough it is not so much the British fighter activity as the "savage fury" of the British ground defense of which his friend complained.

From German business colleagues in Warsaw he heard that despite frequent executions it is proving almost impossible to prevent constant sabotage on the railways by the Poles.

There is much grumbling among German housewives on account of the privileged positions in the matter of food supply enjoyed by the Gestapo (secret police), army officers and noncommissioned officers on the lines of communication in France.

These are able to send their families regularly good supplies of coffee, sugar, cocoa and chocolate, the lack of which is so severely felt by the mass of the population in that country. But as always in the past, he said, Reichsfuehrer Hitler's mantle is considered unsullied by the vast mass of Germans.

"If only the Fuehrer knew the truth about what is going on behind the lines he would surely put an end to it," is the middle-class housewives' chorus.

Italians Hold Pogradetz, Observers Say

Fresh Troops Reported Aiding Men Worn Out In Koritza Fighting

By Reilly O'Sullivan
Associated Press Staff Writer

Sveti Naum, Yugoslavia (On the Albania-Yugoslav Border)—Nov. 25.—Italian troops still hold Pogradetz, Albania, to which they fled after the Greeks took Koritza, observers in this Yugoslav border village said tonight.

Despite repeated bombing attacks by British and Greek planes, no great damage has been done in Pogradetz, these observers said.

Through strong glasses, a good view of the town could be had.

Rain Slows Fighting

Pogradetz, a town of 5,000 on the only supply road and route of retreat for Italians in Albania's northern war sector, is about 5 miles across the southern end of Lake Orchrid from this historic monastery town.

Rain and low visibility of the past few days have made aerial bombing uncertain, and fighting has largely been an artillery operation

From positions on Mount Kamia to the southwest and the heights behind Pogradetz, the Italians shelled the advancing Greeks.

Three hundred and fifty truckloads of Italian troops were reported to have reached Pogradetz yesterday to relieve the men worn out by 15 days of fighting in the Koritza area.

Fire at British

Despite the bad flying weather, Italian antiaircraft batteries at Pogradetz blazed away today at a squadron of English planes seeking to bomb the supply road. Apparently the gunners scored no hits.

An Italian officer and 12 soldiers, their uniforms tattered and shoes in shreds, crossed into Yugoslavia today and surrendered their arms.

Greek sources declared that an Albanian major who had deserted the Italian army had gathered other Albanian deserters and was leading a strong guerilla campaign against the Fascist forces.

Chamber Members Are School Guests

More than 100 members of the Prince Georges County Chamber of Commerce were guests of the Hyattsville (Md.) High School last night at a meeting held at the school. A tour of inspection of the institution was made.

Dr. Arnold E. Joyal, professor of educational administration at the University of Maryland, discussed changes in present high school education programs to meet the full educational needs of students.

T. Howard Duckett, a member of the Maryland National Park and Planning Commission, spoke on construction and maintenance of streets in new residential developments in the county.

Spank 'Dreamers' Of Empires, Urges Mrs. Carrie Catt

New York, Nov. 25 (AP).—Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, 81-year-old veteran of the woman suffrage movement, said tonight that "perhaps what we most need is an international mothers' gestapo whose business it will be to hunt out the world empire dreamers in infancy" and use a spanking machine on them.

"Millions and millions of men are lying in their graves, sent there by the wicked power of men who dreamed of empire," she said in an address prepared for the Woman's Centennial Congress.

"Whatever you plan for the future, in the name of peace, remember that your work will be useless unless you provide the means for suppressing every man who dreams of empire."

She urged women attending the congress, which commemorates a century of organized effort to end discrimination against women, "to make the aim of the next 100 years' plan the abolition of war."

Two Face Drink Charge in Yachting 'Joyride' on River

Two men who went joyriding on the Potomac were lodged in a police station cell last night for "operating a motorboat under the influence of liquor."

So charged were Charles H. Kersey, 38, and William E. King, 58, both of the 1300 block of Maine Avenue Southwest, whom Harbor police halted off the Navy Yard yesterday afternoon in a $15,000 cabin cruiser.

The cruiser Sea King, property of Dr. Valentine Hess, 900 Seventeenth Street Northwest, was reported missing from its berth in the Washington Channel about 7:30 a. m. Harbor police made several hours' search along the waterfront before spotting the Sea King sliding leisurely down the Eastern Branch.

Hampton Defense Parley Opens After New President Is Seated

Strength of Nation Lies in Protection Of Minority Rights, Keynoter Asserts; NYA Head Hits Caste System in Jobs

By the Associated Press

Hampton, Va., Nov. 25.—Hampton Institute, 72-year-old college for colored youths founded by a former Union general in the War Between the States, today inaugurated Dr. Malcolm S. MacLean, former dean of the general college of the University of Minnesota, as its sixth president. The ceremony marked the opening of a two-day conference on the participation of the Negro in national defense.

Newbold Morris, president of the council of the City of New York, in the conference keynote address immediately following the inauguration ceremonies, asserted that "the strength of America today is that the minority shall receive the same privileges, the same rights and the same opportunities as the majority."

Aubrey Williams, National Youth administrator, told the conference that "national unity can never be achieved if those in power set up false standards and practices that continue to relegate to the background any citizen whose skin happens to be different."

To so "purchase a false peace through refusal to train the citizen in the handling of military equipment is the surest way to invite an invader to set foot upon our shores," Williams said.

Simple Ceremonies

The inaugural ceremonies were simple and brief. Dr. MacLean, who became nationally known while at Minnesota and as director of the University of Wisconsin's extension service, pledged himself to the furtherance of the institute and its student body of 1,000 colored boys and girls. He promised to work through them for the welfare of the race and Nation.

Williams said there are some persons who "believe that Negro youth should be trained only for those occupations which exist in his locality in the traditional fields of employment.

"I cannot agree that under a democratic system that boasts of equality of opportunity, the Federal Government should be a party to the setting up of a caste system in occupations. This would be a menace to our democratic traditions, for if we talk about equal opportunity we must carry in our thinking the preparation that makes one ready for the opporunity when it comes."

200 Authorities Attend

More than 200 authorities in 11 fields of activity are attending the conference sessions. Discussions were to include what the Negro can do in the military and naval forces and his defense participation in home, family life and consumer education, in business, agriculture, public health and recreation, in religion, in the press, in morale and mental hygiene, in industry and labor, youth and education.

Specific programs for the Negro in national defense will be drawn up tomorrow. President Roosevelt has asked that copies of these recommendations be sent to him for guidance in drafting defense legislation.

Williams said Negro youth in the labor field "is faced with the same difficulties that white youth face, but added to these are the prejudiced barriers set up by many employers and the discriminatory practices set up by the labor and trade unions.

"What is the result? Only 2 per cent get skilled jobs against 8 per cent for white youth; less than 10 per cent get semiskilled jobs against 20 per cent for white youth. And when they do get full-time jobs, the Negro youth averages 49 hours a week for a wage of $8.71, while the white youth averages 44 hours for a wage of $15.17."

The youth administrator said in conclusion that "now is the time to emphasize our common unity, to think in terms of the total body politic, to emphasize the mutuality of our common cause . . ."

Herbert A. Baker Dies; American Can President

New York, Nov. 25 (AP).—Herbert Abram Baker, 59, president of the American Can Co., died tonight at New York Hospital after a month's illness. During the World War, he was a member of the Chemical Tin Plate Apportionment Commission and the Food Administration in Washington.

Ice, Floods Wreak Havoc in Southwest

Amarillo, Tex., Cut Off, Without Water; Homes Swept Away

By the Associated Press

Dallas, Nov. 25.—Ice paralyzed the Texas Panhandle and parts of New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas today at the same time flash floods swept away homes, farm buildings and livestock in other parts of the State.

Icebound Amarillo, a city of 50,000, was without water and was menaced by the constant threat of fire.

A broadcast by short wave radio—the only means of communication with the outside—reported electrical power was restored to some portions of the city late today after all wires had been down almost 24 hours.

Debris was littered over the city streets. Telephone and telegraph lines were down over 16 northwestern Texas counties and in portions of adjacent States.

Five Texas rivers, the Sabine, Trinity, Brazos, Colorado and Guadalupe, were on rampages.

At least seven persons were feared drowned in the Brookfield area tonight. Constable G. W. Martin said, when two homes were washed away by Bragos River flood waters.

The Brazos, near Brookshire, which is 30 miles west of Houston, was far out of its banks, Martin said, and was expected to rise 5 feet more by tomorrow morning. The river was reported 45 feet deep at some points, he said.

Whole families sought safety in tree tops as flash floods swept away homes, farm buildings, livestock and poultry.

Red Cross workers were ordered from Houston to the flood area around Sealy, Tex., where trapped farmers before dawn fired distress guns to guide rescuing boatmen.

Coast Guard boats and equipment were ordered 100 miles inland from Galveston to aid in rescue work.

Highways were inundated. Bridges were damaged and 1,000 motorists were marooned at Conroe, where 21 inches of rain had fallen.

Still it rained. The tri-State area of Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas around Texarkana and Shreveport was deluged.

The overflowing Sabine of that area, cascaded toward Orange, Tex., and the Gulf of Mexico.

It was an extension of the same rain belt that formed the Amarillo ice cap.

As the rain fell, ground temperatures remained slightly below 32 degrees, freezing the water as fast as it fell. As the storm continued, the ice formations became heavier, pulling down wires, poles and clogging highways.

In a short wave broadcast Mayor Rogers of Amarillo appealed for WPA relief and rehabilitation funds. A Braniff Airlines plane was taken from its hanger to furnish power for a short wave radio station after city power failed.

Hospitals used old-fashioned kerosene lamps. Stores sold out of candles quickly.

"Just Like an Air Raid"

Tucumcari, N. Mex., Nov. 25 (AP).—A railroadman arriving from Amarillo tonight said the Texas Panhandle city looked as if it had been hit "by an air raid" after it was isolated by intense sleet storms Sunday.

S. M. Beaver, Rock Island trainman, said he left Amarillo at 4:30 p. m. (Central standard time) but that no other trains were leaving.

"It was just like an air raid. It's almost impossible to describe how devastated the city is. Everything is broken down."

Plane Crew Describes Scene

Kansas City, Nov. 25 (AP).—A lifeless, desolate scene of snow, ice and destruction was seen today by the crew of the first TWA plane to fly over the icebound Texas Panhandle since a storm halted southwestern air travel Friday.

"No visible sign of life throughout the entire Panhandle region; no cars on highways; no trains seen operating," radioed Capt. Harry Campbell of Kansas City, airline pilot, from Albuquerque, his headquarters here.

Egypt Uses Italians' Money To Aid Victims of Their Raids

76 Killed, 204 Wounded Last Week in Most Severe Assault on Alexandria; War Still Undeclared, but Fascists Are 'Enemy'

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 25.—Egypt today began aiding victims of Italian air raids on Alexandria with sequestered Italian funds in Egypt.

Seventy-six persons were killed and 204 wounded in last Tuesday's raid, the most serious thus far on Alexandria. Eighty houses were destroyed.

The defense ministry reported four were killed and 28 wounded in a raid yesterday.

Though Italy's airmen presumably are aiming at the British naval base at Alexandria, the heaviest damage has been done to poorer residential sections.

Egypt is not at war with Italy but government communiques nevertheless refer to the attacking planes as "enemy aircraft."

Italians Say Pope Understands Axis

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Nov. 25.—The Pope's sermon was hailed today by responsible Italian circles as a proof of the Vatican's understanding of the Axis aspirations.

The passage which led to this interpretation was the one containing the pontiff's appeal for "an order of things more just and more harmonious," termed by these circles as a "fair and realistic remark," which "confirms that at the origin of the war the have-nations lacked the good will to accept an order of things more just and more harmonious."

Weygand Reviews Troops in Morocco

Tangier, Nov. 25 (AP).—Gen. Maxime Weygand, in charge of French African possessions, arrived at Oujda, French Morocco, by plane today, conferred with Gen. Vergez, commander of French troops in the colony, then proceeded to Taza for a review of troops.

(Gen. Weygand was last reported in Algeria. It was said that he had refused orders of the Vichy government to return to France, but Vichy denied this along with a denial of speculation concerning possible disaffection on Weygand's part.)

British Aim to Make Stukas Obsolete

London, Nov. 25 (AP).—Britain is developing a new type of plane for cooperation with land forces which air experts said today would make the German dive bombers that pulverized resistance in France and Flanders look obsolete.

Taking advantage of German experience, Britain has made elaborate plans for coordinating the work of the air force and army in land operations, looking forward to the day when the offensive can be taken, the experts said.

Truck Spills Load, Nazis Beat Rations

Berlin, Nov. 25 (AP).—About 100 Germans beat the strict food rationing system today when a truck spilled 200 apples on Berlin's main street.

Making a short run into unter den Linden, the truck lost part of its load. Before the driver could stop, hundreds of pedestrians ran into the street and scrambled for the fruit.

The millions who fail to get windfalls from careening trucks can console themselves with two official announcement today:

1. That two more eggs can be purchased by each adult between now and November 30.

2. That a ¼-pound of candy per capita may be dished out between now and December 31—enough sweets to fill the toe of a Christmas stocking.

Four of 'Hundreds' Of Lockheeds Lost

Burbank, Calif., Nov. 25 (AP).—Of the "hundreds" of Lockheed bombers which have been shipped to England since the war started, only four have been lost, the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation said today.

Throwing some light on the effectiveness of the German counter-blockade, a company statement said one plane was lost when the freighter carrying it struck a mine off the English coast, and three others went down when a submarine torpedoed a vessel in a convoy.

Canada Puts Ban On New 'Luxury' Models From U.S.

Copyright by New York Times

Ottawa, Nov. 25.—The Canadian government's freezing order prohibiting the manufacture of new models of automobiles, typewriters, radios, washing machines, vacuum cleaners and much else, will be followed shortly by an order prohibiting importation of new models from the United States.

The freezing order is designed primarily to restrict the use of machine tools for war material use.

Such action may, it is felt, tend to encourage American manufacturers to turn their attention from luxury products to war necessities.

Detroit, Nov. 25 (AP). — United States automobile manufacturers have pledged themselves to subordinate all work on "new model changes" to the national defense program, specifically to the procurement of aircraft. None of the manufacturers has yet said that it will mean no new models for 1942.

Axis at Work in Key Plants, Dies Says

Methods of Dealing With Subversive Elements Attacked By Legislator

The text of the statement yesterday by Chairman Dies of the committee investigating un-American activities follows:

Almost a year ago, our committee found unanimously that members of the Communist Party were intrenched in the leadership of at least 16 labor unions. Most of these unions are organized in key industries which form the backbone of our national defense, industries such as shipping, communications, transportation and production of munitions.

It is gratifying to note that other Government agencies have now confirmed the findings of our committee with respect to the subversive activities of Communists in our vital defense industries. While it is a matter of encouragement to have our committee's finding confirmed, I must call attention to a deplorable weakness in our Government's methods of dealing with Fifth Columnists. That weakness lies in the fact that our chief law inforcement agency has known for some time that the Vultee strike was called and has been prolonged by Communists, and yet that strike continues, with irreparable damage to our national defense program.

On numerous occasions, we have informed the American people that both Communists and Nazis are at work inside every important industry in the United States. It is our function to keep the American people apprised of the subversive activities which threaten our national security. In line with this understanding of our duty, I am now releasing to the American people the summarized results of our committee's investigations in the aircraft industry on the West Coast.

Secret Report Obtained

Almost continuously our committee has had investigators on the West Coast since the beginning of 1939. In August of the present year I sat as a subcommittee in Los Angeles and took the testimony of witnesses who were employed in the aircraft industry. In October and November of this year, Congressman H. Jerry Voorhis sat as a subcommittee and heard the testimony of 20 witnesses, most of whom were employed in aircraft. From time to time our investigators, James H. Steedman and George F. Hurley, have submitted reports on the situation in aircraft industries. The most important results of our investigations have been submitted to appropriate Government agencies.

From a careful reexamination of investigators' reports and the testimony of all the witnesses heard by Congressman Voorhis and myself, I now place the following facts before the American people:

1. In September, 1939, Investigators Hurley and Steedman obtained a secret report of the Communist Party entitled "Proceedings of the California Convention, May 14-15, 1938." This report was prepared for the central committee of the Communist Party, U. S. A. Furthermore, this report established the fact that the Communist Party was concentrating its efforts in the aircraft industry in California. In accordance with a decision reached at this California convention of the Communist Party, Wyndham Mortimer, well-known party member, was sent to the Coast. The Communist Party's own publication, the People's World, announced that Mortimer would take over the task of organizing in the aircraft industry.

Mortimer Called Communist

Something like a score of witnesses before our committee in the past three years have positively identified Wyndham Mortimer as a member of the Communist Party. Most of these claimed to have had first-hand knowledge of his party membership. Some of them have testified under oath that his party name is "George Baker." In addition to his being the chief organizer of the C. I. O. in the aircraft industry on the West Coast, Wyndham Mortimer is now the leader of the strike at Vultee.

3. When asked if Wyndham Mortimer was a member of the Communist Party, Earl Browder said under oath: "He is a very close friend, at least." Browder is the general secretary of the Communist Party of United States.

4. Several witnesses have testified under oath that Lewis H. Michener, another leader of the Vultee strike, is a member of the Communist Party. Our evidence indicates that Michener has boasted that the Vultee strike is the first step of the Communist Party to test its strength in aircraft, and that the party intends to tie up aircraft production generally.

5. Our evidence shows that George Forsburg, a member of the strikers' negotiating committee at Vultee, is also a member of the Communist Party. It is stated that he joined the party in 1937, and that his party membership book bears the number 60,105.

6. Louis Tournie, another member of the strikers' negotiating committee at Vultee, is also, according to our evidence, a member of the Communist Party under the name of Touhy. It is further testified that he was discharged from Douglas Aircraft and also from North American Aviation for his Communist activities, and that he was at one time a member of the Communist Party in France.

Program of Sabotage

7. Our committee has shown conclusively that the program of the Communist Party calls for the sabotage of our national defense. The party's own printed literature has made no secret of its concentrated efforts in our basic and war industries. One of the Communist Party's official programs declares: "The main task consists in . . . strengthening the party and the revolutionary mass organizations in the decisive war industries . . . We must prepare to convert the imperialist war into civil war."

8. Our records show that Communists call strikes and prolong them for purely political purposes, i. e., purposes which serve the ends of Moscow's revolutionary program. We have been telling the country this for more than two years. One of the most effective methods of sabotage in defense industries is the Communists' use of the political strike. Such a strike may be more damaging to national defense than an explosion, and furthermore it has the intense advantage of legality.

9. Our evidence further reveals that in a Southern California aircraft plant there exists a clique of German-born employes who have shown definite sympathy with the present Nazi government in Germany; that these persons are in key positions in this southern California aircraft plant; and that competent American-born workers are able to obtain promotion only through joining this German clique.

10. Our evidence indicates that the Communist group and the Nazi group in aircraft have been cooperating since the Stalin-Hitler pact.

Several German Born Foremen

11. On November 8, 1940, members of the so-called German clique appeared before Congressman Voorhis, sitting as a subcommittee, in the Federal building in Los Angeles, Calif. The following facts were established at this hearing:

Assistant foreman — German born, was a commander for the German army during the World War, formerly employed at Dornier Aircraft in Germany, and has family connections in Germany.

Night superintendent—German born, in the Engineering Corporation during the World War, family connections in Germany with a brother employed in an airplane factory.

Foreman—Born in Friederickshaven, a machine gunner for the German army during the World War.

Foreman—Employed at Luftschiftun Zepplin Co., with family connections in Germany.

Foreman—German born, formerly employed in aircraft factory in Germany, with a family in Germany.

Foreman—Born in Germany with present family connection in Germany.

Lead man—German born, employed in experimental department at Dornier Aircraft in Friederickshaven, Germany, with family connections in Germany.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Washington Chamber Music Society presents Ralph Kirkpatrick in a harpsichord recital Monday afternoon in Phillips Memorial Gallery.

BROWN

For the season's third Candlelight Concert in Phillips Memorial Gallery yesterday afternoon, the Washington Chamber Music Society provided an hour of harpsichord music played by the young American expert, Ralph Kirkpatrick. Because of its strict confinement to one type of tonal expression, the program had integrity and successfully evoked the atmosphere of a period. The harpsichord is a symbol of an aristocratic phase of art which had its important function as a refining agent and then gave way to a fresh wave of creative vitality.

The thrum and twinkle of its delicate tones, the fragility of its mechanism and the exquisite proportions of its form make the harpsichord the instrument most representative of the highly artificial epoch that produced it. As the ancestor of the clavichord and the pianoforte, it remains aloof from its more noisy and demonstrative descendants, and its reticences seem to express a little disdain for emotional frankness.

Mr. Kirkpatrick's virtuosity has been long acknowledged, and his skill on this occasion was put to admirable use in an interesting program. The major composition was Bach's "Concerto After the Italian Taste," which sounded more authentic than it ever can in the plangencies of the piano. It showed perfectly what the Italian style style meant to Bach whose sturdy Teutonism found its untrammeled outlet in his organ and choral works.

An unfamiliar item was Mozart's set of variations on "Fischer's Minuet," which was apparently as well known in its day as Boccherini's minuet is in ours. The composer was Johann Christian Fischer, a German oboe virtuoso, who spent the latter part of his life in London and married the daughter of the painter, Gainsborough. Mozart did not think highly of him as a composer but nevertheless preserved this minuet in amber.

Mr. Kirkpatrick's wide-ranging program took in "The Lord of Salisbury's Pavan," by Orlando Gibbons; Giles Farnaby's "Dream" and "Tower Hill," two of Domenico Scarlatti's diminutive sonatas and three pieces by Duphly.

Dr. Walter Bauer conducts the Department of Agriculture Orchestra Monday night in the Department Auditorium. Soloists: Louis A. Potter, jr., Benjamin Levenson and Herbert Cook, violoncellists. Programs: "Dreamland Suite" (Rust), Requiem for three violoncelli and orchestra (Popper), Waltzes from "Der Rosenkavalier" (Strauss), Symphony No. 1 in D major (Svendsen).

If Dr. Walter Bauer ever fails to present some novelty at a concert by the Department of Agriculture Orchestra, that will be a red-letter day on the debit side of his record as its conductor. Last evening he exhibited two of widely different merit. The first was a "Dreamland Suite" by Friedrich Wilhelm Rust who bears the same name as a distinguished composer of the eighteenth century and may possibly be his great-grandson. The contemporary Rust has considerable ability in instrumentation and a paucity of ideas to express. The suite is dreamlike in its fragmentary episodes and in the inconsequence of the visions.

The other unfamiliar work was David Popper's beautiful and moving "Requiem" in which the three violoncello soloists were Louis A. Potter, jr., Benjamin Levenson and Herbert Cook. This is elegiac music of singular sincerity and poignant emotion, and quite patently voices a personal sorrow. The lovely melodic themes have eloquent lines, and the orchestral background is subdued to a mourning murmur. In the excellent performance, the soloists were capable both technically and as interpreters.

After the Popper meditation on mortality came the sprightly waltzes from "Der Rosenkavalier," the opera in which Richard Strauss tried to be Mozartian and missed the mark. The latter part of the concert was devoted to a repetition of Johann Severin Svendsen's D major symphony which Dr. Bauer and his group introduced to this country recently. The work was well worth a second hearing, for it has fine folk flavor and conscientious workmanship.

Jury Investigates Sniper Case Today

Mystery Witness To Testify Against 25-Year-Old Suspect

Loaded with circumstantial evidence and with a mystery witness ready to take the stand, Washington police will seek today to convince a coroner's jury that the 25-year-old former college student held in custody ten days is the District's sniper-killer.

Six witnesses, including the mysterious informer who led police to arrest the suspect, are expected to testify at the inquest scheduled for 10:30 a. m. today in the District Morgue.

It will be the first time that the informer, described by police as a 40-year-old waiter whose information has been found unimpeachable, has confronted the suspect since his arrest.

In a final two-hour grilling yesterday, police failed to obtain a confession from the suspect, who has maintained steadfastly, "I have no statement."

Sure It's "the Right Man"

"I have no doubt in my mind that we have the right man," said Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, after conferring with Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, chief of detectives.

The suspect already has been identified by Mildred Washington, 17, colored, as the man who shot and killed her escort as the pair walked across the temporary bridge at Twenty-sixth and K Streets Northwest on October 15.

It is on this murder of Hyland McClaine, 17, of 1021 Thirtieth Street Northwest, that police base their hopes of getting the six-man coroner's jury to hold their suspect for action of the grand jury on a charge of murder. Two other killings are attributed to the sniper and three other persons were shot, all of them colored.

Inspector Thompson said he did not believe police would have to present more than a small part of the evidence they have gathered to have the suspect held for grand jury action, despite the fact that they have not yet found the .38-caliber gun used in the shootings.

Two bullets recently taken from a tree on a nearby shooting range were said by a witness to have been fired by the suspect and ballistics experts found them to be the same as used in the seven sniper shootings.

Evades Police Questions

Besides the informer and Miss Washington, four detectives assigned to the case are expected to testify at the inquest.

Defending the suspect will be Attorney James R. Kirkland, former assistant district attorney, who told The Post last night that he had no comment to make other than that the government's case "is based only on circumstancial evidence." He is being retained by the youth's mother.

The suspect, who has served two terms for burglary in Indiana, has been evasive in answering police questions, according to Maj. Brown, and has offered no alibi.

Police believe they have found the motive for the killings in statements alleged to have been made by the suspect to a witness that he hated colored people because of certain difficulties he had with them in prison. He is alleged to have told a witness he would "get even for this mistreatment."

The suspect was cool and tight-lipped as he was transferred from the Third Precinct police station to headquarters for questioning yesterday. A special guard was stationed at each exit to guard against a possible break for liberty, which the prisoner is said to have threatened to attempt. He is under 24-hour guard in his cell.

Baltimore Man Killed by Auto Near Alexandria

A man tentatively identified as Frank Stewart, 65, of Baltimore, was killed instantly last night by an automobile on the Richmond Highway at Ingleside, 7 miles south of Alexandria, Va.

Virginia State Trooper J. W. Clarke said driver of the car was Harley Davidson, a representative of Paramount Pictures, Inc., 1101 North Capitol Street, Washington.

The victim was struck as he attempted to cross the highway. The body was removed to Hall's funeral establishment, Occoquan, Va.

Paul Townsend's Condition Grave

Salisbury, Md., Nov. 25 (AP).—Paul L. Townsend, 38, of Washington, who suffered a broken neck in an automobile accident near Snow Hill, Md., November 19, was reported in a "very serious" condition tonight at Peninsula General Hospital here.

Townsend is the son and Secretary of United States Senator John G. Townsend, jr., of Delaware. He was on his way from Washington to his hunting lodge at Scott's Landing on Chincoteague Bay, when his automobile struck a soft shoulder in the road and overturned.

3 G. W. U. Delegates Elected to Offices

Three George Washington University delegates to the fifty-fourth annual convention of the Middle States Association of College and Secondary Schools in Atlantic City last week-end were elected to offices.

Fred Everett Nessell, registrar of the university, was chosen president of the Middle States Association of Collegiate Registrars. Harold Griffith Sutton, director of admissions, was elected editor of the association's annual report. Dean Henry Grattan Doyle was elected to the executive committee of the association.

He's Most Important Man in Town

WELL, LOOK WHO'S HERE—On Santa's "good book" are these two youngsters and they tell him what they want for Christmas

Santa Claus is back in town!

Appearing simultaneously in several Washington department stores, he already has his hands full checking on what District youngsters hope to find beneath the evergreen next month. And he is "mighty glad to get back in harness again," he said four times yesterday.

In ordinary times—when he is not concerned with important things like dolls and cowboy suits—he is, respectively, a retired policeman, a former salesman, a part-time Government worker and a former lawyer.

But now he is busy being by far the most important man in Washington, interviewing approximately 3,600 young Washingtonians daily. The best is yet to come, too, Santa's callers traditionally increasing to a peak of twice that number around December 17.

Typical of his multiple self is Santa's facsimile at Hecht's store. In off seasons he is known as J. T. Costello, a 65-year-old former lawyer and former employe of the store.

Santa Costello has 10 children and 16 grandchildren of his own and "loves 'em all." He has been pinch-hitting for Kris for three years now. His only bad moment came two years ago when a persistent little girl of three wanted to know how he got down her family's foot-square chimney. Then he explained how he squeezed together like a rubber ball and just slid down. "It's very simple when you know how," he went on. She was convinced.

Santa C. says he notices the effect of the defense program when he talks to the hopeful youngsters Last year most of them wanted bicycles and dolls. But this year the trend is toward military toys, he says.

The most popular toy in the store, he reports, is the "military training outfit," with toy soldiers, tanks, small tents and miniature guns. And a large percentage of small boys want him to bring them .22 rifles and B. B. guns.

Store officials, who cooperate with Santa, say that this promises to be definitely the biggest Christmas Washington ever had. All report increased business over last year and their sales forces enlarged up to 50 per cent over last year's rush season.

Working for Washington

Trinidad Citizens Association Covers an Extensive Field

Society Was Organized in 1910 to Combat Smoke and Odors From Public Dump; Boasts Long List of Accomplishments

This is the fifty-eighth article in a series about citizens' associations in the District of Columbia.

In 1910, when communities in Northeast Washington were considered suburbs of Hyattsville, residents of the Trinidad area organized to combat the nuisance of smoke and odors from a public dump at Twenty-eighth Street and Benning Road Northeast.

From that group grew the Trinidad Citizens Association, which now serves one of the most extensive territories in the city, according to its energetic, eight-term president, George J. Cleary.

Major accomplishments of the association over the past 30 years, according to Cleary, have included:

Widening of West Virginia Avenue Northeast from Florida to New York Avenue.

Recent construction of an additional traffic lane at Montello Avenue near K Street Northeast by cutting off the sidewalk.

Cooperation with other Northeast groups in opposing the erection of a slaughterhouse near Benning Road and Minnesota Avenue, through protests at Senate hearings.

Rerouting of Trinidad buses to go by Union Station, and elimination of the dangerous hairpin turn formerly made by the buses near the Capitol.

Because of the size of the association's territory, and its diversified zoning, members have more community problems than most, Cleary said. These matters are dealt with as they come up at meetings; no program is worked out in advance.

The only standing project of the Trinidad organization is to obtain a better entrance to Washington through the Northeast area, he added.

AREA embraced by Trinidad Citizens Association, headed by George Cleary (inset)

The November meeting of the association will be held tonight at 8 in the Wheatley School, Montello Avenue and Neil Street Northeast. Officers for the coming year will be elected and current business discussed.

Officers who have served for the past year include Cleary, who has headed the association since 1932; Martin G. Stecker, secretary-treasurer for the past 12 years; H. E. Shilling and Mrs. J. M. Selby, vice presidents; Mrs. Florence I. Mahoney, corresponding secretary, and Cleary and Stecker, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Being Lost Overnight Proves Just a Lark for Boy of 5

Getting lost, it seems, is just a lark to five-year-old Johnny Poole.

They call him "nonchalance personified" at the Receiving Home, where he spent Sunday night and yesterday before his frantic father, John Poole, sr., of 328 Maryland Avenue Northeast, claimed him.

He told attendants his name was Johnny Fletcher, instead of Johnny Poole, for some unknown reason, and said he lived at "four-two—oh I dunno."

The youngster seemed perfectly content with his lot at the Receiving Home. He amused himself with blocks and toys and talked forever with the other children, but never said anything about wanting to go home.

'Hello Daddy. I've been having a nice time," he said blithely when his father arrived, after learning where he was from police.

Johnny, it appeared, had gotten bored Sunday and decided to take a street car ride. In a safety zone at Seventeenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest he struck up an acquaintance with an SEC attorney.

They walked down the street together, but after a block or so the lawyer came to the conclusion his young friend hadn't the slightest idea where he was going. So the boy was turned over to police, who lodged him at the Receiving Home while they tried to locate his parents.

D. C. Natives Renew Fight For Suffrage

Society Resolution Calls on Congress To Take Action Early Next Session

Its fight for District suffrage was renewed last night by the Society of Natives in a resolution calling on Congress to take favorable action on the proposed constitutional amendment early in the seventy-seventh session, so State ratification may enable District citizens "to vote in the next national election."

The resolution stated that the society favors the Sumners amendment (H. J. resolution 257, Seventy-sixth Congress, in its original form). John M. Howard, president of the society, was authorized to petition members of the House and Senate for its passage.

The resolution, which referred to widespread support for proposals to "Americanize the Washingtonians," expressed the hope that the local Democratic organization "see to it" that the pledge in the District suffrage plank in the 1940 Democratic platform be kept.

The society pledged its support to the citizens joint committee on District of Columbia National Representation, of which its member, Theodore W. Noyes, is chairman.

R. L. Bradshaw, first vice president of the society, introduced the resolution which pointed out that the society "from the day of its organization" has supported the proposal to amend the Constitution to empower Congress to grant to people of the District voting representation in the Senate and House and among electors of the President and Vice President, as well as the right to sue and be sued in the courts of the United States.

William E. Richardson, reporting for the committee on civic promotion, said he considered the proposal for a World's Fair in Washington "rather inopportune" at the present, due to the war.

Five persons were elected to the society: Miss Lillie B. Dorwick, Miss Eva A. Trede, Miss Isabel Rives, S. Maurie Ely, jr., and William E. Howard, father of the society's president.

North Capitol

The proposed District bill requiring premarital blood tests for syphilis was indorsed last night by the North Capitol Citizens' Association.

The resolution opposed inclusion in the bill of any reference to the abolishing of common law marriages. This clause in the resolution set off hot debate by some members who took it to imply indorsement of common law marriages.

James A. Crooks, secretary of the association, who introduced the resolution, explained that he added that clause because he did not think the status of common law marriages had any place in a health bill of that kind.

A resolution urging Congress to appropriate a more adequate sum in the next budget for installation and maintenance of traffic lights was adopted by the association. Another resolution, designed for further protection of pupils going to McKinley High School, Langley Junior High School, Emery School and St. Martin's School, urged traffic lights at intersections of North Capitol and T Streets, Lincoln Road and T Street Northeast, Second and T Streets Northeast.

The recent death of Osias Webster, 92, oldest member of the association, was called to its attention, and the secretary was authorized to send a letter to his daughter.

The association accepted the invitation of the Northeast Conference of Citizens Associations to join it. John F. Hardie, president of the association, and Crooks were named as delegates to the conference.

Mid-City

The Mid-City Citizens Association expressed its approval last night of a proposal to substitute natural gas for the manufactured product now provided District consumers.

The association, meeting at Thomson School, Twelfth and L Streets Northwest, indorsed "in principle" the report of Engineer Frank P. Fisher to the Public Utilities Commission, recommending piping of natural gas into Washington. The commission will be asked to give "sympathetic consideration" to the report.

The citizens also heard Police Inspector William G. Stott, of the Second Precinct, report that the new station house at New York avenue and Fifth and L Streets Northwest would be ready for dedication January 16, and President A. J. Driscoll appointed a committee to arrange the ceremony. He named Frank B. Hoffman as chairman.

In other resolutions, the association called for elimination of two-way bus service on P Street by routing east-bound buses to Q Street; prohibition of double parking by buses on Indiana Avenue Northwest, between Fourth and Fifth Streets, and better streetcar service on the Eleventh Street line.

Georgetown

B. H. Meyer was reelected president of the Georgetown Citizens Association last night. Two new vice presidents were chosen: J. B. Wyckoff, first, and Col. Archibald King, second.

Joseph I. Cavanaugh was reelected secretary, and Maj. Wallace Streater, treasurer.

The association adopted a resolution of appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss for their plans to give a part of their estate, Dumbarton Oaks, to be added to Montrose Park in Georgetown.

Three Judges Oppose Plan For Change in Traffic Court

Casey Leads Objectors to Proposal For Jurist Devoted Exclusively to Auto Cases; Cites Work of Juries

Three Police Court judges yesterday took a joint stand against proposals to establish a permanent traffic court with full-time judge, agreeing it would be "humanly impossible" for one jurist to handle all local motoring cases.

Discussion of the subject developed at the Board of Trade traffic committee's luncheon meeting at O'Donnell's restaurant, following introduction of a resolution calling for establishment of the new system.

Judge Walter J. Casey led the opposition, conceding the suggested program might be carried out with an additional judge, but not under the present set-up with four judges rotating monthly in the various branches of Police Court.

Many Cases Go to Jury

He cited the large number of cases which must be tried by jury, pointing out that a full-time traffic judge would preside only over minor cases.

It would not be fair, said Casey, to inflict traffic cases on one judge "day after day." It might have the effect, he added, of making the judge "a second prosecutor."

"And don't attempt," he said, "to place an additional prosecutor on the bench in the robes of a judge."

Judge Casey also struck at the system by which policemen are forced to spend considerable time in court when they should be patroling the streets. It is not necessary, he said, for officers to appear in cases where the accused pleads guilty.

He suggested adoption of a practice used in several other large cities where the defendant appears with a copy of the charges and the arresting officer is not called unless a plea of not guilty is entered.

Judge George Neilson condemned delays in traffic trials as a "detriment to efficient law enforcement."

He said trials must be speeded up, with greater emphasis on major infractions, and uniform penalties. He also said establishment of a full-time traffic court might be done with an additional judge.

27,000 Cases a Year

Although not present at the meeting, Judge John P. McMahon, presiding judge of Police Court, authorized Committee Chairman P. Y. K. Howat to register his opposition to the proposal.

In a written memorandum, Judge McMahon pointed out that of 27,000 traffic cases handled annually in Police Court, approximately 500 go before juries.

"It would be humanly impossible for one judge to handle this volume of business," said McMahon.

Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech pledged support of his office to current accident-reduction efforts.

Harry Wender, speaking for the Traffic Advisory Council, urged the committee to support appointment of an additional judge for full-time traffic work.

The resolution was tabled until next meeting of the committee.

Woman Wins Right To Sue for Absent Spouse's Insurance

Mrs. Annie Lee Jones, Government waitress, 725 Euclid Street Northwest, yesterday won the right to sue for nearly $1,000 insurance on the life of her husband, who disappeared here 14 years ago.

The husband, Fred Jones, then 29, an iron worker, left home the morning of May 3, 1926, to work on school building then under construction. He has not been heard of since. Mrs. Jones' attorney, Isadore H. Halpern, said there are indications Jones met with foul play.

Mrs. Jones sued the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. July 11, 1938, but her action was dismissed. Justice Henry W. Edgerton, of the United States Court of Appeals, reversed this ruling yesterday, pointing out that ancient law allows the presumption that a man missing seven years is dead. Mrs. Jones, said Justice Edgerton, was entitled to a trial, at which she might offer evidence that her husband died during the year and a half in which she kept up payments on his policies.

Musso Becomes Captain in Guard

One appointment and two recommendations for promotion among officers of the District National Guard were announced yesterday.

First Lieut. Charles H. Musso, jr., Medical Reserve, was named a captain in the District Guard and assigned to the Medical Detachment, 104th Quartermaster Regiment.

Capt. Frederick D. Suttenfield, Medical Detachment, 121st Engineers, was ordered to report for examination for promotion to major, and First Lieut. Robert D. Erwin, Adjutant General's Department, has been ordered to report for examination for promotion to captain.

D. C. Art Fair Opens National Celebration

Thousand Works On Display; Public Buys $11,000 Worth

American artists made their greatest mass appeal for widespread public patronage of their work as ceremonies at Departmental auditorium yesterday launched National Art Week in 500 cities and towns throughout the land.

The auditorium itself was the scene of a huge art fair containing more than a thousand works of art and handicraft—oil paintings, water colors, etchings, prints, sculptures, ceramics and handicrafts of every kind. Open to the public through next Sunday, it represents probably the largest art exhibit ever held in Washington.

Francis Henry Taylor, director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and chairman of the Art Week committee, sounded the keynote of the week's celebration when in a broadcast from the auditorium yesterday he declared:

"Museums cannot by themselves be adequate patrons of living contemporary art. Only the people of a nation can properly support a nation's living art and its living artists. Only the homes of a nation can provide adequate room and wall space for the art of each generation.

"Responsibility . . . to Us All"

"Only the love of art, widespread throughout a people, and manifesting itself in proud possession, can maintain the art of a nation."

Stating that "we Americans have made a mistake in delegating to one small class the function of cherishing our living American art," he said, "it is a responsibility that properly belongs to us all. And what this art fair means is that we are beginning to recognize, as a people, our responsibility."

Edward B. Rowan, head of the fine arts section of the Public Buildings Administration, pointed out that "the purpose of this fair is to show everybody that works of American art and handicraft are within the reach of their pocketbooks."

All the work in the art fair is for sale. Prices range from 25 and 50 cents for small handicraft objects to $10,000 for the monumental sculpture, "The Boxers," by Aaron Ben Schmuel.

Works of the fledgling artists as well as the efforts of several of America's masters in oils are on display. Included among the oils are Paul Cadmus' "Venus and Adonis," priced at $900; "Amer Picon," by Alexander Brook, $300; "The Letter," by Issac Soyer, $500; "Self Portrait," by John Stewart Curry, $450.

Cubism Represented

As early crowds drifted through the exhibit, Cadmus' "Venus and Adonis"—a work reminiscent of Italian painting with a modern treatment—seemed to provoke more interest than any other single work in the show.

While cubism and even more modern styles are represented, most of the art is representative of twentieth century forms which the public recognizes as "modern American."

In the center of the auditorium a group of artists are at work in various mediums: a mural, an oil, wood carving, hand weaving, modeling and ceramics.

Paul Arlt, a former student at the Phillips Art School, is engaged in painting a large mural for the postoffice in Enterprise, Ala. Titled "Saturday in Enterprise," its central figure is a monument to the boll weevil raised in the center of the town by citizens who told Arlt the boll weevil taught them the value of diversified agriculture.

The art fair is open to the public daily, free of charge, from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. Hours on Sunday will be from 1 p. m. to 10 p. m.

Officials announced last night that $11,000 worth of art objects had been sold.

Displays of the work of District artists will be held at 30 places in Washington during the week in addition to the Departmental Auditorium fair.

Parley on Religion And Democracy To Be Held Today

Details were completed yesterday for the clerical conference on "The Relationship of Religion and Democracy in the Present Crisis," which is expected to create a precedent in the history of local interfaith relations.

It will be held today in Barker Hall, the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K Streets, under the auspices of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, with the cooperation of the Committee on Religious Life in the Nation's Capital, and is an outgrowth of a small interfaith conference held last September at the Jesuit Retreat House at Manresa-on-the-Severn, Annapolis.

With Dr. Albert J. McCartney, pastor of Covenant-First Presbyterian Church and chairman of the Committee on Religious Life in the Nation's Capital, presiding, the conference will get underway at 10 a. m. with a discussion of the contributions of the various religious groups to democracy. Participating will be the Rev. Wilfrid Parsons, S. J., professor of political science, Catholic University; Rabbi Solomon H. Metz, Adas Israel Congregation, and Dr. Ernest S. Griffith, professor of political science, American University.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Christmas Showshopping Perks Up on E St. Rialto

Only Xmas Week Remains to Fill Out Year; Ben Hecht Examines Big City Night Life; This, That and the Other About the Theater

THE DISCRIMINATING GENTLEMEN presiding over the mahogany and red leather New York booking salons continue to dole out interesting attractions for the pre-holiday theater weeks on E Street. Manager Edmund Plohn of the National now gleefully contemplates a situation replete with satisfaction that carries him smack up to the actual week of the Christmas rituals.

BELL

Following "DuBarry Was a Lady," the gaudy current gaucherie, will come John Shubert's first individual production, "Off the Record," a political charade that reputedly will scale the farcical heights. For the week of December 9, Max Gordon will bring his new production of Sam and Stella Spewack's "Out West It's Different" to the local boards and, on December 16, the Playwrights' Company will make its new season bow at the National with Elmer Rice's "Flight to the West," a play inspired by one of his own Clipper experiences when his ship was grounded and held for days at the Azores, or somewhere where flying hotels regularly perch—but briefly.

It is a even being bruited about that there may be a Christmas week attraction as the exception necessary to prove the rule that that week by tradition must be dark, although its identity, as yet, is not so much as hinted at.

A season that seemed to begin precariously, insofar as advance commitments were concerned, now is booming along in approved main stem style.

Keen anticipatory interest in "Off the Record" already is beginning to manifest itself—not only because it is John Shubert's first production, but also by reason of the profitable raid he made on Hollywood to tenant the top spots in his cast. Mr. Shubert, in case it may have escaped your attention, is the son of the illustrious J. J. Shubert of the famous "The Messrs. Shubert Present." He long has been a sort of background major domo of the Shubert musical productions, but now is stepping out on his own, as the saying goes, to bring a little laughter into a sad world. It was sagacious of him to recruit Bruce Cabot, Betty Furness, Mary Brian, Dennie Moore and Hugh O'Connell for the stellar roles in his maiden effort. A stalwart of the films for many years, Mr. Cabot is taking his first whirl at Broadway as an actor of the "legit." Mary Brian, Dennie Moore, Hugh O'Connell and the rest have been there before him.

If it is Broadway you like, since the matter has bobbed up, Ben Hecht's "Angels Over Broadway," coming to the screen at the Metropolitan on Thursday, will hit you where you live. It is Ben Hecht untrammeled by any sort of supervisory control, which is by way of being a feather in the cap of Columbia Pictures, which had the good judgment to let him run wild. Those who attended yesterday afternoon's preview discovered the story to revolve around four unique characters portrayed by Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Thomas Mitchell, Rita Hayworth and John Qualen, with the redoubtable Mitchell walking off with most of the gravy as a broken-down, drunken playwright whose observations on Gotham's gay life—or any other city's—are worth walking miles to hear.

Just to set the record straight, Wynn Murray, the blonde songstress at the Earle this week, is no blood relation to Ken Murray, head man of his own rip-snorting revue. Miss Murray usually doesn't speak for herself because her accomplishments do it for her. She has been featured in such Broadway productions as "Babes in Arms," "The Boys From Syracuse" and "St. Louis Opera," has been on Fred Allen's radio program and was starred in "American Jubilee" at the New York World's Fair. If it doesn't run in the blood, it must in the name.

Having aroused a lively controversy ranging from New York's critical paeans to Miss Dorothy Thompson's outraged lament, Walt Disney's "Fantasia" last week hit an all-time box-office high for any comparable "entertainment," when receipts climbed to $60,000. The advance sale, according to Hal Horne, Disney distribution head, averaged between $8,000 and $9,000 per day. Because of the rush of cash customers seeking to buy tickets in advance, it was found necessary to open three additional box offices immediately after "Fantasia's" opening, bringing the total number to six.

It will be "Baby Week" at the Earle Theater, beginning Thursday, when Eileen Ritter breaks out her new "Sing-a-Song-With-Mike" program. Not the kind of babies found in cradles and on doorsteps, but such "boo'ful dolls" as are celebrated in "Pretty Baby." "When My Baby Smiles at Me," "Melancholy Baby" and "Yes, Sir, That's My Baby"—the kind Tom Mitchell describes in "Angels Over Broadway" as having "pneumatic figures and diamond-spangled battlefronts."

Tintypes-on-a-Typewriter Note

Very elegant word-painting, by Hecht!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Nov. 25.

If you haven't read James Street's story of "Oh Promised Land," get it. Jimmy sent the galley proofs to Carole Lombard, and she's crazy to have Clark Gable do the picture. Thinks he'd be wonderful for Big Sam Dabney. But Clark has so many stories ahead he doesn't need another one, so I suggest Darryl Zanuck buy it for Dean Jagger. It would be terrific for him. Though Dean got his big Broadway break in "Tobacco Road," he won't be in the picture, which his own studio is making. Studio feels that the dumb, fumbling sharecropper hasn't the dignity Dean had in "Brigham Young." Which reminds me of the story they tell about Nunnally Johnson, who's written it for the screen, and who comes from the part of the country where "Tobacco Road" is laid.

HOPPER

His friends said, "Honestly, Nunnally, are the people down there like these in 'Tobacco Road?'" "Huh-uh. Where I come from, the 'Tobacco Road' crowd was the country club set."

Hear Warners wouldn't take up Dennis Morgan's option till they'd seen his work in "Kitty Foyle." Now they won't sell half his contract to RKO who made that picture and gave him his big chance.

After Mickey Rooney had been playing his own compositions and singing for a couple of hours, a composer came along and said, "That's swell, Mickey, but why not use a D flat in that particular passage?" Mickey looked at him, then at the piano, and said, "Where's D flat?" Appears he can't read music—does it all by ear . . . Richard Arlen is about to make three air pictures in conjunction with Bill Thomas and Dick's training school. Understand some of Cecil B. DeMille's money will furnish the backing.

If you heard the Red Cross show on Sunday, you know that David Broekman's music is just about the best you'll ever hear on the air. He's one of the finest musicians in town, and that's going some. And it's unbelievable, but he hasn't got a job. Now you tell one.

I wonder if Director Henry Hathaway is aiming to equal or beat Cecil B. DeMille's record for sarcasm. He certainly didn't do himself any good on location with the "Shepherd of the Hills" company, and he picked on the wrong guy when he started on James Barton, who's a swell actor, and has been acting more years than Hathaway has directed. I'm amazed at Henry. He's always seemed so cooperative. And temper never got anyone any place.

Alva Johnson, who wrote "Jimmy's Got It" for SEP, has been in Hollywood ten days now, and has written up W. C. Fields, Orson Welles, and Frank Capra seriously. He was moaning that he'd like to do a funny man, when Errol Flynn spoke up and said, "I know just the guy for you—Jack Warner." Now Johnson's thinking it over. He had an idea of doing Director Alfred Hitchcock, but Hitchy wouldn't give. He thinks Englishmen shouldn't be funny during the war.

The Title Lies, But the Piece Is a Smash Hit

'DuBarry Was a Lady' Rocks Capacity House With Riotous Ribaldry

By Nelson B. Bell

"DUBARRY WAS A LADY. B. G. DeSylva presents Bert Lahr in the musical comedy in two acts and 10 scenes, with book by Herbert Fields and Mr. DeSylva; music and lyrics by Cole Porter; costumes and scenery by Raoul Pene DuBois. Staged by Edgar MacGregor; dances by Robert Alton. At the National Theater.

"DuBarry Was a Lady," that riotously rowdy musical romance of the gentlemen's washroom and the court of King Louis XV of France, arrived in the National Theater last night to demonstrate to a capacity audience the amazing agility of Herbert Fields and Producer B. G. DeSylva, librettists, and Cole Porter, composer-lyricist, in walking the hairline that separates ridiculous ribaldry from offensive affrontery.

The costumes and production may not be as flashingly spic and span as on the opening night of the piece in New York, something like a year ago, but the tunes have lost none of their familiar lilt, the dances are full of animal energy and the bawdy lines and lyrics continue to be rolled back to the other side of the footlights on waves of laughter as continuous and as deafening as an ocean's ceaselessly roaring surf.

To those unfamiliar with the original, such substitutions as have been made in the cast will not impair the hilarity of a tuneful fol-de-rol that has speed, humor, color and melody to dazzle the eye, tickle the risibilities—if the risibilities are not too delicately textured—and delight the ear. Frances Williams may not be Ethel Merman, but she is still Frances Williams, with all of her sparkle, spontaneity and spunk intact, and if Ruth Bond is not a Betty Grable, only a few will know the difference.

Lahr the Lahrfing Hit

Bert Lahr is still the robustious comic he has always been in the role of Louis Blore, the washroom attendant who wins the sweepstakes, is repulsed by the sirenic songstress he has worshiped through a slit in the door of the gurgling precincts over which he presides and still is unable to win after a mickey finn, intended for his successful rival, has made him a dream Louis XV and her the elusively promiscuous chatelaine of his court. The lovely and lusty Miss Williams is his perfect companion in convulsing comedy as the lady who contradicts the title, shares with him more than one of the score's hit songs and achieves one of the evening's triumphs in "Katie Went to Haiti."

As the apprentice brushboy and later the Dauphin of France, the globular Benny Baker, better known to Washington audiences in the films than on the stage, completes the trio of stellar button-busters with a distinctive brand of contagious tomfoolery. The more serious of the singing chores are allotted to Ronald Graham, a handsome young barytone, who revives a lively interest in "Do I Love You?" and "It Was Written in the Stars." As for the bounding ballets, hot hoofing and acrobatic dancing, they are generously passed around among Sunny Rice, Don Liberto and Roy Ross, the seplan miniature, Harold Cromer, and the individual and collective members of the curvaceous, cutaneous and convulsively sinuous ensemble. The gals are nimble and the gals are quick, although I don't recall that they jumped over a single candlestick.

Songs Better Than You Know

The Porter tunes hardly call for any going over in this day of around-the-clock radio and mass production recordings. Everyone knows "Ev'ry Day's a Holiday," "Give Him the Oo-La-La," the "Dream Song," sung by the quartetting Four Internationals, and all the rest. What mechanical means of reproduction have not been able to convey is the stupendous comedy effect Bert Lahr and Frances Williams impart to "But in the Morning, No!" and their last-act "Friendship," which stopped the performance hot in its tracks last evening.

There are, of course, crowds of others who contribute in greater or less degree to the high voltage and lightning velocity of the two acts and ten scenes. Oscar Ragland, Walter Armin, David Shelley, Eddie Hanley, Jerrie Kruger, Xenia Bank, Deborah Stevens, Stella Hughes, Jan Richards, and Wilma Simonsen are among the foremost of these.

But it is Bert Lahr who shoulders the heaviest burden. What would be brief and bungling 'bits" in other less facile hands, he builds into comedy scenes of length, luminosity and delicious lunacy. He belongs now among the top flight of the theater's comedians, just as "DuBarry Was a Lady" occupies a peak position on the list of the musical comedy stage's recent smash hits.

"Lillian Hellman," a producer informs at Leone's, "is the only movie writer approached so far to adapt the Hemingway book."

12 A. M.: "Has 'Johnny Belinda' been sold to the movies?" Sinclair Lewis asks at Sardi's. "I can't get that rhythm out of my mind—'Has Johnny Belinda been sold to the movies; has Johnny Belinda been sold to the films'" . . . "Ileana, the former wife of Stan Laurel, is trying to get a booking into a New York theater when Laurel plays here next week," an agent reports at the Fairway Yacht Club. "She's trying to play opposition to him in every town he works, and threatens to sue him again" . . . "Franz Werfel has applied for American citizenship," a publisher informs at the Tavern. "And then, he says, he's going to write the Great American Novel" . . . "I was given the assignment of adapting 'Kitty Foyle,'" Robert Ardrey relates at the Rainbow Room, "and every day I'd wake up with a headache. Then I found out I was getting those headaches because of the early sun streaming into my room. What a relief. I thought the picture was causing it."

1 A. M.: "Richard Knight, the socialite lawyer who stood on his head at the opening of the Metropolitan last season, repeated the stunt this week, but for a good cause," a ringsider declares at Jack Dempsey's. "He and his wife brought a St. Bernard into Jay-Thorpe. Knight found a Red Cross booth on the main floor and raised money by doing a handstand for every contributor" . . . "James, not John, was the most popular first name among the Presidents," quiz-expert Herbert Bayard Swope assures an unbeliever at Fefe's Monte Carlo. "The James' were Madison, Monroe, Polk and Garfield" . . . "Steinbeck returned from Mexico this week," Lewis Milestone reports at the Stork Club. "He had to remain there, cutting his movie, because the Mexican government won't permit an uncut movie to leave the country. They don't know that even a cut movie can be changed after it crosses the border."

2 A. M.: "Ashton Stevens, the Chicago drama critic, has written a song called 'I'm Just the Duke of Windsor About You,'" a reporter informs at the Versailles. "It will be broadcast over WOR at 12:30 o'clock Monday morning" . . . "I feel blue," Freeman Gosden, of Amos 'n' Andy, sighs at the Copacabana. "My wife's divorce came through today" . . . "I'm the guy to tell that to," George Jessel consoles him. "I look fine, and I'm happy, right? Well, I'm a guy who's recovered from everything, including a stroke" . . . "Sheila Barrett has written me such amusing letters," a corner-sitter confides at Barney Gallant's. "Her letters are so amusing I think I'll tear up Sheila Barrett and keep her correspondence" . . . "Nick Embericos, of the Mrs. Harrison Williams set, has all his ships attached by the Greek government," a broker informs at the Hurricane. "They promised to repay him, with 6 per cent interest, after the war is won."

3 A. M.: "Goldwyn told me about this writer he was trying to fire, and to whom he gave an impossible assignment," Harold Clurman relates at Cafe Society. "The writer kept submitting his script and asking, 'Is this what you want?' and Goldwyn kept saying, 'No.' After two weeks the exasperated writer finally asked: 'If this isn't what you want, Mr. Goldwyn, what do you want?' And Goldwyn confessed, 'Your resignation'" . . . "The Twenty-seventh Division, in Alabama, is hewing to the mark, because of the tough judge-advocate there," an editor declares at Lum Fong's. "He's one of the youngest judges-advocate ever appointed to such a high post. He's Lieut. Col. Marcus, New York City's commissioner of correction"

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Cleveland, Nov. 25 (INS).—Warners are the "winnahs" in the race to buy "George Washington Slept Here," the George Kaufman - Moss Hart show that is attracting so much attention on Broadway. This ends all rumors that Para had it dead cinched for Jack Benny—a story all over Hollywood last week. Jack Warner isn't announcing the purchase price or the cast just yet—but you can rest assured plenty of dough-remi was involved. This makes the second Kaufman-Moss hit acquired by Warners. They bought "The Man Who Came to Dinner" six months ago.

Understand George Sanders is getting temperamental about making "Uncensored," which is the second picture he's kicked up his heels about on his home lot, Twentieth Century-Fox. Months ago the English actor turned down "I Married a Nazi," because he didn't like the role Francis Lederer eventually played. An amusing augle to the whole fracas is that Sanders hasn't made a picture with the company that holds his contract since July, 1938.

New Mexico weather double-crossed the "Billy, the Kid" troupe, expecting to go there for locations, by snowing—and who ever heard of a Western on skis! By the way, the top spots in this Bob Taylor picture are all cast now, with Maureen O'Sullivan playing the femme lead, Brian Donlevy featured and Ian Hunter also among those present. They'll have to go somewhere else on location, but so far the exact spot hasn't been decided.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: William Wyler is a bachelor again. But don't get excited: the bride, Margaret Tallichet, left suddenly for San Francisco to go into Lee Tracy's hit, "Every Man for Himself," and she'll go with the show to New York; Franchot Tone gave a birthday party for Burgess Meredith the other night and kept it such a surprise he forgot to invite Burgess! However, the other guests, Olivia De Havilland, Jimmy Stewart and Carole Landis, had a good time; Sylvia Sidney left Saturday to join Luther Adler in New York; hear Rosemary Lane has been offered the femme lead in the new Max Gordon show, "Way Out West," by Oscar Hammerstein and Sig Romberg.

Ida Lupino has been out of "The Sea Wolf" for a few days on account of she's lost her voice with a bad cold.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

When the big league club owners assemble at Chicago for their annual winter meeting next month, Clark Griffith will be content to be merely a delegate. The old gentleman who is the shrewdest parliamentarian in baseball's high councils, says he has no new legislation to introduce.

POVICH

He is still beaming at his coup of last year when he maneuvered the amendment that crushed the Yankees' four-year dynasty in the American League, and forced a pennant turn-over. Griffith wasn't supposed to have a chance to engineer adoption of his rule forbidding champions to acquire new talent from within the league, but the opposition melted when the old gentleman turned on his persuasive powers.

"I reckon I won't have much to say at next month's meeting," said Griffith, "unless somebody starts to kick up a fuss against Judge Landis. They tried that last year, you know, and we had to crack down on 'em. I'm four-square behind Landis in everything he does, and I wouldn't be surprised if we gave him another long contract before the meeting's over."

The seven-year contract under which Landis is operating as major league commissioner does not expire until the end of the 1941 season, but the two leagues have traditionally renewed his contract a year before it expired.

"If he wants another contract I think he can have it," Griffith was saying. "But he's 74 years old and he may want to step down. The National League didn't back him up in the fight against the farm system last year but the American League did. We're behind him solidly. If the National League wants to fight him again by not indorsing a new contract for Landis, it would be a funny situation.

Just exactly what would be the humor of the situation, we asked the old gentleman.

"Well, you see it's like this. Suppose the American League is solidly behind Landis and the National League is just as solidly opposed to him. That makes it a tie, doesn't it? And in all matters in which the two leagues are deadlocked, it is up to the commissioner to cast the deciding vote. That was the original reason why we hired a commissioner. If the question comes up at this meeting he's still the commissioner and could cast the deciding vote for himself, if necessary."

A year ago Mr. Griffith was stumping loudly for a new program of night baseball. He was insisting that as long as the majors were going in for night ball, they should be smart about it and play two solid months of night games during the hot summer months rather than merely seven home games each. Whatever happened to that pet idea?

"I still like it, but I don't know if we're ready for it yet. At any rate I'm not going to propose it. I'm on record about it and I think they'll come around to two months of night ball voluntarily in a couple of years. The lighting systems are getting better all the time."

How about Mr. Griffith's own lighting system, and how did he think the players would react to it?

"I have only the word of my contractors that we'll have the most modern lighting system in the majors. Improvements have been made rapidly and ours will be the latest, of course. The best system I've seen is in the White Sox park. Out there they've completely eliminated shadows and dark spots, and our lights will be at least as adequate as Chicago's.

It's hard to figure night ball, though. I have a letter from the American League office telling me the results of one survey they made. They took the batting averages of all of the night games and the players on the four teams which didn't have lights in their own parks—Boston, New York, Washington and Detroit—had the best batting averages in the night games. The teams that played the most games under the lights were outhit at night."

Mr. Griffith said he was aware that only 110 shopping days remain for the big league club owners before the 1941 season opens. Most of the buying, he opined, would be done at the three-day winter session early next month. "It ought to be the most active trading session in years," he was saying. "Most every club knows that it can be a serious contender if it can fix up only a couple of weak spots."

As far as his Washington club is concerned, he's going to try to buy or swap for a second baseman, a shortstop and an outfielder. This is a year when Mr. Griffith says he has trading material. "There's only about four players on my club that I wouldn't trade," he says, "and three of 'em are pitchers. There's no need of naming names—you know who they are." Well, here's our guess—the three pitchers are Dutch Leonard, Ken Chase and Sid Hudson and the other player Mr. Griffith considers sacred to the Nats' cause is Cecil Travis. The rest are definitely on the block.

Indians Seem Only Certain 'Bowl' Team

Stanford Expected To Play Aggies; Hoyas Considered For Orange Bowl

By Bill Boni

Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Nov. 25.—With all sectional titles either definitely settled or virtually sewed up, the question of which football teams will play in which bowls come New Year's Day, 1941, becomes a matter of mounting interest and importance.

From all available information, the West-to-East line-up today shapes up this way:

ROSE BOWL (capacity 90,000)—Stanford is the sure-pop Western choice, even if it should lose its final game to California. Washington has lost only one conference game but that was to the Indians. Texas A. and M. is the most likely "Eastern" choice, though the Aggies must beat Texas Thursday to get the bid. Conceivably Stanford would prefer Minnesota, but the Western Conference won't give the Gophers a "yes" or "no" until December 6 or 7.

COTTON BOWL (capacity 48,000) Still trying for the Aggies and Tennessee, the Aggies as Southwest champions with the game under conference sponsorship for the first time. Reliable sources in Dallas say this would be the Aggies' second choice, with the Sugar Bowl, where they beat Tulane last January, virtually out of the running in spite of considerable pressure from New Orleans. Tennessee and the Aggies turned down $85,000 last-minute guarantees for the 1940 Cotton Bowl. If the Aggies go to the Rose Bowl, the Southwest runner-up, Southern Methodist or Rice, would be next choice, with Fordham an Eastern possibility in either case.

SUGAR BOWL (capacity 70,000)—This looks most of all like Boston College against Tennessee. There has been an unofficial New Orleans boom for B. C. ever since it beat Tulane there early in the season. Even Coach Frank Leahy readily admits he expects a Sugar Bowl bid if the Eagles get by Holy Cross, a traditional toughie, on Saturday. Tennessee, which looks like a good bet against Vanderbilt the same day, isn't likely to be asked to Pasadena, where the Vols were a disappointment on last New Year's Day, and don't appear greatly interested in the Orange Bowl, where they beat Oklahoma in '39. Nebraska is known to be on the list of "eligibles."

ORANGE BOWL (capacity 34,000)—The Southern choice almost surely lies between undefeated Mississippi State, tied only by Auburn and an impressive winner over Mississippi last week-end, and Alabama, beaten only by Tennessee. They meet Saturday. Prime Eastern candidates are Fordham, which dropped a close one to St. Mary's and is a strong choice to whip New York U. in its Saturday windup; Lafayette, unbeaten for the second time in four years, but understood to feel it might be going too far out of its class, and Georgetown, beaten only once in 25 games and then by one point by Boston College.

Storck's Rule Stirs Pro Grid League

Decision Permitting Pittsburgh-Eagle Game on Thursday Decried by Topping

Bestowing his official blessing on a game scheduled for Thursday by the Philadelphia Eagles and Pittsburgh Steelers, League President Carl Storck yesterday touched off a lusty protest from the Brooklyn sector of the National Football League.

Dan Topping, owner of the Brooklyn club, loudly decried Storck's action—which the latter admitted went against league rules—and pointed out that such an arrangement would work to the advantage of the Redskins, whom Brooklyn can tie for the Eastern Division title.

Storck's ruling permitting the Thursday game followed a mysterious announcement quoting Storck as ruling against it and ordering the Eagles put off the Steeler game until after the Eagles' game with the Redskins here Sunday.

Executive Committee Polled

The league president, however, said he had not ruled against the Thursday date for the game originally scheduled to be played last Sunday. Storck said he had told Bell a postponement was against league rules but that if owners of both clubs, the Eagles and the Steelers agreed, it would be all right.

Storck yesterday held long-distance conversations with members of the National League executive committee in order to get confirmation of his action, a telephone call to Dayton, Ohio, Storck's home town, disclosed last night.

Members of the executive committee, in addition to Storck, Bell, George Marshall, of the Redskins, and the presidents of the Western Division Green Bay Packers and Chicago Cardinals. The latter two have no interest in the Eastern Division squabble.

The all-day verbal battle—apparently inspired by the fatal fascination the dollar mark ($) holds for pro clubowners—centered around the right of Bert Bell, president of

Aggies and Stanford Top Williamson List

Tennessee Rated Next as Major Elevens Enter Stretch Drive for National Honors; Minnesota and Cornell Lose Ground

By Paul B. Williamson

Noted Football Selector

The leading ten teams of the Nation stretch from Coast to Coast as the college football season goes into its last big week, but there are several important games left on the calendar for a last-stretch fight for national honors.

Texas A. & M. and Stanford remain in the top two positions, though both idled last week, and Tennessee retained third place by routing Kentucky, 33-0. The Williamson System has heard many complaints of the Vols' weak schedule, but Tennessee's showings against Duke, Alabama and Kentucky are enough to convince us that Maj. Neyland has 'em three deep.

Boston College won fourth place by swamping strong Auburn, 33-7, for the Plainsmen's worst defeat in ten years. That was a herculean accomplishment, for Auburn previously had decisively defeated Tulane and Georgia Tech, romped over Clemson, current champions of the Southern Conference, and tied powerful Mississippi State.

Minnesota's Golden Gophers got a scare and had to work hard to beat Wisconsin, 22-13, after trailing, 13-10, in the first quarter. Minnesota dropped from third to fifth because of that game and because its two best victories, over Michigan and Northwestern, were both by the margin of a single point.

That fifth-down score of Cornell

Purdue Votes Against Minn. Trip to Bowl

By the Associated Press

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 25.—Prof. G. A. Young, Purdue University's faculty representative in the Big Ten, said tonight the Purdue faculty this afternoon voted against a proposal to allow Minnesota's Big Ten football champions to play in the Rose Bowl game next January 1.

It was reported here that all schools in the Big Ten were being polled on the proposal.

At Bloomington, Ind., Prof. William J. Moenkhaus, Indiana University's Big Ten faculty representative, said Indiana had taken no vote recently on any such proposal.

Prof. Moenkhaus said he knew of no vote being taken since the same proposal was put to Western conference members last spring.

Iowa in Favor Of Gophers

Iowa City, Iowa, Nov. 25 (AP).—Dr. Karl E. Leib, chairman of the board in control of athletics at the University of Iowa, said tonight that the board was "heartily in favor" of allowing Minnesota's football team, Big Ten champion, to play in the Rose Bowl game January 1.

Ohio State Denies Vote on Proposal

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 25 (AP).—Prof. Thomas E. French, Ohio State University's faculty representative in the Big Ten, said tonight that no vote had been taken here on a proposal to allow Minnesota's Big Ten football champions to play in the Rose Bowl game next January 1.

Hapless Elis Pick Portland End As 1941 Captain

By the Associated Press

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 25.—Yale football lettermen tonight unanimously elected Alen E. Bartholemy, of Portland, Oreg., an end, as next season's captain. He succeeds Harold B. Whiteman, jr., of Nashville, Tenn.

In selecting the 20-year-old junior from the Pacific Coast as their new leader, the Elis' gridders chose the member of the squad whose home is farthest away from here. Bartholemy easily was the outstanding player on this year's hapless Yale eleven, flashing as a wingman all season.

The captain-elect, who was graduated from Jefferson High School, Portland, made the varsity last year as a sophomore.

Young Lost, 'Skins Recall Don Irwin

By Al Hailey

Disclosure yesterday that Bill Young, veteran tackle and guard, will be in Emergency Hospital at least six weeks with an injured knee and may be through with professional football forced Coach Ray Flaherty to recall Backfield Coach Don Irwin from the inactive player list for service in Sunday's final game with the Philadelphia Eagles.

X-rays of Young's right knee, injured in the New York Giants game Sunday when he was clipped from behind, revealed that both internal and external ligaments are torn.

With Young definitely lost for the remaining game and five other players on the injury list, Flaherty immediately notified National Football League President Carl Storck that Young is being placed on the inactive list and Irwin will be recalled.

Irwin in Shape

Irwin, veteran fullback of four years' experience, was placed on the inactive list before the season started, but has been working out daily with the club for just such an eventuality as the current siege of injuries.

In addition to Young, Frank Filchock is still a hospital case. It is hoped that Filchock will be out in time to resume forward passing duties against the Eagles, but he is a doubtful starter, Dr. Moran said.

Also on the "doubtful" list, these as a result of the 21-7 beating the Skins took in New York last Sunday, are Bob Hoffman and Erny Pinckert, both blocking backs, and End Bob McChesney.

In view of the fact that Pinckert and Hoffman both may be lost for the remainder of the season along with Young, Flaherty is planning to turn over the blocking back assignment to Irwin.

Pinckert suffered a recurrence of an old knee injury in the New York

Spoldi Flattens Eldridge in N. Y.

New York, Nov. 25 (AP).—Aldo Spoldi, 138¼, Italy, scored the only knockout on an all-star program of five eight-round bouts which drew 6,000 fans to St. Nicholas Palace tonight. Spoldi flattened Irving Eldridge, 133, New York, in 1:50 of the first round after flooring him for an eight count when the fight was only a few seconds old.

All-Met Team Picked From Eight Schools

By Bill Burnett

Continuing the policy begun last year, The Washington Post gives every scholastic football player in the metropolitan area a chance for post season honors as it presents the second annual All-Metropolitan Schoolboy Football Team.

Ten local schoolboy coaches, without consulting one another and from their honest observations in games their own teams played as well as in outside battles, voted for the best eleven. Their selections coincided sufficiently to make the first team stronger than any other that might be chosen.

In the opinion of District of Columbia scholastic football teachers, Western, Tech and Central boasted the most outstanding players. Each placed two men on The Post's mythical eleven. A single berth went to Eastern, Anacostia, Washington-Lee, Woodrow Wilson and Gonzaga.

A solitary player on the first All-District squad last year repeated this year—Big Bob Pieri, Eastern High tackle. Indicating that the new crop of material was below par, only one of the eleven 1940 stalwarts is not a senior—Elmer Raba, fleet-footed halfback of Gonzaga High.

Jake at Quarter

By virtue of his superior generalship—good enough to lead Western to the Interhigh championship—Jake Hilleary takes down the captain and quarterback honor. There was little competition in the coaches poll for Hilleary, his nearest rival being Jackie Walsh, of Tech, whom Hilleary out-maneuvered in the title battle.

Halfbacks of The Post eleven are Harry Martin, of Central, and Raba. The latter, despite the fact he has only one year of experience behind him, was almost as general a choice as Hilleary. Martin, with several poor performances, had some trouble beating out such stellar ball-carriers as Eastern's Eddie Teague, Georgetown Prep's Bud Eckrich and Gonzaga's Bob Mulvihill. As a matter of fact, the last vote to come in stole a first-string berth from Teague, one of the city's most versatile stars.

There could be no doubt of the fullback, every coach who had seen him in action naming Washington-Lee's Russ Arnaud. Several wavered between Arnaud and Buck Herrlein, Western plunger, but the Little General 165-pounder took the place on his varied ability. Shifted from blocking back this year on the graduation of Wally Legg, last year's W.-L. point maker, Arnaud proved his talent when he led all local schoolboys in scoring with 60 points. He and Hilleary are the blocking as well as ball-carrying members of The Post eleven.

On the wings there was little doubt of Anacostia's George Abshur and Central's Sam Di Blasi coming under the wire. They stood far above a not-too-brilliant crop of ends. Abshur shone on both offense and defense, while Di Blasi was mainly an offensive player, scoring 25 points during the season. Proof of Abshur's all-around abil-

Harmon Prefers Radio Work to Pro Ball, He Tells Club

By International News Service

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 25.—Tom Harmon, the University of Michigan's All-American back who broke the season's scoring record set by Red Grange at Illinois, probably will not play professional football.

"I hope instead to get into radio work," he told a luncheon club today. Harmon, who has been studying to equip himself for work in the radio field, will be graduated from the university at Ann Arbor in June.

Mamakos Wins Decision Over Milt Aron

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 25.—Steve Mamakos, rugged nonstoppable middleweight, of Washington, D. C., defeated battle-worn Milt Aron, of Chicago, in ten rounds of slugging at the Coliseum tonight.

The decision of the two judges and Referee Tommy Thomas was unanimous. The bout was witnessed by 5,700, with receipts at $10,000.

Mamakos staggered Aron in the first round and dropped him to one knee in the fourth. He fought at close range, inflicting heavy body punishment and short uppercuts.

Mamakos absorbed Aron's right-hand shots to the chin without backing up and had him bleeding from half a dozen cuts at the bloody finish.

The Washington fighter forced the fighting from the start, giving Aron no chance to whip over a knockout punch.

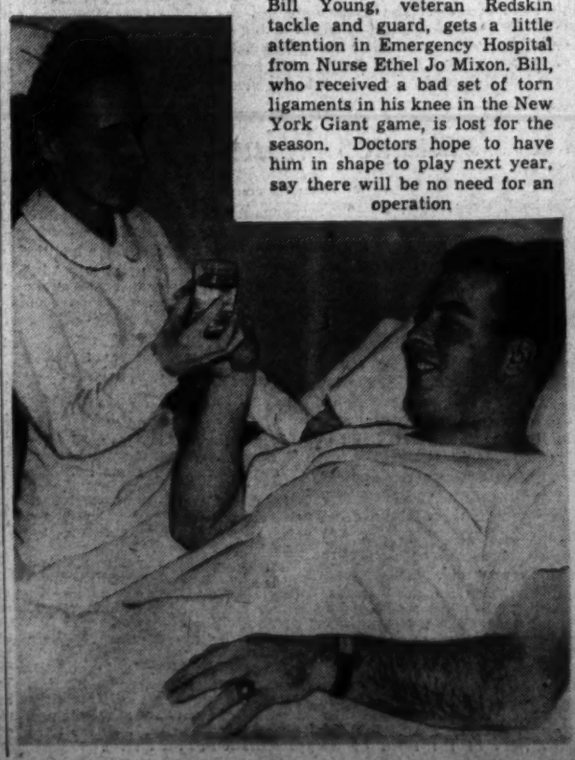
Redskin Learns About Hospital Life



Bill Young, veteran Redskin tackle and guard, gets a little attention in Emergency Hospital from Nurse Ethel Jo Mixon. Bill, who received a bad set of torn ligaments in his knee in the New York Giant game, is lost for the season. Doctors hope to have him in shape to play next year, say there will be no need for an operation

Georgetown-St. Mary's Grid Game Here Next Year Is Likely

Hoyas May Make Coast Trip in '42

Hoyas in Running For Orange Bowl Game With Fordham, Nebraska, Others

Possibilities that Georgetown and St. Mary's of California will inaugurate a home-and-home football series next year were heightened greatly yesterday by an announcement from Coach Norman "Red" Strader of the West Coast school that agreement on financial terms was all that remained to be straightened out.

Strader revealed, according to the Associated Press, that at least two games will be played, with Georgetown making the trip to the Pacific Coast the following season, and there was a possibility that a five-game contract will be signed.

Commenting on the report, H. Gabriel Murphy, Georgetown graduate manager of athletics, admitted last night that he had been negotiating with St. Mary's for such a series since last summer.

School Rule Is Bar

Murphy, however, pointed out that before Georgetown could play on the Coast a school rule prohibiting football trips of more than five days in length would have to be repealed.

From the statements of Strader and Murphy it is logical to assume that Georgetown and St. Mary's may meet in 1941, and that the game would be played here either the week before or the week after St. Mary's tangles with Fordham in New York. That contest is scheduled for November 22, and Georgetown, having prepared for the proposed game with St. Mary's, has booked its 1941 card in such a manner that it can arrange to have an open date on either November 15 or November 29.

No Invitations

Meantime speculation was rife at the Hilltop as to Georgetown's chances for a bowl invitation. The Hoyas haven't yet received even a feeler to a major post-season game, but Murphy attached no significance to that because Georgetown finished its season only three days ago.

Reports from Miami and from New York indicate that there are at least four teams from the East and West being considered to get the Miami assignment against an opponent to be decided Saturday in the Alabama-Mississippi State game.

Hoyas Mentioned

The four teams most prominently mentioned in this connection are Nebraska, Fordham, Georgetown and Lafayette. The last named school already has been sent a feeler, which was at first interpreted in Easton, Pa., as an actual invitation.

If Georgetown is passed up for the Orange Bowl it is highly likely that the Hoyas may accept the proposal of cinemactor Alan Mowbray to meet Santa Clara at Palo Alto, Calif. Christmas Day in a benefit game for the British War Relief Fund. Both Murphy and Coach Jack Hagerty are known to be in favor of this game which would provide a nice trip for Georgetown's 18 graduating players.

Bowl Games Out For Pennsylvania; Feelers Rejected

Philadelphia, Nov. 25 (AP).—Pennsylvania's football team, beaten only by Michigan, will not play in any post-season "bowl" game.

"We are not permitted to play post-season football," H. Jamison Swarts, graduate manager of athletics, declared today.

"This was one of the cardinal points of the athletic plan originated by Dr. Thomas S. Gates after he became president of the university. Because of the Gates plan we were obliged to decline a Rose Bowl bid by Washington in 1936."

Swarts said he had rejected "feeler" bids for the Sugar Bowl game at New Orleans and the Orange Bowl game at Miami.

Savold and Conn Work Out for Bout

New York, Nov. 25 (AP).—Lee Savold, young Des Moines heavyweight, went through an impressive workout today in preparation for his 12-round nontitle bout with Light-heavyweight Champion Billy Conn at Madison Square Garden Friday night. Savold put the emphasis on speed and on short, snappy punches as he sparred three rounds against Joe Baynes and three against big Jim Howell.

Conn also boxed six rounds, but there was no "zing" in his work, and at the finish he admitted he did not feel "right." He rejected Manager Johnny Ray's suggestion that he should take tomorrow off, however, insisting he would reach his peak without difficulty. Conn boxed three rounds with Willie Pavlovich, two with James J. Johnstone and one with Mickey McAvoy.

Ponzi in Defense Of Billiard Title

New York, Nov. 25 (U.P.).—Andrew Ponzi, New York, successfully launched the defense of his title in the world's championship pocket billiard league tonight by beating Erwin Rudolph, of New York, 125-80 and 125-107.

Six cities, New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Syracuse, Newark and Scranton, are represented in the league.

Ponzi captured the afternoon session in seven innings, featuring the contest with a high run of 71. Rudolph's 50 was the best cluster in the evening game which lasted 14 frames.

The standings: Ponzi won two, lost none; Erwin Rudolph won none, lost two.

Divinity Student Bests 91 Rivals for Cross-Country Title

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Nov. 25.—Lou Little, chairman of the collegiate football rules committee, will make two suggestions for rule changes at the committee meeting next month. He will renew his efforts to have the goal posts widened 6 feet, but with the proviso that the sticks remain at the back of the end zone. He will also recommend that permission be granted college backs to hand the ball forward, as well as sideways and backwards, to add to the hocus-pocus now permissible behind the line of scrimmage.

CONSIDINE

He sees nothing else in the wind in the way of rule changes. "This has been an odd year," he said after the Colgate game. "There've been few if any demands for new rules. That's a miracle. I doubt if either of my own two recommendations will be adopted. But I think both would help the scoring. Teams would be as much inclined to try field goals as the pros are if they had a bigger target to shoot for. And all of us could build a lot of good new offensive plays if we had a little more liberty in handling the ball at the start of a play."

Little sees no chance that the colleges will adopt the professional rule which permits a forward pass to be thrown less than 5 yards behind the lines of scrimmage. "The importance of that play is overrated," he said. "How many times do you see the pros use a pass-off-a-buck play over a season's time? Once or twice, I'll bet. And how often do you see a college team penalized for making a pass less than 5 yards behind there?"

Little is sincerely convinced that the pros have had little or no effect on college football. "There has been a lot of agitation for us to move the goal posts back on the goal line, pro style, but what would it get us? It would only restrict our offense in scoring territory, just as it cramps the pros' offense when they are close to a goal. We all have a tendency to get overly enthusiastic about pro ball. Of course the game has some great players, here and there. But there isn't as much difference in the general play as the average fan supposes. I'd like to see one of those top-flight pro teams play a club like Texas A. and M., or Minnesota but particularly Texas A. and M. When you look back on it, the pros never run away with those college all-star games. I mean they are never the routs that some people expect them to be, even though the collegians are playing together for the first time, and even though organization will invariably beat, or should beat, any makeshift group.

"If you ask me, the pros should be more superior to the collegians than they are. They aren't bothered with studies, they can practice as long and as often as they wish. They play fine football, and there's certainly room for them in the game. I thought so when I was playing pro, and I think so even more today. But we all fall into the habit of believing that there is a tremendous difference between a good pro and a good college team. The difference, if any, is pretty small.

"Football is still a matter of fundamentals—blocking, tackling and so on. The pros are only beginning to appreciate that. They make mistakes like any other boys do . . . I'd still like to see a college unit, an organized team, preferably Texas A. and M., run up against the best pro team. I think you'd find the result very surprising."

We asked Little what he made of the fact that so many out-statisticked teams were winning games this year. It has been going on all season, but some of the more noted examples were Notre Dame's victory over an Army team that handily won the statistics, Penn's victory over a Navy team that was three or four times better in the statistics summary, and Little's own Columbia team's victory over a Colgate club which out-gained it 18 first downs to 5. "The answer to that is the touchdown play," Little said. "When I played it was a disgrace to be out-gained by the other team, if we won the game. So we'd be in there, bucking to get another yard and a first down, no matter where we were on the field. Our plays were first-down plays—a smash at the tackles, an occasional end run and now and then a forward pass.

"Today a team is trained to think of touchdowns, not first downs, no matter where it is on the field. The plays are designed to score; they are more intricate, riskier, and they stress spinners, passes and laterals that would have been considered foolhardy even a few years ago. When one clicks just right it's a touchdown, and you're out in front perhaps without a first down to your credit—even though the other club has a dozen.

"I've never been one to take any pride in first downs, or pay much attention to them. The books only use the final score. That's the thing they should do. If you begin giving a team credit for the first downs it scores you might as well give a fighter credit for the number of rounds he won on his boxing skill before he was knocked cold, or a ball club credit for the number of men it leaves on base."

Vitt Promises Winning Club

By the Associated Press

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 25.—Oscar Vitt, released as manager of the Cleveland Indians, is back on the baseball warpath again, this time as pilot of the Portland club in the Pacific Coast League.

Club President E. J. Schefter announced last night that the man who piloted Cleveland to second place in the American League last year and then was fired had signed a one-year contract shortly after arriving here from his Oakland, Calif., home.

Salary terms were not announced, but Vitt said he was "well satisfied." There was talk the contract called for around $10,000.

"I had to take back my retirement talk after Mr. Schefter made me a proposition I couldn't refuse," he said. "I have always liked to win, and still do, and with the tie-up I advised, we will get the players to make the Beavers winners."

Vitt went to Cleveland from the New York Yankees' Newark farm club in 1938. In his three years as manager Cleveland finished third twice and second once. While the Indians were in the thick of the pennant race this year, several players revolted against him.

The players presented a petition to the clubowners protesting Vitt's actions on the bench and in public. They charged that he made them "jittery" and that he unfairly upbraided them in public.

South Team Names Assistants for Game

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 25 (AP).—Assistant coaches for the annual Blue-Gray football game here December 28 have been announced, with Bert Ingwerson, of Northwestern aiding the North coaches and Joe Davis of Rice assisting the South mentors.

Davis, for nine years assistant to Coach Jess Neely, of Rice, will assist his chief by coaching the ends. Neely and Raymond (Bear) Wolf, of North Carolina are co-coaches for the 22-man Southern squad.

Ingwerson will assist Lynn Waldorf, of Northwestern and Carl Snavely, of Cornell, in directing the Blue squad from above the Potomac.

This year's game will be the third presentation of the classic.

Maryland Runner Presses for Second As Dodds Wins

By the Associated Press

East Lansing, Mich., Nov. 25.—Gilbert Dodds, a 22-year-old divinity student at tiny Ashland (Ohio) College, won the individual title with a record-breaking performance today in the third annual National Collegiate Cross Country Meet. The team championship went to University of Indiana, holder of the Western Conference harrier title.

Dodds, a senior from a school of fewer than 500 students, finished more than 50 yards ahead of Oliver Hunter, of Notre Dame, in winning his first major title in three years of track competition. His time was 20:30.2, seven-tenths of a second faster than the mark set by Walter Mehl, of Wisconsin, over the same course in 1939. Dodds ran over a heavy, muddy course.

Pressing Hunter for second place was Tom Fields, of Maryland.

Indiana placed four men in the first 11 men. The fifth Hoosier finished in thirty-second place. Indiana totalled 65 points. Michigan Normal was second with 68 points. Rhode Island State, victor in the I. C. A. A. A. A. meet at New York a week ago, was third with 91 points. The defending championship Michigan State team was next with 102 points.

Indiana won the first national collegiate meet in 1938 and placed third last year.

Behind the leaders were teams of Notre Dame, with 115; Ohio State, 123; Drake, 163; Oberlin, 193; Alfred, 195, and Earlham, 228.

Dodds made a slow start and trailed nearly a fifth of the field of 91 starters at the mile mark, where Bob Nichols, Rhode Island State, and Earl Mitchell, Butler, were battling for the lead.

Half a mile further Dodds moved to the front, and at the 3-mile post he had a 50-yard lead which he stretched slightly as he neared the finish.

Marion Cole, Illinois State Normal, ran most of the way to the finish after he received an ankle fracture about half way. Frank Conforti, Notre Dame, lost a shoe on the spike of a runner behind him half a mile after the start but raced on in his sock.

ity is gathered from the fact he often called signal for the weak Indians of Anacostia.

Across from Pieri at tackle is Tech's biggest and most ruthless lineman, Bing Hightman. They were hard-pressed by Ed Johnson (Washington-Lee), Wilbur Rock (Central) and Hightman's own mate, Riordan, but got in comfortably. Weighing 206 and 195, respectively, Pieri and Hightman would be a formidable barrier on any team if their playing ability was overlooked. They were as smart, however, as any pair of ball players the high schools have seen.

Haack, Jennings Picked

To Clifford Haack, spark of a surprisingly strong Woodrow Wilson club, and Paul Jennings, of Tech, go the guard positions. Almost single-handedly Haack led his team to a tie with Central and a mere 7-point loss to Western in its most successful year. Jennings, though slightly under 6 feet tall, was a big reason why Tech was considered so strong along its forward wall.

A powerful contender for the pivot post last year but beaten out by Tech's Les Ehrlick, Jack Xanten finally came into his own as coaches voted this year. The Western captain, along with Hilleary, was the Red Raiders' biggest asset on the attack. His offensive strength alone probably won him an All-District berth over Eastern's Paul DiMeglio.

Frostburg Claims Soccer Crown

Frostburg, Md., Nov. 25.—Frostburg State Teachers College soccer team, which climaxed the best season in the school's history by defeating Slippery Rock (Pa.) College, 2-1, has again laid claim to the unofficial State title, Towson, Salisbury, Western Maryland, Blue Ridge College, Johns Hopkins and Loyola suffered one or more defeats, while the University of Maryland failed to enter State-wide competition.

Farley Interests Oil Man in Yanks

New York, Nov. 25 (AP).—James A. Farley indicated tonight that Frank Phillips, Bartlesville, Okla., oil man, might be interested with him in the purchase of the New York Yankees.

"I might get him," said Farley, who was one of 300 guests at a dinner given by the oil man preceding the Phillips Oilers-Ohrbach basketball game in Madison Square Garden.

That's all the indication the former Postmaster General would give who might be associated with him in the purchase of the vast baseball empire. But he said:

"I am definitely after the club and I hope to have something definite to announce within two weeks."

against Dartmouth may have been prophetic of the Big Red's strength, for on Saturday they lost to Pennsylvania which now stands tenth in the country.

The 63 top-rated teams listed at this time have played 377 games. As now ranked by the system they have lost only 20 games to lower rated teams. Considering that the ratings have been 94.4 consistent as compared with 97.2 at a corresponding time in 1939.

In 114 returns on the week's games, including late reports from the previous week, the system won 93, called a tie and was upset on a tie. On a straight won-and-lost basis the system batted 83 per cent. In 72 leading games we won 62 for a record of 86.1.

Only big upset among the big-time teams last week was Maryland's 14-7 victory over Rutgers on Thanksgiving Day.

Jersey City Job Rumored For Hartnett

Former Cub Manager Mentioned for Post In Gossip at Meet

By the Associated Press

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 25.—The name of Gabby Hartnett, recently deposed as manager of the Chicago Cubs, was linked today in corridor gossip at the International League directors' meeting to the vacancy at the helm of the Jersey City Giants.

One of the four vacant International loop managerial posts was filled with the announcement of the Toronto management that Russell (Lena) Blackburne would pilot the club in 1941. Blackburne, one-time White Sox pilot, saw service with the Maple Leafs in 1918, 1921 and 1932.

Meanwhile, the league officials decided to reduce the playing schedule next year from 161 to 154 games, voted to retain the Governor's Cup play-off, reelected President Frank M. "Shag" Shaughnessy to a three-year term and agreed to open the 1941 season April 17.

Besides the grapevine report that Hartnett has the inside track on the Jersey City post, the names of Benny Borgemann, former Sacramento pilot, and George Uhle, one-time major league pitcher and more recently coach of the Cubs under Hartnett, were mentioned for the Syracuse and Buffalo managerships, respectively.

Previous reports that Toronto might withdraw from the league were dissipated when club representatives, headed by Senator Salter Hayden, announced Blackburne as manager and showed willingness and financial ability to stay in the circuit. A committee was appointed to consider the club's plea for special consideration because of a law which prevents the Leafs from playing home games on Sundays.

The league also voted to maintain the player limit at 21 and to keep the current salary schedule. A $5,000 award for first place winner in the regular campaign was voted, while the play-off's victor will receive $3,000 and the Governor's Cup.

League opening April 17 takes Rochester to Jersey City, Montreal to Newark, Buffalo to Syracuse and Toronto to Baltimore. The season ends September 7.

'We'll Be Good Again in '41,' Says Bierman

Graduation Loss Light at Minnesota; No Rose Bowl Game

By the Associated Press

Minneapolis, Nov. 25.—Minnesota expects to have another good football squad in 1941, Bernie Bierman, coach of the 1940 Western Conference champions, told the Minneapolis Touchdown Club luncheon meeting today.

"Unless we are hard hit by conscription, ineligibilities or my boys dropping out of school, we will be back with another fine squad in 1941," Bierman said.

"Our loss by graduation is below normal of other years. With the holdovers and from material from the freshman squad we really should have another successful season next year.

"I cannot tell you much about the freshman squad, because I only saw them in scrimmage several times. But, from what my assistants tell me, we will have several fine prospects in linemen and backs among the sophomore candidates."

The Wisconsin team which extended the Gophers to their limit to gain a 22-to-13 victory in the season's finale Saturday was the best Badger eleven Minnesota has played since he took over the coaching at his alma mater in 1932, Bierman said.

"Wisconsin," Bierman said, "wasn't the best team we played this season. But it certainly was the most improved team we faced. They really got together and played a great game against us."

Bierman also said there was no chance of Minnesota accepting an invitation to play Stanford in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

"Our season is over and that's that," Bierman declared.

Notre Dame Rests For Trojan Trip

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 25 (AP).—The University of Notre Dame football team is taking a rest today and tomorrow.

The Irish, beaten in their last two starts, will resume practice Wednesday in preparation for their last game of the season at southern California December 7.

Coach Elmer Layden, commenting today on his team's 20-to-0 loss to Northwestern Saturday, praised the Wildcats for their superior offense.

Line Coach Joe Boland said he knew nothing about a report Marquette University had offered him a coaching job in succession to Paddy Driscoll.

Storck Ruling Stirs Up Row In Pro League

Decision Permitting Steeler-Eagle Game Thursday Is Decried

the Philadelphia Eagles, to have his club play two games in four days when the second game might prove the deciding factor in the Eastern Division title race.

Topping, whose Brooklyn Dodgers have a chance to tie the Redskins for the Eastern championship if the Eagles beat the Washington club here Sunday, protested to Storck, as soon as he learned of Bell's action, demanding the Eagles-Steelers game be played after the all-important game with the Redskins.

'Skins Indifferent

The three-cornered gabfest between Topping, Bell and Storck continued, however, with Redskin bosses sitting tight and issuing statements blandly announcing the whole business made no difference to them.

In the course of events, Storck apparently reversed himself and last night the Associated Press reported from Dayton that the league president, over the vigorous protests of Topping, had ruled that Bell could go ahead and stage his Thanksgiving Day game day after tomorrow in Philadelphia.

Storck's ruling came in the face of a bitter attack by the Brooklyn Dodger owner, who predicted to New York newspapermen that there's going to be an awful stink if the Eagles lose to the Redskins Sunday by a close margin and we beat the Giants."

Been Done Before

Earlier in the day, Bell, in Philadelphia, had said playing two games in four days was not without precedent in the National League. He claimed he had talked to Storck by long distance telephone Sunday night and again yesterday and had been assured he could go ahead with the Thursday game.

In addition to the lure of Thanksgiving Day, Bell has planned to make the Philadelphia game "Davey O'Brien Day" as an added lure to bring out the cash customers. O'Brien is leaving the Eagles December 1 to accept a permanent position with the Federal Bureau of Investigation here.

A slow rain and a poor advance sale led Bell to cancel the Pittsburgh game last Sunday in Philadelphia.

Squad Cut to 25

Storck's decision means the sadly-undermanned Eagles will have to take on the Pirates Thursday, get but two days of rest and then make the trip to Washington for the Redskins' game.

This, fact, in addition to the fact that the Eagles cut their squad of 33 down to 25 when it became apparent that they would not share in the divisional championship money, is all in the favor of an easy Redskin victory.

With eight victories against but two defeats already behind them, all the Redskins need to clinch the Eastern championship is a victory over Philadelphia. Topping's Dodgers could then defeat the New York Giants this Sunday and still lose the Eastern title, for they have seven victories and three defeats on their record already.

But—and here lies Topping's arguments—if the Eagles should defeat the Redskins and the Dodgers beat the Giants, Brooklyn would get another shot at the Redskins in the divisional playoff for the right at the world championship shot.

Both Topping and Storck were unavailable by telephone when The Post attempted to reach them for further details last night. Attempts on the part of Gene Ward, Dodger publicity director, to reach Storck in Dayton, brought the answer that the league president was "unavailable."

Leading Eagles Open D. C. Season With Rovers Tonight

4,500 to See Inaugural At Riverside

Game Brings Together League's Top Two Teams; Hal Dewey Doubtful Player

By Jack Munhall

A greatly changed but apparently improved Washington Eagles outfit makes its home debut in the Eastern Amateur Hockey League tonight at 8:30 with the New York Rovers as opponents at Riverside Stadium.

A capacity crowd of 4,500 fans is expected to turn out for the first 1940 look at Redvers Mackenzie's league-leading squad, which opens here with a fine record of five victories in six starts on the road.

Severine G. Leoffler, owner of the Washington team, has invited the first 51 District of Columbia conscripts to be his guests at the game.

Augie Lio, Georgetown's star guard and leading candidate for all-America honors, is to put the puck in play and then view the match, together with other members of the Hoya football squad.

May Finish One-Two

When Lio flips out the rubber disc he will send into action the two teams that are expected to finish one-two in the final standings. The Eagles, runners-up to the Baltimore Orioles last season after beating out the Rovers in the home stretch, have already met each of the other five clubs in the league and defeated all but the Rovers.

In Madison Square Garden on Sunday Washington's five-game winning streak was nipped by the Rovers, 4-3, in an exciting climax during which New York scored all its goals in the final period. Previously Mackenzie's men had polished off the Boston Olympics, a newcomer to the league, twice, and Baltimore, Atlantic City and River Vale once each.

Now the Eagles hold first place by the margin of one game—or two points—over the Rovers, and so tonight's match assumes additional significance inasmuch as the Rovers can tie for the lead with a victory.

Castoffs Help Out

Two castoffs of another league team have been in starring roles as the Eagles reversed their last year's procedure by getting off to a fast start in the current championship race. Norman Burns, center, and Gordon Hemming, goalie, both former featured players with River Vale, are highly praised by Coach Mackenzie for their performance to date.

Burns, a smooth looking figure on skates and a deadly shot, is pacing the Washington team in scoring with seven goals in the six matches, while Hemming has proved a tower of strength before the Washington nets.

Burns and Hemming are two of eight new members of the Eagles. The other rookies are Centers Roy McBride and "Russ" Rossignol, Wings Jack MacBeth, Gordon Pranschke, and Frank Mailley, and Defenseman Jimmy McCurry.

Held over from the 1939 Washington squad are such popular heroes as Paul Courteau, Mike Germann, Len Burrage, Hal Dewey, Ross Knipfel, Johnny McTeer, and Lester Colvin.

Dewey Doubtful

Dewey, the fourth-high scorer of the Eastern League last season, may miss tonight's match with a leg injury received in Sunday's match with the Rovers, and if he does Coach Mackenzie will have to scramble his forward lines.

The Eagles' usual starting line has been composed of Center P. McBride and Wings Dewey and Pranschke. They have been relieved by two spare trios of Rossignol, Courteau and Germann, and Burns, Mailley and MacBeth. Working with these combinations have been two sets of defenses, Knipfel and Burrage, and McCurry and McTeer.

With Dewey on the doubtful list the Eagles' starting lineup will include the line of Burns, Mailley and MacBeth, and also Knipfel, Burrage and Hemming.

The Rovers, 1938 league champions, also will present many new faces tonight, but with all their changes they again stack up as a high scoring club. At present the New Yorkers are setting the offensive pace with 37 goals in seven matches. The Eagles, having shown more power on defense than on attack, have tallied only 20 points. Washington, however, has been the hardest to score against, their six foes being able to make only 11 goals.

Rovers.	Position.	Eagles.
Fischer	Goal	Hemming
Sawchuk	R.D.	Burrage
Trainor	L.D.	Knipfel
Check	Center	Burns
Kreller	R.W.	Mailley
Parker	L.W.	MacBeth

New York spares—Hamilton, Tilson, Wilson, Ferns, Hollinger, Dolan, Darnell, Brownridge.

Eagles spares—McTeer, Rossignol, McCurry, Germann, Courteau, Pranschke, McBride, Dewey.

Temple, Army Clemson Play V.M.I. in 1941

Keydets Drop Duke, Washington U; Ten Game Card Released

By the Associated Press

Lexington, Va., Nov. 25.—V. M. I.'s football team will play a ten-game schedule next fall with three tough newcomers on the card, Maj. Blandy B. Clarkson, athletic director, announced tonight.

Clemson, Temple and Army are the three new teams to be met by the Cadets, who drop Duke, Washington University of St. Louis and Newberry from the 1940 schedule.

Clemson's Southern Conference champions will be played September 27 in Lynchburg's Municipal Stadium, following an opening game in Lexington on September 20 with an opponent not yet signed. Maj. Clarkson said the 1941 opener will not be with Roanoke, which started the V. M. I. schedule this season.

The schedule:

October 3, Temple at Philadelphia (night); 11, Army at West Point; 18, Virginia at Lexington; 25, Richmond at Richmond.

Angott Decisions Bob Montgomery

Philadelphia, Nov. 25 (AP).—Sammy Angott, National Boxing Association lightweight champion from Washington, Pa., won a ten-round split decision over Philadelphia's Bob Montgomery in a hard-fought nontitle bout here tonight. Angott weighed 137¾ to Montgomery's 138¾.

A crowd of 8,500 saw Angott, an 8-to-5 favorite, win on Referee Irving Kutcher's vote after the two judges had disagreed.

Kutcher gave Angott five rounds, Montgomery four, with one even. Judge Eddie Loughran called it a draw, four and four with two rounds even, while Judge Al Voice voted for Angott, six rounds to four.

Navy Off Thursday For Game With Army

Confident but Mindful That Soldiers Will Be Tough, Middy Squad of 43 to Make Philly Headquarters at Country Club

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 25.—Navy gridders today began their final drive for the all-important game with the rival West Point Cadets, mindful that the soldiers will be no pushover, notwithstanding their own apparent superiority based upon this season's records. And this point will be stressed during the remaining four days of preparations.

The squad of 43 players is booked to leave here for Philadelphia Thursday afternoon and will bivouac at the Manufacturers' Country Club until shortly before departure for the Municipal Stadium. The players, however, will have a final workout in the stadium of Temple University Friday.

Navy scouts who have seen Army in action this year report that the Cadets have two or three backs who are shifty and will be dangerous. These are "Hank" Mazur, sophomore triple threat; Johnny Hatch, and Jere Maupin, veterans of two campaigns, and then there is Bill Gillis, captain and center, and other seasoned players.

Today's workout, lasting nearly two hours, was featured by a defensive scrimmage against the soldiers' aerial attack, which showed so well against Princeton Saturday in spite of their defeat. Junior varsity players were equipped with Army formations as mapped out by scouts, and the two alternate teams gave a highly creditable performance.

Physically, the Tars are perhaps in better shape than at any time this season. Although Bill Chip, powerful blocking back, and Cliff Lenz, hard plunger and pass receiver, have not been in the best of condition for the last few days, they will be available for service Saturday. Vic Rowney, first string guard, is out of it because of a bad cut over the eye, but counteracting this loss is the complete recovery of Ed Svendsen. Svendsen has been a replacement lineman throughout the season but has been handicapped by injuries. Another important change in the lineup made within the last couple of days is that of placing Hal Harwood in the center spot which has been held by Ed Sims through most of the season. Sims gives greater heft to the forward wall through his 200 pounds, compared to Harwood's 175, but the latter's pep appears to be inspirational to his comrades, as well as those of the baseball team on which he has filled an outfield position for the last two years, and it is not unlikely that there may be one or two other changes before the final makeup of the team is decided upon.

Irish Send Ailing Army Back Gift Of Inscribed Ball

By the Associated Press

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 25.—Notre Dame's football team today presented to Harry Heffner, ailing Army back, the ball used in the Irish's hard-earned victory over the Army in New York, November 2.

Milt Piepul, Notre Dame captain, inscribed on the ball this notation: "Morally, it's yours." Notre Dame won only 7 to 0 after being expected to roll up a big score.

Every Notre Dam player autographed the ball and requested Bill Willis, Army captain, to forward it to Heffner at the Army and Navy General Hospital in Hot Springs, Ark., where Heffner is convalescing from an attack of infantile paralysis suffered while visiting his parents at Lawton, Okla., last summer.

Pro Lions' Owner Becomes President

Detroit, Nov. 25 (AP).—Resignation of William Alfs as president of the Detroit Lions, of the National Professional Football League, was announced today by Fred L. Mandel, jr., owner of the club. Mandel said that he would assume the presidency of the team which he purchased last spring.

Alfs, a Detroit attorney, said the pressure of other business made it impossible for him to continue to devote time to the operation of the Lions.

2 Kilowatt League Pin Records Fall

Carl Rittenhouse, Hodgson Lead Team At Penn Recreation

The Station Engineers quintet of the Kilowatt League at Penn Recreation blasted two all-time league records for team highs by getting pinfalls of 682 for game and 1,873 for set. Carl Rittenhouse paced his team with his own 171 game and tremendous 431 set, a season record for the latter mark. Hodgson helped his teammate with near highs of 154-405.

PETROLEUM

In the Petroleum League at Columbia the Ott's Service Station won most of the honors for the night. Don Grist, Ott's, took high set with 370 and gunned his team to counts of 577 and 1,661 to win over the others. Don Boyer, Esso Extra, took high game with his 141.

NAVY DEPARTMENT

The Navy Department rollers at Arcadia saw Gerald Small, Aeronautics, and John Fogleman, Sup. & Accts., take highs with 163 and 385 for game and set, respectively, while the Model Basin boys rolled high team game of 624 and set of 1,776, the latter mark the second high for the season. The Model Basin boys, in thirteenth place, took the odd game from the first-place Bureau of Engineers with the help of McDonald's 152-370 and Gill's 366 set, which gave the U. S. Engineers a tie for the league leadership because of the latter's odd-game win over A. & I.

ICE PALACE

Substitute Roller Florence Sabean, of the Doves quintet, was the leading lady in the Ice Palace Ladies' meet with highs of 121-323 to lead all the others and help her girls fly home with team highs of 501-1,481, the latter a season record.

TAKOMA CHURCH

In the Takoma Church loop at Takoma Recreation, H. Stewart, Catholic No. 1, took individual glory with highs of 150 and 406. The Catholic No. 2 crew came through for team highs and led with 624-1,745.

PETWORTH CHURCH

The Petworth Methodist Church girls rolling at Takoma Park discovered that Katherine Van Pelt, Petworth Strikers, was high for the night with highs of 116-279, although Pauline Miller, a teammate, had a near-high game of 105. The Spareribs won team highs with 448-1,177.

FEDERAL MEN'S

Skippy Reed, G. P. O., was the standout in the Federal Men's loop at Arcadia with high game and set of 188 and 401, the former mark a season record. The G. P. O. boys, inspired by Reed's highs, won team honors with 658 and 1,878.

ODD FELLOWS

The Odd Fellows at Brookland found Art Custer, Golden Rule, and Wally Donaldson, Amity No. 1, the standouts, the former taking high game with 156 while the latter took high set with 396. Friendship No. 1 was best for team game with 593 while set of 1,683 went to the Golden Rule boys. Bill Bland, Amity No. 3, rolled a 133 game, although but an 85-average man, and Jim Cross, Metropolis, had 146-363 and can boast of but a 99 average.

Grimm Goes Back To Cubs as Coach

Chicago, Nov. 25 (AP).—Charlie Grimm, former manager of the team, signed as a coach with the Chicago Cubs today.

The Cub general manager, James Gallagher, said Grimm came to terms after talking with the Cub manager, Jimmy Wilson. Grimm was replaced as Cub pilot in July, 1938, when Gabby Hartnett took charge. Wilson, who succeeded Hartnett recently, already had selected Dick Spalding, of Philadelphia, as one of his two-member coaching staff.

25 Michigan Gridders Are Awarded Letters

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 25 (AP).—Twenty-five members of the University of Michigan football team, which lost only to Minnesota's Big Ten champions, were awarded "M's" today by Coach T. O. (Fritz) Crisler. Nine of the monogram winners, including All-America Halfback Tom Harmon, are seniors. Tomorrow the Wolverines will elect a captain for 1941 and designate the team's most valuable player.

Virginia Hunters Bag 160 Deer Legally

Waynesboro, Va., Nov. 25.—Game Warden Rusmisel, of nearby Bath County, reports 160 deer were killed legally in the county during the recent five-day open season. Mr. Rusmisel said his figures were based on a check made of clubs and camps and on reports of Bath County huntsmen. He said eight deer were known to have been killed illegally, these being does and spike bucks. Of these three were found in one place and were believed killed by one huntsman.

Terp Tackles Face Weight Disadvantage

Washington and Lee Quartet Scales 845 Pounds; to Play Here

University of Maryland's football team is likely to suffer with tackle trouble when it meets Washington and Lee in a Southern Conference combat at College Park Saturday.

The Generals, who are not so beefy in other spots, will present a sophomore tackle quartet which scales a total of 845 pounds. John Rulevich (pronounced Rool-vick), who leads the pack at 225 pounds, and Lillard Ailor, who totes 205, are the starters, but they have two sturdy supporters. One is Joe Hubbard, 210, who wears 14-E shoes, and the other is Perry Simmons at 205.

Hubbard's feet are said to be the biggest in the Southern Conference, and his shoes, which are made to order, are shipped to him in separate boxes. He sometimes plays guard so that he may be in the game at the same time as Rulevich and Ailon.

Washington and Lee has a fifth tackle in Bert Nelson, a junior, but he is a lightweight in comparison, scaling a mere 175.

While Washington and Lee backers are rating Rulevich as all-America talent and Ailor close on his heels, scouts and other judges of football prowess rate senior Steve Hansik, 175-pound guard, as just about the toughest linesman the Generals present. He's not only tough to get out of the way on attack but has a habit of messing up enemy plays.

Maryland, on the other hand, doesn't feel that Washington and Lee will present any better lineman than Luther Conrad, end; Ralph Burlin, tackle, and Bob Smith, center, and looks for offensive play to decide the issue.

Both will present fast runners and good passers in the backfield, but here Washington and Lee will have 12-pound average edge with Johnny Ligon, Preston Brown, Bob Pinck and Junie Bishop or Harrison Hogan starting. This quartet averages 178 pounds against Maryland's 166 with Joe Murphy Mearle DuVall, Elmer Rigny and John Cordyack comprising the Terp quartet.

The Terps resumed practice yesterday after a layoff since the victory over Rutgers and staged a scrimmage with the freshman in perfecting some new plays for the Generals.

Bob Smith, veteran center, and backfielders Mearle DuVall and John Cordyack, were excused on account of bad colds but should be fully recovered in a day or two. With these exceptions, the Terps are fit.

'Fifth-Down' Friesell Ribbed At Pittsburgh Coaches Meeting

Phoney Messages From Yale and Ohio State Asking Official's Aid in Reversing Decisions Are Heard

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Nov. 25.—Popular little William H. (Red) Friesell, jr., got the ribbing of his life today at the hands of the Curbstone Coaches Association which he heads.

It was the grid arbiter's first appearance before the association since his famous fifth down incident in the Cornell-Dartmouth game. Cornell scored on the extra down but later conceded defeat.

As soon as speechmaking began today, a messenger interrupted to deliver to Friesell a phoney message dated from New Haven:

"Entire student body breathlessly awaiting word from you. Did we really lose? Can't you do something for us?"

It was supposed to be from Yale which lost to Harvard, 28-0, with Red doing the refereeing.

Ten minutes later came this fake note from Ohio State, crushed, 40-0, by Michigan:

"Wish you had worked our game last Saturday. We needed something."

Then Friesell described a descriptive play that gained 78 yards for Harvard. Not only was the Yale defense fooled but all officials except the field judge chased the wrong man while the ball carrier raced down the other side of the field. Friesell invited more razzing by admitting he pursued the decoy.

But the referee grinned and took his medicine, all the while admitting he'd lost a down somewhere and still hadn't found it.

High Blame and In Memory Run Dead Heat in Bowie 7th

Late Effort By Former Gains Break

High Blame Stages a Gallant Fight Down Stretch to Get Tie; Bill Farnsworth Wins

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Bowie, Md., Nov. 25.—A dead heat, the first of the meeting at this point, came in the seventh race here today. Mrs. Aaron Knight's In Memory and Mrs. L. H. Thompson's High Blame drove into the finish line as a team. The judges called for the picture, studied for several minutes and then flashed the "even-Stephen" sign. A length and a half behind the fighting pair came J. McNey's Tyr to be third in a field of 12.

In Memory and High Blame ran different kinds of races to get to the wire together. The former, ridden by Jockey E. Kaufman, forced the pace of Barograph and finally took command to appear a "sure" winner in midstretch. High Blame was allowed to settle into stride and worked his way to contention between horses. Through the stretch, Jockey P. Kieper punished High Blame and he came to the outside of the leader to make a bold move in the final jumps.

Those who wagered on In Memory received $7.80 to win, while backers of High Blame collected $5.20.

The track handicapper piled 126 pounds on old Bill Farnsworth in the feature event, but the ancient son of Crack Brigade was equal to the task and drove to a neck victory. The race was the Hardcastle Handicap, with $1,400 added and over the 6-furlong course. As was the case when Bill Farnsworth won here last week, P. L. Kelley's Float Away was second. Third money in the blanket finish went to H. G. Bedwell's Woodchopper.

Representing the Tall Trees Stable, Bill Farnsworth was installed the favorite, along with Early Morn, a stablemate which was eliminated when he bled in the running. The legions of backers of the entry collected $5.90 for each $2 investment. Running over a slow track, the 7-year-old was clocked in 1:13 2-5, creditable time over the slow track.

Jockey Johnny Gilbert was in the winner's saddle and turned in his second success of the program, having won with Warlock, owned by Walter M. Jeffords, in the third event.

Bowie's weather luck continued to hold sway. After last week of excellent racing conditions, a perfect racing day followed yesterday's downpour. The track, heavy for the workouts this morning, dried out rapidly during the midday hours. A better-than-average Monday crowd of 8,000 witnessed the sport.

The day's feature was a battle between Bill Farnsworth and Float Away from the start, with Woodchopper forging into serious contention in the stretch run. The two front runners alternated in setting and forcing the pace. In midstretch, Bill Farnsworth appeared to be drawing clear of his persistent rival. However, Jockey Knisley shook up Float Away and the son of Whiskaway came up again to just miss getting up. Woodchopper came up along the rail, but hung right in the final jumps.

The favorite players went down swinging on Jockey W. L. Taylor and Balkan War in the first race. The combination was forced into fourth place as Jockey Henri Mora brought Miss Fix It home in front of Navigation and Storminess. Miss Fix It was overlooked by the big money and pajd a $21.20 mutuel.

Taylor did much better with the favorite in the second race. This time he climbed into the saddle of Light as Air, owned by Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords, and he won with the greatest of ease. Six lengths behind the daughter of Ariel came Triphammer to be second, ahead of Charmful. Light as Air paid a mere $3.80, but completed a $56.30 daily double mutuel.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS FIX IT, $21.20, $12.40, $8.00; NAVIGATION, $26.30, $14.70; STORMINESS, $7.90.

MISS FIX IT, off in the first flight, came around horses to better her position and wore down NAVIGATION to win going away while under a drive. NAVIGATION raced PAPER GIRL into submission to get to the front and could not resist the winner while closing gamely. STORMINESS was a forward factor from the beginning and weakened in the final test. BALKAN WAR, first away, was squeezed back approaching the stretch and hung under pressure in the final eighth. COUNTY CORK was off poorly and closed a gap in the final quarter. PAPER GIRL set the early pace and stopped.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. For 2-year-olds; claiming. Start good from gate. Won handily; place easily. Went to post at 2:04. Off at 2:04. Winner, Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' ch. f. (2), by Ariel—Sweet as Sugar. Trained by Oscar White. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:14.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LIGHT AS AIR, $3.80, $3.10, $2.90; TRIPHAMMER, $6.50, $5.30; CHARMFUL, $9.30.

LIGHT AS AIR, confidently handled, was allowed to settle into her best stride, came between horses boldly when asked and drew out to win in hand. TRIPHAMMER saved ground, got through on the inside, closed willingly, but was no match for the winner. CHARMFUL was a keen forward factor from the start and was weakening at the end.

Daily Double, MISS FIX IT and LIGHT AS AIR, Paid $56.30

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. For 2-year-old maidens. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 2:32. Off at 2:32½. Winner, Walter M. Jeffords' ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WARLOCK, $8.30, $4.90, $4.10; CHEESESTRAW, $10.10, $6.90; GRAIL BIRD, $7.40.

WARLOCK was sent up on the inside to assume command, drew out, was shaken up in midstretch and was opening a gap while winning easily. CHEESESTRAW went to contention with a bold rush, came out for racing room and was tiring at the end. GRAIL BIRD was a keen forward factor from the start and closed gamely. SKAGWAY hung in the final drive. PORT ALIBI closed some ground.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:57. Off at 2:57½. Winner, A. C. C. Stable's b. m. (6), by Transmute—Bye O'Baby. Trained by H. G. Bedwell. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:50⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BAIN MARIE, $13.10, $5.10, $3.60; SUNPHANTOM, $6.00, $4.10; GLAD EYE, $4.90.

BAIN MARIE, allowed to settle into her best stride, went wide for racing room, displaced FELSUN to take command and was kept to pressure to the end. SUNPHANTOM was steadied while well placed, came wide into the stretch and closed gamely. GLAD EYE was outrun to the stretch, came through on the inside and closed with good energy. FELSUN set a good pace and weakened gradually after losing command. ESSJAYTEE was kept on the inside in the heaviest going and faltered.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,400 added. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:23. Off at 3:24. Winner, Tall Trees Stable's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BILL FARNSWORTH (entry), $5.90, $2.90, $2.40; FLOATAWAY, $4.40, $3.10; WOOD CHOPPER, $2.90.

BILL FARNSWORTH, off alertly and going in his best form, alternated in setting and pressing the pace with FLOATAWAY and withstood a long drive to barely last. FLOATAWAY raced along with the winner on the outside, dropped back in midstretch and came again on the outside. WOOD CHOPPER saved ground to better his position and was kept to pressure to the end. ROBESPIERRE lacked early speed and hung in the final drive. STURDY DUKE closed gamely. BROWN SAXON stopped. EARLY MORN bled.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:51. Off at 3:51½. Winner, R. McKee's b. m. (6), by High Cloud—Sarah Ginger. Trained by G. C. Brenton. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:49⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAECLOUD, $4.30, $3.40, $2.90; GOOD RECEPTION, $9.30, $5.40; HISTRIONIC, $3.40.

MAECLOUD, allowed to settle into her best stride when unable to race with the early leaders, moved up gradually and was going away at the finish. GOOD RECEPTION disposed of ARGELLA, took command on the last turn, held on willingly, but was no match for the winner. HISTRIONIC was within striking distance from the start, but did not respond when placed to pressure in the final eighth.

Selections at Bowie.

Dear Al:

Trainer Harry Guy Bedwell stated yesterday that he knew nothing about Mrs. E. Graham Lewis, one of his employers, signing another trainer. Bedwell had had remarkable success with Mrs. Lewis' horses. He has part of her string in California, and plans to ship the remainder to the West Coast on Sunday. H. D. Massey reports he has four yearlings at his Churchville, Md., farm. Two are fillies by Pair By Pair, one a colt by Sweeping Light, and the other filly by Cavalcade. The stewards waived the apprentice allowance on Pay Rack in yesterday's seventh race, with W. L. Taylor getting the mount. Unless some rider stages a sensational finish this week, Taylor will wind up the meeting as its leading winning jockey. Taylor started the final week's racing of Maryland's 1940 season with 10 victories, or four more than Eddie DeCamillis, the runnerup. Glen McNaughton was an arrival with four horses, including the improved Berwyn and Royal Cross. When Trainer Preston M. Burch reported that the Howe Stable's Oasis had a filled leg, the stewards allowed him to scratch out of yesterday's feature. Freddie Hopkins departed for Florida with the eight horses he had in training here. Before leaving Hopkins filed a stall application for the session to be run here next April. Jockey No Boy Jacobs wants to report that his friend, Davey Zeraga, who suffered a broken leg last month, is in Doctor's Hospital. Galt Davis, Rossyln bowling center proprietor and horse owner, advertised in a county paper. The ad read: "Wanted—Colored duckpin setters, guaranteed $18 per week. Must be experienced and between ages of 21 and 35. Write immediately, etc." He received the following postal card: "Dear Sir, I am a experienced duck setter. I have live in the country for many years and worked on a duck farm. I would like to have job. (Signed) Lillin Jones."

Horsemen and customers seemed highly pleased yesterday with naming of Col. Wall as a steward at Charles Town. The retired officer knows horses and racing. He is a solid citizen and should go well along with T. C. Bradley and Leslie Coombs, two men selected him. Beverly Broun, chairman of the West Virginia Racing Commission, lost no time putting the stamp of approval on him. Barring rain, the track should be fast for today's sport. See you on the rail—Bill.

First race—Molasses Frank was off poorly in his last start but was third to Flying Centaur at Havre de Grace. He has the class to whip the mediocre field of maidens opposing him in this number. Llano Blanco has been working well and might upset the dope. Nick has been trying hard and has been consistently in the money.

Second race—Royal Marlboro was well liked when he finished fourth to migration in his recent race. He is dropping down to meet a cheaper field of platers today and appears well placed. Royal Robes turned in a good effort over this track last Start when she won Saturday. Pete Jr. is not out of it.

Third race—Bow Low just missed when second to Sack recently. Having shown his ability to run over the Bowie strip, he figures to take the measure of this band. Colorado Ore displayed marked improvement in his last race and rates as one of the contenders. Smart Crack won at Pimlico in the heavy going.

Fourth race—Lonely Road was closing swiftly upon Good Conduct and Ida Rogers in his last heat. Going an additional sixteenth of a mile in this race he figures to be up in the stretch run. Wildmute likes the Bowie track and can be counted upon for an improved effort. Chance Maker for the show award.

Fifth race—Flying Easy qualified handsomely for this heat by finishing second to the speedy colt, Pirate, recently. She is more cheaply placed than usual. Hi-Light showed a good effort in her last race and figures to offer stout opposition. Miss Identify won recently and should be close.

Sixth race—Dollar Bay, apparently at home on the Bowie track, turned in a surprise performance to finish a nose behind Sir Marlboro in the handicap opening day. He receives top billing but is expected to find a game rival in Off Shore despite the latter's recent poor effort. Cavalier appears best of the others.

Seventh race—Abmeres came from behind to whip Count Morse last outing and appears capable of repeating his winning ways in this mile and an eighth affair. Good Conduct is moving up in class after winning in good time over this track recently. Scrooge can better the dull effort displayed in his last. Best bet—Flying Easy.

District Ladies' League: No. 3

Howard's Rendezvous Pin Smashers

2-Man Team Match Carded For Thursday

The two-man team of Eddie Newman and Herbie Freeman, which already has won three straight matches, will meet Warren Bockwinkle, the St. Louis flash, and Abe Yourist, husky New Yorker, in a special bout on Thursday night's wrestling show at Turner's Arena.

Milo Steinborn, the Memphis "Strong Man," and Rudy Dusek will clash in the feature spot, with Carole Starr, of New Orleans, Southern feminine champion, engaging Hazel Forbes, of Birmingham, in an added attraction.

Newman and Freeman turned back Whitey Gorvo and Carl Gray, of Toledo, last Thursday in comparatively easy fashion. The two powerhouse boys have a total weight of 525 pounds, and use it to good advantage.

The match between the Misses Starr and Forbes marks the first time these two ever have appeared in Washington.

Life Insurance Payments Here At $6,062,000

Death Claims Average $673,555 a Month Up to Sept. 30

District of Columbia policyholders received $6,062,000 from life insurance companies in settlement of death claims during the first nine months, it was announced yesterday by the Institute of Life Insurance.

Of the death claim benefit payments made here this year to September 30, $4,146,000 was paid on ordinary policies, $920,000 on group policies and $996,000 on industrial policies.

"The importance of the economic and social contribution of life insurance to the families and communities of this District is indicated by the fact that the funds flowing into bereaved homes so far this year have averaged $673,555 a month," Holgar J. Johnson, president of the Institute, stated in releasing the figures.

Maryland policyholders, the same report revealed, received $11,358,000 in the first nine months, while Virginia settlements totaled $11,904,000 in the same period.

An "Inflationary Aroma"

Business is more concerned over possible impulsive use of inflationary controls in the hands of Government than with inflation itself, the monthly publication of the American Bankers Association said today.

At the same time, the magazine Banking said "an increase of 15 to 20 billion dollars in the national debt during the next two years has an inflationary aroma that is hard to escape."

The review mentioned three factors tending "to hold inflation dangers in check:"

1. The customary level-headedness of American business and a widespread desire to cooperate voluntarily in every effort to advance the defense program.

2. The dominant position of the Government itself as a buyer, and stabilizer of prices.

3. Our trade with the fighting countries is at a low ebb, which will prevent any serious bidding-up of prices for our goods among foreign buyers.

Banking's index of the general business trend, obtained by a canvass of 2,700 bank directors and bank presidents, showed activity at very high levels in all fields and in all parts of the country.

B. & O. Traffic Gains

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad reported that it handled 51,206 cars of freight in the week ended November 23, an increase of 3,333 cars over the correspondingg week last year but a decrease of 1,770 from the previous week this year. Ten years ago in the corresponding week the road handled 55,353 cars.

Chicago Livestock

Chicago, Nov. 25 (AP).—Trading declined 5 to 10 cents today on a liberal supply of hogs. Cattle sold steady to firm and sheep sales were steady, with higher prices asked.

Although salable supplies of hogs amounted to 25,000, with 8,000 billed directly to packers, trading was active to all at the decline, with a top of $6.25 paid freely. The dressed market was weak, best wholesale pork loins falling 50 cents to $13 per hundredweight.

Choice grades of steers and yearlings, which were scarce, were firm, while other grades were fully steady on the early rounds. Best steers topped at $14.85.—(U. S. Department of Agriculture).—

Pennsy Nets $7,903,183 In October

Month's Earnings Off $2,383,474 From Last Year

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Nov. 24.—The Pennsylvania Railroad reported today a net railway operating income for October of $7,903,183, a decrease of $2,383,474 from income for October, 1939. The net operating income for the first ten months of the year was given as $83,472,630, an increase of $4,461,578 over the same period for 1939.

New York Central Railroad today reported October net operating income of $5,339,057, compared with $7,064,476 in the like 1939 month. For the first ten 1940 months operating net aggregated $32,975,889, contrasted with $28,418,491 in the like period last year.

The Reading Co. reported today a net railway operating income for October of $1,226,312, a decrease of $383,107 from October 1939. The company reported its net operating income for the first 10 months of $10,619,253 was $1,039,460 above the income for the same period in 1939.

Illinois Central system reported net railway operating income of $1,249,312 for October, compared with $2,238,851 in the same 1939 month.

Port of Baltimore Shows 124% Rise In Export Trade

Baltimore, Nov. 25 (AP).—Exports from the port of Baltimore in ten months this year were valued at $155,791,000, an increase of 124 per cent over the corresponding months last year, G. H. Pouder, Association of Commerce executive vice president, said today.

Pouder predicted export trade for 1940 would "set a 20-year record" in Baltimore, ranked in 1938 as the Nation's third largest port in total tonnage handled.

Increased war-born traffic with Africa, the Far East, United Kingdom, and Latin America accounted for the huge gain, Pouder said, despite the closure of many other markets due to war.

Grain shipments for the ten months totaled 20,195,000 bushels, or "nearly 500 per cent above last year."

Steel Rate Steady At Peak for Year

New York, Nov. 25 (AP).—Steel mills throughout the Nation will operate this week at 96.6 per cent of capacity, unchanged from the year's peak established last week, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported today.

Operations a month ago were at 95.7 per cent of capacity and a year ago at 94.4 per cent, the highest rate of 1939.

Walgreen Net In Year Rises To $3,149,541

Drug Chain Earns $2.10 a Share Against $1.87 Previous Year

By the Associated Press

Rayonier, Inc.

Rayonier, Inc., reports $1,053,557 consolidated net profit for the three months ended October 31, after all charges including new taxes. That amounts to 77 cents a share on the 963,871 outstanding shares of common stock, after provision for preferred dividends. In the preceding quarter the company netted $1,085,552 or 80 cents on common stock and $852,636 in the 1939 quarter.

Holiday Buying Boosts Clearings In 274 Cities

By the Associated Press

Thanksgiving and other seasonal factors boosted check transactions in banks of 274 leading cities to $10,282,000,000 in the wek ended November 20.

The Federal Reserve Board said the margin of this figure over the $8,447,000,000 of the preceding week and the $8,467,000,000 of the comparable week last year was due mostly to the pre-holiday buying in most States, usual midmonth pay roll transactions, and the stimulating effect of the defense program.

By Federal Reserve Districts, comparisons, in millions of dollars, follow:

Stock Market Boasts Faint Rally As Average Of 60 Stocks Shows First Gain Since Nov. 18

New York, Nov. 25.—Quiet buying of steels and selected industrials gave the stock market a faint rallying appearance today but many leaders were unable to make a showing.

Favorites were lifted fractions to 2 points in the forenoon. Then there was a let-down and at the close extreme gains were cut or converted into declines in numerous instances.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks finished with a net advance of .1 of a point at 44.5, its first plus sign since November 18. Dealings slowed after the start and transfers totaled 521,280 shares, smallest turnover for a full session since October 28. Last Friday's volume aggregated 714,050 shares.

The better action of the list was attributed by brokers partly to the belief of technicians the market had already experienced a substantial "correction" from the lengthy upswing. The industrial composite last week was down to its level of late September.

Increased and extra dividends, together with expectations of higher payments, aided a number of issues. Earnings statements, generally, remained cheerful along with most business items. War news apparently was a secondary influence in the day's speculative shifts.

Steels seemingly were propped by the ability of production to maintain a record peak. This week's mill operations were placed at 96.6 per cent of capacity, unchanged from the week before which was the eighth consecutive weekly upturn. It was believed that, but for shutdowns for repairs, output would have recorded another increase. A fly in the generally pleasing ointment was the sale of a stock exchange seats for $34,000, off $6,000 at a new low since 1914 when the quotation was duplicated.

Among stocks ending on the upside were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Goodyear, Montgomery Ward, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Texas Corporation, Great Northern, Kennecott, American Smelting, American Can, Eastman Kodak, Savage Arms and International Paper preferred.

Losers included General Electric, Dow Chemical, Philip Morris, Brooklyn Union Gas, Standard Oil of N. J., Pennsylvania, Cerro de Pasco, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, North American, U. S. Rubber common and preferred, Sears Roebuck and J. I. Case.

Much discussion was heard in boardrooms over proposals to repeal the Johnson Act and grant huge credits to the British for the purchase of arms materials in this country. Observers saw an inference here that British-owned American securities might be pressed for more urgent sale. Because of Britain's previously large reserve of gold and dollar balances, this liquidation thus far has been proceeding at a leisurely pace.

Speculative quarters studied comments by Moody's in which this service suggested the possibility of at least a temporary flattening out of the business curve.

Holding improvement of as much as 2 points in the curb were Aluminum of America, Bath Iron Works, Bell Aircraft, Colts Patent Fire Arms, Humble Oil and American Export Lines. Minor losses were posted for Brewster Aero, American Cyanamid "B", Electric Bond & Share, International Petroleum and N. J. Zinc. Trades were around 126,000 shares versus 133,000 in the previous full session.

Renewed demand for high-priced bonds acted as a stabilizer to other groups in today's market, enabling the list as a whole to advance moderately.

Two divisions used in the Associated Press averages—the low-yields and industrials—established new highs for recent years at 114.2 and 105.8, respectively, each up .1 of a point. Sales of $5,573,250, par value, compared with $8,329,400 last Friday.

It was the fifth time since last Monday that the industrials used in the compilation crossed the previous highs and the fourth time the low-yield group attained this distinction. Brokers have attributed the sustained demand for these issues—many of which are selling several points above par—to large-scale institutional buying to fill out portfolios before the close of the year.

Gaining fractions to a point or more were, among others, Montana Power 3¾s at 106½, Shell Union 2½s at 99⅝, Studebaker 6s at 105¾, Great Northern 4s at 105⅝, Commonwealth Edison 3½s at 115 and Anaconda Copper 4½s at 105⅝.

U. S. Governments closed 8-32 of a point higher to 1-32 lower.

Foreign dollar loans were neglected and finished irregular.

Bank Loans Up 13 Million During Week

Atlanta and St. Louis Districts Take Lead In Defense Credit

By the Associated Press

Banks in the Atlanta and St. Louis districts took the lead last week in expanding business loans primarily for defense industries.

The Federal Reserve Board said last night that these two districts accounted for $5,000,000 each of the $13,000,000 increase in such loans in the week ended November 20 among banks of 101 leading cities. This was the eighth consecutive week of such increases, but usually New York or Chicago banks were in the van of the movement.

In the eight weeks, banks of the 101 cities have expanded their business commitments $333,000,000 to a total of $4,908,000,000. This figure was $520,000,000 larger than a year ago.

The board's 101-city member bank condition statement gave the following summary of assets and liabilities on November 20, together with changes for the week and with the same week last year, in millions of dollars:

National Dairy Files $70,000,000 Issue With SEC

By the Associated Press

The National Dairy Products Corporation, New York, filed registration papers yesterday for $70,000,000 worth of proposed debentures.

The company said, in its statement to the Securities Commission, that proceeds of the securities would be used primarily for refunding purposes. The proposed securities would include $55,000,000 of 3¼ per cent debentures due in 1960 and $15,000,000 worth of debentures due 1941-50. The interest rate on the latter debentures will be announced later.

Principal underwriters of the securities were named as Goldman, Sachs & Co., and Lehman Brothers, both New York.

Referee Admits Wrong Signal

'Bama-Vandy Game 'Error' Is Explained

Use of Horn on Foul Ruling Instead of Whistle Brings About Controversy at Game

By the Associated Press

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 25.—Lou Ervin, referee of the Alabama-Vanderbilt football game here last Saturday, said today controversy over one of his decisions in the contest arose because he "treated the horn as a foul-signal only and not as a ball-killing signal."

Freddie Russell, sports editor of the Nashville Banner, declared Ervin's decision paved the way for Alabama's 25-21 victory.

On the play in question, Ervin sounded his horn, when Vanderbilt took excessive time in putting the ball in play from the Vandy 20-yard line, instead of using his whistle which would have halted play immediately.

The horn merely indicated a foul had been committed, without halting play.

Jimmy Nelson, of Alabama, intercepted a subsequent Vanderbilt pass and returned it to Vandy's 14-yard line. Three plays later Alabama scored its first touchdown.

"If my using the horn instead of the whistle may be considered an error," said Ervin, a football official for 20 years, "I am willing to admit the mistake. I customarily use the whistle.

"I treated the horn as a foul-signal only and not as a ball-killing signal. Immediately I decided to let the play go and not kill the ball."

Russell contended the ball should have been declared dead. This ruling would have returned the ball to Vanderbilt with a 5-yard penalty. Instead, Alabama gained the ball on the Vandy 14-yard line and later scored.

Eagle Five To Demonstrate At Tech Clinic

American University has accepted an invitation for its basketball team to demonstrate finer points of the court game before an audience of District of Columbia playground boys Friday night at 8 o'clock at Tech High gym.

The Eagles, coached by Staff Cassell, open their basketball season with Georgetown December 12. Prospects are bright at the uptown school, with plenty of experienced players and promising sophomores and freshmen available for duty.

Nucleus of the team will be a quartet of 1939 lettermen—Capt. Hugo (Dutch) Schulze, Carl Ryham, Archie Norford and Bart Reese. Most promising of the new players is Freshman Gus Frizell, former All-Maryland State guard from Laconing High.

Giants Buy Card Utility Infielder

New York, Nov. 25 (AP).—The New York Giants took steps to strengthen their infield today when they purchased Joe Orengo from the St. Louis Cardinals for cash and two players to be named.

Orengo, who hit .287 in 129 games last season, was pretty much of a utility infielder with the Cards last season after coming up from Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League. He played 77 games at second, 34 at shortstop and 18 at third base. The Cards first brought him up in 1939, but after a week he was sent back to the coast for more seasoning.

The Giants did not indicate whether he would be placed at second or third. Burgess Whitehead came back last season to play a bang-up game at second but showed he also was a polished third sacker when injuries forced Manager Bill Terry to rearrange his infield.

Dominion Court Season Planned

Richmond, Va., Nov. 25 (AP).—Andrew Welch, of Richmond, was elected president at an organization meeting here yesterday of the Virginia State Basketball League, which will operate under the supervision of the Virginia A. A. U. Plans for opening of play in mid-December, with team rosters to be filled by December 10, were discussed.

The league will operate in two divisions—Eastern and Western. Winners in each division will meet for the State title.

In the Western group are expected to be National Business College and American Legion quints, of Roanoke, as well as teams from Richmond, Petersburg and Lynchburg. In the Eastern district will be teams representing Portsmouth Naval Hospital, the Norfolk Naval Base, as well as Norfolk and Portsmouth teams.

Phillips Oilers Beat Ohrbach Five, 37-35

New York, Nov. 25 (AP).—Phillips Oilers, National A.A.U. basketball champions, led by their 6-foot-1 "Midget," Bill Martin, staged a great rally tonight to defeat the Ohrbach five, Metropolitan title holders, 37 to 35, in two overtime periods at Madison Square Garden.

Ohrbach was out in front, 28 to 23, with less than three minutes to go when Martin, former University of Oklahoma star, started his one-man rally. Three quick baskets, the last just as the gun fired ending the regular session, knotted the count at 29-all.

The Texas Ags Are Plenty Worried About Cowboy Crain

game, and Hoffman was laid low by a block which tore the cruciate, or lower, ligament in his right knee.

McChesney, who had a bone broken in his right hand, may be able to play by wearing a special cast, but he will be unable to do any pass receiving.

Sammy Baugh and Roy Zimmerman, the latter a rookie understudy to the injured Filchock, both are suffering from bruised feet, but they will be able to play by Sunday.

Young, whose knee will be placed in a cast today, will be replaced in the Redskin forward wall by either Vic Carroll or Mickey Parks, both regular centers.

The 240-pound former University of Alabama star is the second man the Redskins have lost for the season this year. Capt. Turk Edwards last week was placed on the inactive list and probably is at the end of his playing career after nine years with the Redskins.

The current barrage of injuries is one of the worst in Redskin history. The Skins were in almost a similar spot last year when they went to New York to meet the Giants in the playoff for the Eastern Division championship.

Barring further trouble in Sunday's game with Philadelphia at Griffith Stadium, the Redskins should have McChesney, Filchock, Zimmerman and Baugh in fairly good shape for the December 8 playoff—either with the Brooklyn Dodgers, in case of a tie for Eastern honors, or with the Western Division title winners for the championship of both divisions of the league.

Cetral Y.M.C.A. Sports Program Inaugurated

Games and other athletic events feature the winter program of the Boys Department of the Central Young Men's Christian Association, inaugurated yesterday in the boys' building, 1732 G Street Northwest.

Basketball will replace touch football on the schedule and the swimming team, which has been practicing for sometime, will begin competing with other teams. Instruction in boxing and wrestling will be given this year in connection with the regular gymnasium classes. Organization of craft clubs will be another feature of the winter schedule.

Knees May Decide Grid Game Saturday

St. Louis, Nov. 25 (AP).—The knees may hold the answer to next Saturday's Missouri Valley clash between Washington and St. Louis universities.

Both teams, as practice began today for the annual intracity scrap, had key players out with knee injuries. So it may be a question of which knees respond the best to treatment this week.

St. Louis wants Mel Aussieker, backfield star, to get well in a hurry while the Bears are banking on a speedy recovery for Backs Dutch Lutz and George Kowalchuk, hurt last Saturday.

Dickinson Ratings Will Be Discontinued

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 25 (AP).—Dr. Frank G. Dickinson of the University of Illinois, who for a decade has issued ratings on the top intercollegiate football teams of the Nation, said today that his 1940 rankings to be announced next Monday would be his last.

Dr. Dickinson said he was abandoning the ratings because his interests had changed and because of the numerous commercial ratings which have entered the field.

Abolish County Almshouses, Group Urges

Replace Them With Two State Hospitals, Report Of Md. Body Asks

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Nov. 25.—Abolition of Maryland's 13 county almshouses and their replacement by two State-operated hospitals was recommended today by Gov. O'Conor's special almshouse commission.

The commission proposed that the State pay the capital cost of construction and operation of the hospitals, with the counties contributing 75 cents daily for each patient they send to the institutions.

One hospital should be built on the Eastern Shore, the other on the Western Shore, the commission said, with adequate facilities established for Baltimore City. Approximately 1,700 beds would be needed outside the city, at an average cost of $1,500 a bed, exclusive of site costs, sewerage, power plant and equipment, the commission estimated.

Administrative responsibility for the hospitals could be vested in the State department of public welfare, the report suggested, and each institution would have a board of visitors made up of one county commissioner from each county in the area served by the hospital.

Facilities for dividing the hospitals for white and colored would be provided, the report added, and patients would fall into one or two classes:

Those in need of chronic hospital care who are now in alms houses or elsewhere, who are without financial means to pay for their care and whose mental or physical status is such that they need constant nursing care and regular medical treatment.

Those in need of infirmary care now in almshouses or elsewhere . . . whose physical or mental status is chronically such that they require a degree of supervision rendering them unsuitable for boarding homes.

The commission's report was sent to the Governor who will relay it to the Legislative Council. A hearing has been scheduled by the council open to county commissioners and other officials, some of whom have expressed opposition to the program.

Leaf Growers Approve AAA Crop Control

15-State Referenda Show Regulation For 3 Years Favored

By the Associated Press

The bulk of the American tobacco crop for the next three years will be sold under strict Government regulation.

Growers of burley, dark air-cured and fire-cured tobacco joined producers of the important flue-cured crop Saturday in voting to vest such control in the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. A sharp drop in exports to Europe led the AAA to propose restrictive measures on future crops. The voting was conducted in 15 Southern and Middle Western States.

Under the AAA's control program, individual growers will receive marketing quotas for their 1941, 1942 and 1943 crops. Should they sell in excess of quotas, penalties of 10 cents a pound on flue-cured and burley and 5 cents on the other types could be imposed.

Incomplete but conclusive returns from the referenda gave:

Burley—For three-year quotas, 97,967; for one-year quotas only, 3,941, and against all quotas, 26,199. Majority for three-year quotas, 76.4.

Fire-cured—for three-year quotas 16,903, for one-year quotas only 405 and against all quotas 1,866. Majority for three-year quotas 88 per cent.

Dark air-cured—for three-year quotas 8,687, for one-year quotas only 233 and against all quotas 1,222. Majority for three-year quotas 85.6 per cent.

A two-thirds majority of those voting is required to make quotas operative.

Virginia Votes Control

Blacksburg, Va., Nov. 25 (AP).—Three-year marketing quotas were approved by Virginia growers of dark-fired and burley tobacco in Saturday's referendum. Virginia producers of bright tobacco approved the three-year quota plan for that type of weed in a previous referendum.

State AAA officials said the Virginia vote on dark-fired was 5,572 for three-year quotas, 135 for one year, with 389 opposed. The vote on burley was 2,777 for three-year quotas, 95 for one year and 824 opposed.

Official Count Shows Record Virginia Vote

346,607 Ballots Cast; Roosevelt Got 235,961

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Nov. 25 (AP).—Official returns from the November 5 general election, announced today by the State board of canvassers, showed that 346,607 Virginians, the greatest number to vote in any election, expressed their choice for President.

They gave President Roosevelt 235,961 votes to 109,963 for Wendell Willkie, or a Roosevelt majority of 126,598 over the Republican candidate. Babson, prohibitionist, received 882 votes; Thomas, Socialist, 282; Aiken Socialist-Labor, 48, and Browder, Communist, 71.

President Roosevelt's vote was 981 above his 1936 total, but his majority fell behind the 136,644 votes by which he led Alf Landon four years ago. Willkie received 11,027 votes more than Landon did in 1936.

Byrd Gets Record Vote

Senator Harry F. Byrd, with no Republican opposition, but contesting his seat with Hilliard Bernstein, Socialist, and Mrs. Alice Burke, Communist, received 274,260 votes—the largest number ever given a candidate with opposition in Virginia. Bernstein received 11,159 votes and Mrs. Burke 8,250, to leave Byrd with a majority of 254,839 over his two opponents.

The total vote in the Senate race, including scattering votes, was 293,881 as compared with 346,607 in the Presidential contest. The Byrd vote fell considerably behind the total cast in the Presidential contest in the counties which went Republican or showed a large Republican vote. This indicated that the Republicans, although offering no opposition to the Senator, did not give him a big vote, the same as in the contest four years ago when Senator Glass defeated Socialist and Communist opponents. Senator Glass' vote in 1936—244,518—was the largest received by an opposed candidate in Virginia until the Byrd vote of this year.

Official Returns Listed

The total Congressional vote this year was 316,575, the heaviest voting coming in the four districts where there were contests between Democrats and Republicans.

The official returns showed these totals:

First District—Bland (D.), 22,493; scattering vote, 20.

Second District—Darden (D.), 29,788; scattering vote, 12.

Third District—Satterfield (D.), 24,885; Dawson (Soc.), 1,126; scattering, 15.

Fifth District—Burch (D.), 25,631; scattering, 10.

Sixth District—Woodrum (D.), 30,048; McWane (R.), 13,864; Wilkes (Soc.), 186; scattering vote, 19.

Seventh District—Robertson (D.), 28,233; Garber (R.), 13,964; Ruffner (Com.), 95.

Eighth District—Smith (D.), 33,631; Goodloe (R.), 8,794; scattering vote, 4.

to take his 12 tricks, however. Before looking at the solution, plan the way you would have played the hand and see if you would have done as well. The opening lead by East is the three of clubs.

The opening lead is taken by declarer's ace. South is put in with a heart to lead the jack of spades. West ducks, hoping the finesse will be refused, but North lets the jack ride. The king of trumps drops on the ace, and the ace and king of hearts are cashed. North must discard a diamond from dummy on the second heart trick, not a club. Declarer then leads his fourth heart, ruffs in dummy and plays dummy's remaining club. As West is marked with the high club, North's jack forces him to play it or he will lose the trick. With West winning the second club, and with hearts and spades eliminated from his hand, he must lead a club or diamond. If a club, North will ruff and discard the queen of diamonds from South; a diamond gives dummy an automatic finesse. Either lead gives declarer the contract.

If a losing club is discarded from dummy on the sixth trick, instead of a diamond, the things necessary diamond finesse will fail, and, since another diamond must be lost, the contract goes down one trick.

MR. AND MRS. — All for His Own Good — BY ARTHUR FOLWELL AND ELLISON HOOVER

LET ME LOOK AT YOU! WHAT DID YOU HAVE TODAY FOR LUNCH?
MEAT, POTATOES, PIE AND COFFEE. WHY?
I THOUGHT SO. IT SAYS HERE IN DR. BISMUTH'S COLUMN THAT SUCH A MEAL HASN'T A VITAMIN IN A STOMACHFUL—
—THAT IT'S THE LACK OF VITAMINS AND MINERALS THAT MAKES THE BUSINESS MAN SO DULL
OH! SO-O-O? NOW I KNOW HOW YOU RATE ME
JOE IS DULL. THEREFORE, JOE HAD MEAT, POTATOES AND PIE FOR LUNCH. Q.E.D.
I DON'T SEE WHY YOU SHOULD GET ANGRY EVERY TIME I TRY TO BETTER YOUR HEALTH!

The Post Radio Time Table

2 p. m., WMAL—Josephine Schain, chairman of the executive committee, the Women's Centennial Congress; and Paul S. Willis, president of the Associated Grocery Manufacturers of America, talk with Alma Kitchell on her Streamlined Journal.

7:15, WJSV—George S. Kaufman finds himself with Lanny Ross for the latter's quarter hour, during which Lanny will sing numbers from a few of Kaufman's shows: "Love Is Sweeping the Country," "Mine," "Who Cares" and "Soon."

8:30, WJSV—"The First Nighter," that half-hour of drama supposedly from "the little theater off Times Square," notes that this begins its tenth year on the air. Tonight's play is a comedy-romance, "Speak Up, Benjamin."

9, WJSV—Over a month ago The Post's Edward T. Folliard was looking around Martinique. Now other reporters have gotten the idea—Pat Frank being the latest to come back with news how the Vichy Government is rushing the fortification of the island. With stories of his friend, the late Maharajah of Mysore, Capt. Patrick Tayleur is another guest on We, the People.

9:30, WOL—From a room adjoining the giant dinner party in the Willard Hotel Ballroom where the broadcasting industry is celebrating its twentieth birthday, comes a special edition of the American Forum of the Air. This half-hour will be devoted to the two decades just passed and the two to come. Chairman James L. Fly of the Federal Communications Commission, and Neville Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, are the principal speakers. The Granik program has been chosen to air these views because, in the words of the broadcasters, it is "a symbol of free speech."

10, WMAL—Now that the Ice Follies has folded its tents the Riverside rink is being invaded by the hockey teams.

11:30, WRC—Better Business Bureau annual meeting.

Listen!

with Glynn

(WJSV's Arthur Godfrey pinch-hits today for Paul Glynn.)

As most of you who may tune in occasionally know, my old Sun Dial program on WJSV these mornings is a kinda scrambled-up affair. What with Flash Conover's news at 7:30, the C. B. S. European Round-up at 8, and Charles-the-Daly's Magic Carpet at 8:30, I no sooner get goin'—when I'm gone.

Time was when we could find a few lost dogs, goats, cats and unmentionables for folks. Now and then I used to interview a character or heckle the weather man or even spin a yarn myself. But no more! Nowayems it's the time (usually wrong), sneezeless soap-chips, two-pants-suits, the big white (?) bear, and see ya tomorrow! Ah, me! Sometimes I wonder if radio's here to stay.

There's one thing I do try to talk about though, once in a while, and that's my old alma mater—the Navy. I'm back in the outfit again, y'know, and I'm urging you young fellers to join me. If ye'll pardon the salt in me beard, there isn't a mother's son o' ye (between 17 and 31 and otherwise qualified) with a hankerin' for the sea, who isn't staring the greatest opportunity of a lifetime straight in the face right now! The Navy's expanding, boys, these days and men who prove their mettle are being advanced faster than at any time in the Navy's history!

The Navy Recruiting Station is at Seventeenth and F Northwest. Drop in with Dad and talk it over. It'll be the makin' of ye, 'ad.

Resp'y,

ARTHUR GODFREY.

Walter-Logan Bill Over Senate Hurdle

Chamber Votes, 31 To 24, to Consider Curbs on Agencies

Over the protests of Administration forces led by Majority Leader Barkley, the Senate yesterday, by vote of 34 to 21, formally agreed to take up the Walter-Logan bill to curb the powers of independent agencies of the Federal Government.

Admitting that "legislation is needed on the subject," Senator Barkley urged that action be postponed until the next session of Congress, when "we will be able to write a wise bill." The present measure, he contended, was "crudely drawn."

Principal sponsor of the measure yesterday was Senator Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, who told his colleagues that for many months the members of the Judiciary Committee had been "denied the right" to move that the bill be taken up in the Senate.

Yesterday's vote, which merely clears the way for the real fight over the measure itself, found all 19 Republicans in the chamber siding with 15 Democrats in the affirmative. The 21 Democrats who opposed Senator Hatch's motion to take up the bill included such Administration stalwarts as Senators Byrnes, of South Carolina; Harrison, of Mississippi; Minton, of Indiana; Sheppard, of Texas, and Barkley, of Kentucky.

Roll Call of Votes

For the motion—34.

Democrats (15)—Adams, Bailey, Burke, Byrd, Clark of Missouri, Connally, Ellender, George, Gillette, Hatch, Herring, Holt, King, Tydings, Van Nuys.

Republicans (19)—Austin, Ball, Barbour, Bridges, Brooks, Capper, Danaher, Davis, Frazier, Gurney, Hale, Johnson of California, Nye, Reed, Taft, Vandenberg, White, Wiley, Shipstead.

Against the Motion

Democrats (21)—Andrews, Barkley, Bilbo, Byrnes, Caraway, Green, Harrison, Hayden, Hill, Maloney, McKellar, Mead, Miller, Minton, O'Mahoney, Reynolds, Russell, Schwartz, Sheppard, Stewart, Thomas of Utah.

Declaring that he was "judging the future by the past," Senator Hatch said that if consideration of the bill were posponed to next session, "weeks and months will be spent considering the bill, and perhaps weeks and months will be spent trying to get recognition."

Senator Barkley urged his colleagues to wait until publication of the Attorney General's committee on administrative procedure. But Senator Hatch retorted that "rumors which have come to us in the last few days make it very doubtful that that report will ever come to Congress."

Expected in December

"I have heard that there has been very grave disagreement among the members of the committee and there might not be any report," the New Mexican observed.

The report of the 11-man committee, which is headed by former Undersecretary of the Treasury Dean Acheson, had been scheduled for publication some weeks ago, but is now expected to appear early in December.

The Senate may not take final action on the Walter-Logan bill this session despite the ballot yesterday.

Some Predict Vote in Few Days

Some members were predicting that a vote would come within a few days; but this depended on the presence of a quorum in Washington and also on failure of opponents of the measure to carry out their threat to offer the anti-lynching bill as a rider. If the Walter-Logan bill, which has already passed the House, fails of adoption in the Senate, it must begin all over again in the new Congress.

"In the midst of the present situation, with the mind of the Senate and the country not on this particular problem, it's unwise at this juncture to begin consideration of this bill," said Senator Barkley.

Promising that next session he would cooperate in bringing the subject up, the majority leader wryly told his colleagues that "if there's one subject I've gotten tired of during the past year, it's the Walter-Logan bill; God forbid that I'd have to spend another year and a half dealing with it."

Dr. C. J. Forcey, 'Church of Air' Pastor, Dies

Cleric, 39, Founded Non-Sectarian Tabernacle in 1933

Funeral services for Dr. Clark J. Forcey, 39, who died yesterday, will be held at 2 p. m., Thursday, at the Nonsectarian Tabernacle, which he founded at Piney Branch Road and Georgia Avenue Northwest in 1933.

DR. FORCEY

Dr. Forcey died at his home, 9407 Flower Avenue, Silver Spring, Md., where he has been ill since July.

Born in Bigler, Pa., Dr. Forcey came to Washington as a stranger and organized the church in a tent which twice was destroyed in wind storms before the present structure was built.

A graduate of Greenville College, Greenville, Ill., and the Southern School of Divinity in Dallas, Tex., Dr. Forcey was well known for his radio program "Church of the Air." He is the author of the book "Palaces of God."

Besides his wife, Margaret, Dr. Forcey leaves five children, Lillian, Leslie, Clark, jr., Hershell and Eldon, of Silver Spring, and his father, two sisters and three brothers, all of Pennsylvania.

Pisgah, Md., Man Dies After Crash

Harry Mattingly, 51, of Pisgah, Md., died at Casualty Hospital late yesterday of injuries received when an automobile he was operating hit a concrete culvert near Indian Head, Md., Saturday.

Two other occupants of the car, Benton Garner, 60, of Hilltop, Md., and Marcellius Dunnington, 52, of Pisgah, were in the La Plata, Md., hospital in serious condition, according to Maryland State Police. Garner has a fractured skull and internal injuries, and Dunnington has severe lacerations and bruises and internal injuries.

U. S. Art Projects Are Political Displays, Ex-NYA Aide Says

'Idealistic' Basis Urged by McArthur, Here to Receive Music Merit Badge From Scouts and to Conduct Symphony

Edwin MacArthur, former director of classical music for the National Youth Administration in New York, said here yesterday the Government-sponsored art projects that he has seen are political show windows.

"We in our political set-up have not learned to deal with the arts, and the only way it ever will get anywhere is on an idealistic basis," McArthur said after a ceremony in which he received a music merit badge from the Washington Boy Scouts. McArthur, 32, a former Scout, will be guest conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra Wednesday night.

McArthur said the projects seemed interested in the statistical results, while he was concerned entirely with broader opportunities the projects could offer. He said he did not refer to the WPA projects because he had had no experience with them.

Again the young conductor, protege of the Norwegian soprano, Kirsten Flagstad, said he regretted that refugee musicians were being given the "breaks" over American talent.

He said that he was sympathetic with the refugees' plight and that they should be welcomed in this country, "but in the places of opportunity we should have the chances." He declared that "I would never give a place to a refugee if an American could fill it."

"The plight of the American is more dreadful," he said.

McArthur said that while recently in Toronto, Canada, he was requested by his Canadian management to refrain from playing German music. He hoped the attitude would not spread to this country.

"What have Wagner and Schubert got to do with the war?" he asked. "If we were at war there might be some who would become hysterical, but I can see no reason for it, in war or out. Of course, I don't mean by this that we should go around singing 'Deutschland uber Alles.'"

McArthur, a native of Denver, received his music merit badge through authorization of the national headquarters of the Boy Scouts. The presentation was made by Brown Williams, 14, 3311 Porter Street Northwest, and Mervin Rice, 14, 3503 Quebec Street Northwest, both members of Troop 5. Williams wore 24 badges to the ceremony; Rice wore 25. The ceremony was backstage of Constitution Hall, after a rehearsal of the orchestra.

VITAMIN B
NEURITIS

Repeated scientific tests have shown that vitamin B_1 is most beneficial in many conditions of neuritis, such as those due to anemia, pregnancy, pellagra and even chronic alcoholism and peripheral neuritis. But vitamin B_1 is only one factor of the vitamin B complex. Nuval-Aid, the important vitamin B remedy, contains not only a rich quantity of vitamin B_1 but vitamin G and the whole vitamin B complex as well. Vitamin B has done wonders for many cases of loss of appetite due to vitamin B deficiency and scientists everywhere agree that an abundant supply of vitamin B is an important factor in growth and good health. Bloodhounds Take JustHour to Locate Car-Thief Suspect

Queen and Pat missed their lunch yesterday, but it was in line of duty; so they got an extra portion at supper.

Queen and Pat are bloodhounds—two of the more efficient smeller-outers at the Lorton Reformatory. The Virginia State Police called upon their services yesterday to track down a pair of suspected automobile thieves.

One of the suspects had been captured when the dogs arrived at the scene near Fredricksburg, but th second was still at large. It took Queen and Pat, in charge of Capt. Paul F. Pegelow, their trainer, exactly an hour to find their quarry in a wooded section not far from the town limit.

The men held are both from Delaware and are accused of stealing a car in Wilmington Sunday night.
